Massachusetts—The girl wanting to know who will be her husband must steal a cabbage at midnight. If some man comes along and helps her steal it, he's the one. Otherwise, the cabbage is put over the door and she will wed the first man upon whose head it falls.

Pennsylvania—to learn of the future on Hallowe'en, walk out the front door backward, pick up some dust or grass, wrap it in paper and put it under the pillow. The dreams will tell.

New Hampshire—Into three dishes put earth, water and a ring. Shuffle them around and the one receiving the earth will die; water means never marry and the ring, an immediate march to the altar.

Maryland—put an egg to roast and open the windows and doors. The aroma will draw the right bridegroom to turn it.

An old southern custom was to put metallic tokens in a bowl of spirituous liquid and set the vessel afire. The merrymakers grabbed and each charm had some particular meaning—a throwback at the druid's fire.

Hundreds of customs that are followed however, were born of the drudic day when witches gathered before Shaman, Lord of Death, who decreed into what animal forms should go the dead of the past year. Early Roman tales date this ceremony at around 300 B. C.

The ceremony, for centuries marked by human sacrifice, was held at the end of the pagan year when the harvest was in, and was a new year's celebration. Great bonfires were lighted and into some were thrust humans. Those who clutched tokens from the flames won a priceless charm.

Only on this one night could the evil spirits go abroad. In the cat symbol of today rests the cat of the druids, a sacred animal that kept the most vile of the spectres at bay.

From the Irish came the major share of Hallowe'en customs. There it began also as a ceremony of death known as the vigil of Shaman, who called his wicked souls into assembly and went abroad to plunder the countryside.

There were good and bad fairies, the latter much in the majority. But the good elfs covered lots of ground. Sagas of the early Irish are filled with their tales. The Irish also developed sooth-saying as a Hallowe'en adjunct and began parties and pranks.

With the advent of the Romans and Christianity, some of the characteristics of the Roman festival of Pomona—Harvest end, filtered into the observance. From Pomona came by indirect methods diving for apples and roasting nuts.

In the fourth century after Christ, the church decided upon an all saints' day in which to honor cleric martyrs. Pope Gregory IV in 835 moved the date to November 1 and made observance compulsory. All Hallows Eve gave its name to Hallowe'en henceforth.

A strange mixture followed. From the Norsemen and Teuton arrived a handful of customs. Brittany, peopled by Celts driven from England by early Saxon raiders, supplied a few. From England hode the witches on broomsticks somewhere around 500.

Time modified the more religious aspects and merrymaking increased. Except in southern Europe, where it was and remains a time for solemn religious observance and paying respect to the dead.

Early settlers in America gave scant attention to Hallowe'en, but their descendants in the last two years have turned to its full blast and made it a day of pranks.

America Revels in Carnival of Hallowe'en—Once Was Holiday of Death

Centuries-old lore shrouded the witches aloft on their broomsticks last week-end as America reveled in the carnival of Hallowe'en, once the holiday of death.

Pagan and Christian combined through the ages to lay at the feet of the modern world this merrymaking and pranks. A custom of barbaric orign, 2,200 years have passed since first the ghosts of fancy danced and druid bonfires in Celtic England. Age has lightened and spread its observance.

Adaptions have been myriad. That America has its share is shown in some of the more than 50 reference books on Hallowe'en in the library of Congress. Among these are:

Massachusetts—The girl wanting to know who will be her husband must steal a cabbage at midnight. If some man comes along and helps her steal it, he's the one. Otherwise, the cabbage is put over the door and she will wed the first man upon whose head it falls.

Pennsylvania—to learn of the future on Hallowe'en, walk out the front door backward, pick up some dust or grass, wrap it in paper and put it under the pillow. The dreams will tell.

RELIEF AS A BUSINESS—

When Walter W. Dawson, speaking at the mass meeting last Thursday night, stated that relief organization should be made a business proposition, omitting the sentiment, he spoke for the majority of those present.

There is no doubt that many people of the county will need relief this winter. There is also no doubt, that among those who are needy, will be found many who are needy simply because they know that somebody will take care of them. And as long as somebody feeds them, they will find an excuse for not working.

It is going to be the job of the relief committee, through various sources of information, to check up on those applying for relief, giving to those who are worthy, and refusing aid to those who are not.

There is no place for sentiment. The worthy ones don't want it, and will jump at the chance of doing something to repay their obligations. The shiftless and useless don't deserve it and they are the ones who will hollo the longest and loudest for it.

A lot of investigation will be necessary in order that no worthy case may be overlooked. There will be enough food, clothing, etc., furnished by the citizens of the county to supply those who need it. To place these donations correctly will be the biggest task.

IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

In the election returns, the following were elected: State's Attorney, Gilmor S. Hamill; Edmund Jamison, sheriff; Jacob Fresh, Edward Margroff and Truman W. Casteel, commissioners; George L. Michaels, Thomas H. Bittinger, house of delegates; Charles Morgan, Henry Kamp, Henry G. Sanders, judges of the orphans' court; John Harned, surveyor.

The first snow of the season of any depth fell Wednesday night.

The largest body of coal land in West Virginia, owned by H. G. Davis Coal Company, situated near Elkins, will shortly be opened up and developed by H. G. Davis, Jr.

The electric light people put up several incandescent lamps on the streets as an experiment and if proven successful the arc machine will be discarded entirely.

A reward of $200 was offered for the discovery of the infant child of Daniel and Annie Mosser, of Swanton, who was lost.

Henry J. Mayers, Dr. Henry W. McComas and Edward Bartlett departed for Baltimore on business, expecting to return the latter part of the week.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

The home of Mr. Stahl, Oak street, was slightly damaged by fire at four o'clock Sunday morning.

In the unofficial returns Phillips Lee Goldsborough was elected governor of Maryland; Lawton, Long and Weimer, house of delegates; Tower, clerk of the circuit court; Renninger, State's Attorney; Maffett, sheriff; Fike, county commissioner; Ross, clerk; Emory, treasurer; Harvey, Kamp and Moon, judges of Orphans' court.

State road building had been abandoned until spring. The National road had been completed as far as the Johnson farm, four miles west of Frostburg.

High school students neither absent nor tardy for October included Mary Harsh and Vernon Lyon, seniors; Bob White, Preston DeBerry, Harold Harned, Evelyn Helbig, juniors; Bernadette Hart, Frank Kildow, Morris Sincell, Hellice Rathbun, sophomores; Playford Naylor, Harvey Bittinger, Delbert Davis, George Queer, Rose Kerins, freshmen.

Miss Julia Lawton underwent an operation for the removal of a tumor from her stomach at Cumberland.

Robbers broke into the postoffice at Swanton and took a small amount of change and the equal of $117 in stamps and other valuables.

An Interesting Fact

COLONIAL HOMES AND CUSTOMS

We are prone to think of the Colonists poorly housed and enduring the many hardships and privations of a primitive people. In many instances, of course, this was true. "The poor we have with us always." But we bear in mind that while they chose to settle in a primitive country, they were not a primitive people. They, on the whole, had behind them the culture, the customs, the habits and the environments of their home land. Even the indentured servants and the redemptioners (many of them) were persons of refinement.

It is true that following the purchase of St. Mary's from Yaecomico for cloth, axes, hatchets, rakes, hoes and knives, the Colonists for a time dwelt in houses built by and for the Indians. These houses as described by Father White (our first historian) in his "Relations", were crude and devoid of refinements and conveniences, and were mere cabins, with light admitted through the roof, which window also served to carry off the smoke of the fire built in the middle of the floor, around which the braves slept.

These conditions did not continue for long, however. We find that as early as 1664, only thirty years after the landing of the Ark and the Dove, the Assembly of Maryland provided that thereafter all houses erected should not be less than twenty feet square and two and a-half stories high with brick chimneys.

During the following century many dwellings were constructed of frame and brick, some of which are still standing, attesting the fact that our forefathers built their habitations as they helped to build our State and Nation—durable and lasting.

We can but marvel, as we contemplate the many homes of ancestral Maryland dotting the counties of the Eastern Shore, standing as silent monuments to the thrift and culture of their builders.

Probably the first brick dwelling erected in Maryland (about 1643) and still standing was on a tract of land granted to Thomas Cornwallys, in St. Mary's county, on the banks of St. Inigoes Creek. In these Colonial mansions lived the Thomases, the Planters, the Cresaps, the Jarboes, the Hansons, the Sarrolls, the Calverts, the Ogles, the Taskers, the Copleys, the Nicholsons and the long line of Maryland sons and daughters who carved the Old Line State out of the wilderness.

Those dwellings of the rich and prominent were filled with furniture, pewter and silver service, now almost priceless; the women were clad in silks and laces, all imported from the homeland and for the most part purchased in exchange for tobacco raised in the fertile soil. Altogether life in the Province in Colonial days was pleasant, if somewhat strenuous, and from our viewpoint, crude and primitive. The men were busy erecting a nation, yet found time for the fox chase, the horseracing and sports of a similar nature. The ladies of the manor entertained their friends and neighbors, in many instances widely scattered, performed on the "harpsicord and spinnet" and played the part of heroic wives and mothers, giving counsel and advice to their men folk and preparing their sons and daughters for their life duties.

It will be of interest to many Garrett countians to know that among the early Colonial homes is one known as Long Lane Farm, the home of Lieutenant-Colonel Jarboe, paternal ancestor of Mr. J. M. Jarboe, of the Garrett National Bank. This house, more than 250 years old, still stands in St. Mary's county, and except for some minor repairs, no alterations have been made in the original construction.

A peculiar (to us) feature of the home was a penthouse, hollowed out below the ground and connected with a bedroom by a doorway, through which the family could go in case of a sudden attack by the Indians. By an ingenious arrangement of the planks and bricks, this room could be converted into a small fort.

Lieut.-Col. Jarboe, a native of Dijon, France, came to Maryland from Virginia, and served as a soldier of Lord Baltimore, with whom he seems to have been on intimate terms of friendship.

The Jarboe ancestral home is described in detail in "Homes of the Cavaliers," by Katherine Scarborough.

National Honey Week

The week beginning November 9 has been designated as "National Honey Week". Honey is a delicious and wholesome food and the many ways in which it may be used in the daily diet will be emphasized during that period by exhibits and in other ways throughout the nation. According to food and health specialists, it is one of the most healthful and wholesome forms of sweets and might with advantage be used to supply a large percentage of the need for that kind of material in the daily diet.

Menus featuring a wide variety of honey dishes have been prepared by specialists of the University of Maryland Extension Service, together with recipes and directions for preparing each of the dishes. One or more of these will appear in each issue of this paper.

Hot Honey Muffins for Breakfast

Doesn't the sight of golden honey muffins cause you to step a little livelier toward the breakfas table?

Our morning meal should be pleasant and enjoyable in order to start the day right, and there is much cheer in a plate of piping hot muffins for breakfast. Do not miss an opportunty to start the day right by using honey in your breakfast combinations. In addition to honey muffins, you will find honey-drizzled fruit and cereal especially delightful, with a new tang in flavor which appeals to the appetite.

Honey is an energy-giving food, possessing four-fifths as much energy as sugar and one-half as much as butter. The sugars in honey are of a form especially easily digested and readily utilized by the system. It will not tax the most delicate digestive system.

Following is a day's menu using honey for breakfast:

Breakfast

Applesauce, oatmeal, cream, honey muffins, butter, crisp bacon, cocoa, coffee.

Dinner

Veal stew with vegetables, corn bread, butter, bread pudding, honey sauce, milk.

Supper

Cream of tomato soup, vegetable salad, rolls, butter, stewed fruit, milk.

Honey Muffins

Two eggs, 4 T. honey, 4 T. fat, 6 t. baking powder, pinch soda, ½ t salt, 1½ C. milk 3 C. flour.

Combine liquids (unbeaten eggs, melted fat, honey and milk.) Add dry ingredients and barely mix. Bake in moderate oven.

Honey Sauce

One C. raisins, ½ C. water, 1 C. honey.

Simmer until raisins are soft. Add honey and 1 T. lemon juice.

DIED.

MRS. SUSAN DURST

The remains of Mrs. Susan Durst, of Accident, who died at the State Hospital, Sykesville, were brought to Oakland yesterday morning and taken from here to Accident where interment was made following a short burial service conducted by the graveside. The deceased was 71 years of age and had been committed to the Sykesville institution about two years ago. She was a widow. Surviving is one sister, Mrs. Kimmell Welch, of Mountain Lake Park.

JOHN DANIEL TAGGART

John Daniel Taggart, aged 73, died at the home of his sister, Mrs. William Weaver, Shipshewana, Indiana, on Tuesday morning. Death was due to bronchial pneumonia, but he had been a helpless invalid for about six years. Funeral services will be held this afternoon, with interment at Shipshewana.

The deceased was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edward Taggart, and was born in the Accident community February 22, 1858. He was a meat cutter by profession and followed that work for a number of years in Oakland. He was also employed by the H. Weber and Sons company, and was city policeman of Oakland for a number of years. He was a member of the Knights of Pythias lodge.

Surviving are one daughter, Mrs. Walter Stavely, of Elkhart, Indiana, and his sister, Mrs. Weaver, to whose home he removed from Oakland about three years ago. A number of relatives in Garrett county also survive.

MRS. VIRGINIA SMITH

Mrs. Virginia Smith, 61, wife of D. Grant Smith, formerly of Oakland, died at her home in Grafton Tuesday morning after an illness of about three months.

Funeral services are being conducted this afternoon at Grafon M. E. church after which the body will be brought to Oakland and interred in the burial ground.

Mrs. Smith had lived in Grafton about thirty years. She was a daughter of the late Robert Porter and Caroline Loar Porter, and was born at Oakland. She is survived by her husband, D. Grant Smith, printer, and by the following children: Mrs. Clarence L. Doty, New York City; Mrs. James I. Prichard and Mrs. Paul Walker, Jr., Orlando, Fla.; and Howard Smith, Morgantown, W. Va. One sister, Mrs. W. Frank Keen, of Baltimore; and one brother, Charles Porter, of Cumberland, also survive.

MRS. SAVILLA C. RUSTER

Mrs. Savilla C. Ruster, wife of J. C. Ruster, Mattoon, Ill., died October 15, 1931, in Memorial Hospital, of that city, where she had been a patient a few days. She had been in failing health for four years. The funeral was held on Saturday, October 17, from the M. E. church, Rev. T. B. Lugg, officiating.

Mrs. Ruster, as Savilla C. Yutzy, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Yutzy, was born on December 9, 1859, in Oakland. Mr. Yutzy was an Amish minister and for years served as such in the Amish settlement in the Arthur (Illinois) community. Mrs. Ruster went to Illinois in 1880. She was married to Mr. Ruster on October 28, 1883, and moved to Mattoon forty years ago.

Besides her husband, there are five children: Alfred, Misses Mayme Ruster, Mrs. B. C. Nichols and Mrs. Frank Kramer, all of Mattoon; and Ernest Ruster, Indianapolis, Ind. Also surviving are three brothers, Daniel Yutzy and Sol Yutzy; Arthur, Ill.; Noah Yutzy, Hopedale, Ill.; and five sisters, Mrs. Caroline Yoder and Mrs. Harry Helmuth, Arthur, Ill; Mrs. Elizabeth Humberton, Las Vegas, Cali.; Mrs. Kate Cramer, Baltimore, and Mrs. Minnie Smith, Toledo, Ohio.

Small Forest Fire Reported

The fire department was called at 6:45 o'clock last evening to extinguish a small forest fire near the Merrill Farm, a mile and a-half north of Oakland on Route 37.

Yough Community Boosters Hold Regular Meeting

The Yough Community Boosters held their regular monthly meeting in the Selbysport school house on November 4, with 33 members present.

Dr. O. K. Hoffman, government veterinarian, Hagerstown, was the speaker of the evening. Dr. Hoffman, who is in charge of hog cholera control in Maryland, gave an instructive talk on diseases of hogs.

The next meeting will be held Wednesday, December 2, at 7:30 p. m., in the Selbysport school house. A program is being prepared and all are invited to attend.

Improvement of Firm Rock Road Nears Completion

Work of improving approximately two and a half miles of the Westernport-Firm Rock road in Garrett county is nearing completion. The rock base has all been laid and will shortly be rolled and surfaced with dirt. Last year about a mile of road was similarly treated. The improvement last year began at a point near Firm Rock where a run crosses the road and continued to the vicinity of the George L. Michael farm, whence work was resumed this summer and will be completed to the watering trough. An intervening stretch of road about three-fourths of a mile long to the Garrett county line remains to be improved. The Allegany county stretch of road over Westernport hill is in fair condition, mine "bone" having been placed upon it.

By advancing about $3,000 without interest to the Garrett county commissioners, two residents of the Firm Rock neighborhood made possible the improvement of the road this year. The road work furnished needed employment to farmers of the vicinity and also gave the Firm Rock community a much improved outlet.

Roadside Trimming of Trees in Hands of Forestry Department

Maybe you have been out enjoying the autumn foliage and while driving along have noticed a pole line crew trimming trees under their wires along the road. If you had stopped you would have found that they were trimming these trees under the supervision of one of the Forest Wardens of the Maryland State Deparment of Forestry.

The Roadside Tree Law, enacted by the Legislature of 1914, placed upon the Department of Forestry the responsibility for the care and protection of trees along roadways throughout the State and along the streets of incorporated towns. This law recognizes the public interest in shade trees along the highways and throws around them every safeguard for their protection against pole line companies and private individuals. This law gives the Department of Forestry regulatory power over the trees along the highways to prevent cutting, trimming or removing except by permit.

All work of the pole line companies is supervised by special wardens who are commissioned officers of the State and are there to protect the trees for the benefit of the public at large and are not employed by the pole line companies.

Individuals wishing to do trimming of roadside trees or street trees in towns should get in touch with their local warden or write to the State Deparment of Forestry, Baltimore, for permits. Violators of this law are liable to a fine of not more than $50 for each offense.

During the past year wardens supervised the trimming of approximately 40,000 trees.

Bernard Gonder, Jr., who spent several weeks in the Coyne School for Radios, Chicago, Ill., returned to his home in Oakland Saturday morning where he will remain for some time. He completed the course with a mark of 87 percent.

Last Saturday Oakland residents experienced their first real taste of winter when snow squalls visited the community at intervals from daybreak until nightfall, interspersed by sunshine and rain. It was a real typical early winter day. The snow melted as soon as it reached the ground.

Mrs. Herbert Hoover will speak during the final 15-minute period of the joint Federal-State Achievement Day program for 4-H Club members, which will be broadcast from 12:30 and 1:30 p. m., on Saturday, November 7. Club members and other interested persons are urged to tune in at this hour.

Corbin DeBerry, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. DeBerry, of near Deer Park, who was seriously injured in an automobile accident which occurred on Route 220, south of Keyser, W. Va., several weeks ago, was taken from the hospital at Keyser on last Sunday to his home where is recuperating rapidly from his injuries. Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Sebold and members of their family were also injured in the accident but not as seriously as Mr. DeBerry.

The statement in The Republican on October 15 that Miss Lillian Julia Tshby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. Ashby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. engagement, is entirely without foundation, according to Mr. Ashby. The information was brought to The Republican office by two girls from Crellin who stated that Mr. Ashby had authorized them to do so. This species of cheap fun at the expense of not only the young lady in question but also her entire family, is embarrassing to say the least, and The Republican while entirely innocent apologizes.

Kenneth Stahl, student in the U. of Md., College Park, visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Stahl, on Sunday.

Mrs. Ilda Coddington, who spnet several weeks in Cleveland, Ohio, the guest of her daughter, has returned to her home near Oakland.

Speicher, coach; Edwin Elias, assistant coach, and Cecil Ramsey, attended the Kansas State-West Virginia University football game at Morgantown last Saturday, as guests of the West Virginia University athletic department. This invitation was extended to high school football teams thorughout the state, and Oakland. The trip was made in Ramsey's bus.

Town officials have recently discovered that more or less damage is being done public property, evidently by boys, and steps have been taken to prevent further trespassing. At one of the pumping stations a lock has been broken and the building entered and at other of the water works buildings property has been damaged to some degree. Trespass signs have been posted warning against further damage and if these warnings are not obeyed the guilty parties will be subject to arrest and punishment.

Mr. James F. Hamill, formerly of Oakland, now assistant general counsel for the International Paper Co. of New York City, was recently sent abroad by his company to open offices in London and Paris. He will return to New York in December, and in January he will appear before the Maryland Court of Appeals at Annapolis with the other heirs of his father, the late G. Scmmes Hamill, of Oakland, when the caveat case against the will of his grandfather, the late Gilmor S. Hamill, will be aruged.

Two quarts of the most seasonable of all specials, pumpkin ice cream, was received at The Republican office yesterday afternoon with the compliments of the Imperial Ice Cream Co., through its local manager, Mr. George Sprague. Stating that from reports the members of the staff had enjoyed the last special, maple pecan, they again asked our indulgence in sampling the latest special. In texture and content it matched the maple pecan; in taste it was similar to pumpkin pie and lots of folks like that kind of pie. The treat was very much enjoyed, especiall by Mayor Stemple, Wade Hinebaugh and Carl Frame, who happened to be present when the treat was delivered and they remained until it was disposed of—by them and us.

Fined For Disorderly Conduct

William Hartzell, Oakland, was fined $1 and costs this morning by Justice W. A. Gonder, on a charge of being drunk and disorderly.

He is alleged to have thrown parts of a heating stove at Harry Kimmell last evening. Kimmell did not appear against him at the hearing. Officer B. B. Nethkin made the arrest and lodged him in the County Jail over night.

Firemen Thank Citizens

On behalf of the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department, the committee appointed for the Hallowe'en celebration takes this method of thanking all who gave assistance and helped to make the occasion a success.

The committee is especially grateful to the merchants of the town who contributed so generously; to the Mayor and Town Council for special privileges in the use of the streets of the town, and to the West Maryland Power Company for its assistance and cooperation.

5255 PUPILS ENROLLED LAST YEAR IN GARRETT

Report of Board of Education Gives Expenditure for 1930-31

That there were 5,255 pupils enrolled in the public schools of Garrett county during the school year of 1930-31, with the cost per pupil set at $53.30, on a general average, is shown in the annual report of the Board of Education for the fiscal year ending July 31, 1931, just recently forwarded to the State Department of Education.

The cost per pupil varied in the one-teacher, two-teacher, graded and high schools, from $44.02 in the two-teacher schools to $62.41 in the high schools. The average is $17.07 less than the average for the school year 1929-30.

The schools were open for 187 days last year as compared with 176 days during 1922-23. In 1922-23 there were only 18 first grade certificated teachers, as compared with 143 for 1930-31, with no second grade and no third grade teachers now in service.

Four schools were closed during the year by consolidation, so that at present there are in the county 88 one-teacher, 11 two-teacher, 7 elementary schools and 6 high schools, a total of 112. This is a decrease of 10 in the one-teacher schools, and one each in the two-teacher and elementary schools.

The cost of teachers for 1930-31 was $219,758.32, which is $250 more than last year.

The total receipts for school purposes was $435,762.81. Of this sum $179,084.75 was received from State and Federal funds and $250,299.75 from the county. The expenditures amounted to $435,016.48, leaving a balance of $746.33.

Card Party as Benefit of Volunteer Firemen

The Republican has been requested to state that the women of Oakland will conduct a card party at the Knights of Pythias Hall on Tuesday evening, November 24, for the benefit of the local volunteer fire department when bridge and five hundred will be played. Prizes will be awarded, and there are a number of them, it is stated. Price of admission will be 35 cents. Refreshments will be served. This being the first benefit card party for the firemen the public should avail themselves of the opportunity to attend.—38-3t.

St. Paul's M. E. Church Notes

The theme for the morning worship on Sunday, November 8, will be "The Messenger of Peace," at 10:45 o'clock, and the theme for the evening worship at 7:30 will be "The Tale of Two Cities."

Sunday is Epworth League rally day. The program at 6:45 in the evening will be in charge of Miss Grace Shirer. The Sunday school orchestra will be present to help out with the music. All young people are urged to attend. We had a fine service and a very good attendance last Sunday.

J. W. DAWSON, Pastor.

St. Peter's School News

Reports for the month of October have been distributed in St. Peter's parochial school, showing the following pupils on the honor roll for high averages in studies:

Eight members of the Harmonica Band have been promoted to chromatic harmonicas. They are Regis Kerins, Frances Riley, Dolores Kerins, Mildred Lambert, Rita Lawton, Julius Jordan, Maurice Treacy and Jack O'Donnell. They are preparing quartet selections for the December concert.

Season on Raccoon and Opossum Opened on November 1

Open season on raccoon and opossum began on November 1, in Garrett county. Open season will not begin on upland game until November 15, when rabbit, squirrel, pheasants, etc., may be killed.

Duck season, which, according to Maryland laws, was to have opened on November 1, is postponed until November 15, by a proclamation of President Herbert Hoover, made several weeks ago, according to information received from the office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court in Oakland.

Approximately 500 persons in the county have applied for and have been granted hunter's licenses to the present time, it was stated. In the number there was but one non-resident applicant.

This number is less than one-half the number issued for the same period last year, but the reason for this was said to be on account of the lateness of the hunting season.

Mayor and Council Hold Regular Monthly Meeting

The regular meeting of the Mayor and Town Council of Oakland was held Monday evening in the Council chamber. No important discussions were held, according to Grover C. Stemple, mayor.

The street committee reported that Water street had been oiled with asphalt and screened. It was decided to place a railing on the bridge on Third street, crossing the Little Youghiogheny river. Mr. Scott Shreve made a complaint to the council that the street to his home leading off Pennington street was too narrow for travel, and the council decided to investigate.

The regular monthly bills, amounting to approximately $1,100, were paid. The next regular meeting will be held on December 7.

The Mayor and members of the council were guests of the Mayor and council of Accident last evening. The Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band, of Oakland, accompanied the official body and gave a concert in the school auditorium.

RED CROSS RELIEF IN 79 DISASTERS IN YEAR

Forest Fires, Plagues, Storms, Earthquakes, as Well as Drought, Call for Help.

The forest fires which have raged in Idaho and other western sections this year have presented a serious disaster—one of a numbor, in addition to the enormous drought relief probiems, which have been met by the American Rod Cross reilef forces.

Suffering, faith and courage are contained in a story coming from the Priest River section in Idaho, told hy a volunteer Red Cross worker as follows:

"Picture a happy little homestead near the banks of Priest river in northern Idaho. While father, with a little son tagging at his beels, is out tending crops and adding to the clearing, mother is at home making preparations for another arrival. Then comes the fire demon, sweeping all in its path. While father fights to protect his little home, the stork announces its arrival.

"Mother and baby are bundled in a quilt and loaded on a truck for the race through the flaming forest. Father drives the truck and the little boy sits at his mother's side, brushing away the sparks which fall like rain upon the improvised litter."

To the Red Cross worker, the mother expressed her anxiety to return to the hills to rehabilitate the little homestead. All they possessed was lost in the forest fires. The Red Cross aided all of the families and is working to help them rebuild their homes.

Altogether seventy-nine disasters called for Red Cross help and money during the year just closed. Aside from the drought, which required services of volunteer workers numbering more thau 60,000, and a drought relief fnnd of more than $15,000,000 of which $5,000,000 came from the national Red Cross treasury, help was given in 22 fires, 13 tornadoes, eight storms and eight floods, six forest fires, four earthquakes and fonr mine explosions, three typhoons and three epidemics, two cloudhursts, and one eaeh hurricane, mine cave-in and railroad accident.

Aside from a major catastrophe, such as the dronght, when the whole public was asked to contribute funds for relief, Red Cross relief in these disasters was met from the orgnnization's funds and from special local contributions. Part of each membership, subscribed to Red Cross Chapters at the roll call period from Armistice Day to Thanksgiving Day, goes toward this important work.

Chief Justice Hughes In Tribute to Red Cross

One of the finest tributes ever paid the American Red Cross and its membership was that by Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes, of the United States Supreme Court, on the occasion of the fiftieth birthday anniversary of the organization on May 21 of this year. Mr. Hughes said:

"The American Red Cross represents the united voluntary effort of the American people in the ministry of mercy. It is the finest and most effective expression of the American heart. It knows no partisanship. In the perfection of its cooperation, there is no blemish of distinctions hy reason of race or creed or political philosophy.

"However we may differ in all things else. in tho activities of the Red Cross we are a united people. None of our boasted industrial enterprises surpasses it in efficiency. . . . It moves with the precision and the discipline of nn army to achieve the nohiest of human aims.

"The American Red Cross is not only first in war but first in peace. The American poople rely upon its ministrations in every great catastrophe. It has given its aid in over one thousand disasters. Wheu, as we hope, war will he no more, still the Red Cross, in the countless activities of relief aad rehabilitation, will continue to function as the organized compassion of our country."

Aid for War Veterans

More than 430,000 ex-service men and their families were aided through 3,003 Red Cross Chapters and the national organization during the year ending June 30, 1931. Dependent families were cared for, veterans' claims were filed, hospitalization obtained and many other services given. Part of each contribution during the American Red Cross annual roll call, Armistice Day to Thanksgiving Day, goes toward supporting this vital work for veterans of the World War and other wars in which the United States has engaged.

Books for the Blind

Through American Red Cross Chapters, 3,827 volumes of novels, class books and others, transcribed into braille for blind readers, have been added to libraries, in tho past year. These books are to bo obtained through the Library of Congress and city libraries. This activity, carried on hy a great number of devoted women volunteers in Red Cross Chapters, had its inception in preparing books for war blinded.

AN ULTIMATE CONSUMER

This baby in a drought stricken section of West Virginia was one of the ultimate consumers of the foodstuffs given by the American Red Cross in the past year. More than 2,750,000 persons were fed by the organization.

GENERAL WASHINGTON'S DANGEROUS EXPLOIT, 1753

To the American boy of today, October 30 is Hallowe'en and nothing more. But October 30 marks another anniversary of considerable importance. The United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission points out that it was a very important day in the life of George Washington. On that day, 178 years ago, George Washington began the first major assignment in the interest of his people.

On that day in the year 1753, George Washington, only 21 years old, but already a Major in the Virginia militia, was sent by the Governor of Virginia to penetrate the Pennsylvania wilderness and warn the French on the Ohio to vacate the territory which, the Governor claimed, belonged to Virginia. It was risky business, because the French were reaching down from their stronghold in Canada and fortifying all that region which is now Ohio, Indiana and Illinois. And long before he could face the hostile French commander, Washington had first to get through a wilderness teeming with doubtful Indians in the dead of winter.

On October 30 he set out from Williamsburg, the Virginia capital in that day, journeying north to Fredericksburg, where he picked up a French interpreter, Jacob Van Braam. From there he rode to Winchester, and thence to Wills Creek, now the city of Cumberland, Maryland. There he was joined by Christopher Gist, a trader and scout, skilled in Indian ways and familiar with the densely wooded region.

On November 15, Washington and Gist, together with another woodsman they hired as an interpreter, one John Davidson, set out into the wintry wilds, on a day of rain and snow. At Turtle Creek, a few miles south of the present Pittsburgh, they stopped at the shack of John Frazier, another experienced trader. From there they headed for Logstown, some 17 miles away.

The errand that took Washington there was to meet certain Indian chiefs and win them over as his allies.

In this Washington was successful and from these Indians he gathered valuable information. Some 70 miles of dangerous and difficult country had still to be covered, but on December 4 Washington set forth, accompanied by Half King and other Indians for further escort. At length they reached Venango, now Franklin, with their objective—Fort Le Boeuf—still further up French creek near the site of the present Waterford.

Arriving at the fort, the youthful Washington delivered his message from the Governor to the French commander, St. Pierre, and got his first taste of international diplomacy. The Frenchman took two days to consider Governor Dinwiddie's letter, and meanwhile, did his best to wean away Washington's Indians with fair speeches and liberal potions of liquor. Even when St. Pierre's reply had been composed, sealed and presented to Washington, the French made every effort to detain his Indians with more liquor and presents. Finally, however, on December 16, Washington was able to break away and got back to Venango on the 22nd.

By then his horses were done for, and, donning Indian costume, Washington set out on foot, his companions likewise. Even so, his baggage was an encumbrance, and Washington left it in charge of Van Braam, while he and Gist pushed on by themselves. At a place with the startling name of Murdering Town they fell in with Indians of more than doubtful character, one of whom insisted on accompanying Washington and Gist, on the plea that the woods were full of hostile Ottawas and that he was needed for protection. A little way along their route, this self-appointed protector suddenly shot at Washington or Gist, but fortunately missed.

By a stratagem, Washington and Gist got rid of this fellow. Pretending to camp for the night, they rushed on instead, through he night and all the next day, and finally reached the banks of the Allegany river, hoping to find it sufficiently frozen to cross. The stream, instead, was full of floating ics and therefore dangerous. A raft had to be built, and, with but one hatchet, Washington and Gist consumed a whole day in constructing this craft.

They got half across the river on this frail float when it jammed in the ice, and Washington was jerked into ten feet of icy water in attempting to get the raft free. Only by luckily grabbing a log of the raft did he save himself. At length they drifted to an island in midstream and there passed a night so cold that Gist's hands and feet were frozen. By next morning the river itself had frozen and they were able to land on the southern shore and reach the cabin of John Frazier on Turtle Creek, along the Monongahela. After a rest there, they pushed on to the cabin of Gist, where Washington was able to buy a horse and hurry on home alone.

He got back to Williiamsburg on January 16, dellvered St. Pierre's defiant refusal on the part of the French to leave the Ohio region and wrote out his own report to the Governor. Vastly to Washington's surprise, the Governor ordered it printed and Washington found himself suddenly famous. He himself may not have known then that here was the beginning of his career, though we konw it now, in the perspective of history.

In these days it is scarcely possible to think of Western Pennsylvania, now teeming with important manufacturing towns and cities, as once a wilderness so densely wooded and dangerous that it was almost a miracle for a lone white man to escape it alive. But the Virginians of that day knew it, and the fact added to Washington's reputation. At once he was the rising hope of his Colony; and, on the strength of this achievement Washington began to climb the military ladder. He reached the, highest rung when he became Commander-in-Chief of the Revolutionary Army.

So the date of October 30 is important for reasons other than as Hallowe'en. It happens to be something of a date in Ameriean history.

NEW GERMANY

Holy Communion services will bc held at the Reformed church on Sunday, November 8th, at 10:30 a. m. Rev. Albert Glesser will conduct the service.

The seventh annual meeting of the New Germany Parent-Teacher Association was held at the school building on Wednesday night, October 21. After the business meeting the following people were elected to serve the ensuing year: Mrs. George Duling, president; Mrs. Sam Otto, vice-president; Mary Otto, secretary; and Leota Broadwater, treasurer. Music and songs were enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Austin Brondwatcr and family, of Salisbury, Pa., visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Otto on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Forest Robeson, Frostburg, spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Warnick.

Miss Mary Jankey and Mr. Loraine Otto visited nt the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jankey, Deer Park, on Sunday.

Mrs. P. P. Stephens is spending some time at the home of her son, Clarence Stephen, near Bittinger.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Otto and family spent Sunday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Broadwater.

Mr. Lee Broadwater hcld a corn husking at his farm near here on Tuesday, at which a large number were present.

New Market for Maryland Coal

THE COLLIER SEES A CHANCE

By MARK S. WATSON
In the Baltimore Sun, October 18.

The danger is not from the coal but from the accompaniments of coal. In one case it is inflammable or explosive or asphyxiating gas. In another it is the collapse of the ceiling beneath which the mining crew is at work. In Maryland it is the latter peril that must be guarded against chiefly.

For between the horizontal veins of coal, over and under them, is generally shale or slate, a frail support for the vast weight of the mountain above. When the miner works his "heading" or "entry" horizontally into the vein of coal where that black and glistening vein crops out of the mountain side, and extracts the rich coal, he must keep timbering his way along, putting up stout timber props at the side of the horizontal tunnel which he has cut, and across them putting up equally stout timber roofing supported by the side props and in turn supporting the weight of the unextracted material.

Were the coal seam overlaid with granits or gneiss this over-layer would largely provide its own supporting strength, but shale will not support any weight at all, and from the moment the timbering is in place it is supporting a steadily increasing weight. Some day, at its best, it will give way, and into the heading which the patient miner has made will tumble shale and the fine loose dirt which is far more troublesome as it will pour down ton after ton through an orifice only as large as one's head, and keep pouring down as the frenzied miner claws it away, until the orifice is found and plugged. That explains why the timbering must be well done, and why no wise operator dares to quit operating a mine until the coal is actually exhausted and there is no further need to keep it open.

Mine operators in the past have not been so conscientious. The very earliest ones were. They surveyed their routes, keeping to precise right angles and reasonably precise intervals of cross-tunneling, so that their successors could resume the work knowing pretty well what they would find within.

The next generation did nothing of the sort. Easy money was in sight, and it became the habit to plunge into the rich Big Vein, tunnel out the breast coal only, leaving the top and bottom seams entirely untouched, and also leaving between the tunnels great spaces entirely untouched ("pillars", they still call them, supporting to some extent the roof of the "rooms" from which the coal has been removed). Then the quick-profit boys went on to other virgin veins, abandoning a mine still 60 or 70 per cent good; they let the timber go to ruin, so that a sea of debris fell within, making it almost impossible, sometimes wholly impossible, to salvage the fortune in untouched coal which remains within as unregainable as jewels at the bottom of the ocean.

The scientific way of mining, and one which the methodical working of the earliest miners would have made possible had it not been so often balked by the second generation in that area, as a matter of great percision. Two or three main "headings" are driven into the vein, in exactly parallel line, and always exactly horizontal in this territory. There are just two "shaft-mines", as exceptions to the horizontal rule; the objections to them are obvious; they require pumping instead of allowing the water to flow out by gravity, and it is harder to lift the coal and debris from them than it is to roll it out horizontally from the "drift-mines" whose outcroppings are actually exposed to man by the erosion of ancient rivers.

Once the main parallel "headings" have been driven into the vein, as described, with barrier "pillars" of fifty or one hundred feet separating them, new headings are driven off from them at right angles, to right and left, perhaps ten feet wide. From these "panel headings" in turn, at specific intervals, are driven new alleys, again at right angles are hence exactly parallel to the original "main headings." So this succession of tunnels and cross-tunnels creates a checkerboard of tunnels within, each of them securely timbered, each laid with track over which move the little cars in which the miners load the coal, or, separately, the slate and other debris which must be excavated. As the "rooms" increase in number and extent the "pillars" of coal are thereby eaten away bite by bite.

Mining in the old days was entirely by hand. Two men worked together as boss and helper, and in this country, as in England, they were oftener than not father and son, or older and younger brother, the senior teaching all he knew, so that his art might be passed on intact. No explosives were used in that early day, and coal came out by the fierce wielding of pick, and skillful placing of wedge, and laborious tugging at great lumps until they could be broken up by the sledge. Much later came the use of explosives, so that the miner could drive in a long boring, tamp in his powder and fuse, "shoot" it and bring down two tons at a blast. Still later came the machine, still infrequently met in the field, whose swiftly rotating teeth, working on a horizontal belt whirling about a great snout, cuts into the ledge of coal to a distance of eight feet or so and often brings down the huge mass with only a light jar.

But even now there is continuing need for the steady timbering, aided somewhat by the new-fangled and very effective shaping and notching of the timer outside the mine tunnel, so that the miner can set in place instead of having to hew it as well. But even so, much of the old art remains. The miner must still wield pick and shovel, understand explosives, operate as a carpenter, handle horses and mules, sense trouble before it arrives, and do it all in an inky black tunnel lit only by the flare of the lamp fastened to his visor, with water dripping about him and only his helper to stand by him in the sudden terror of a timber's collapse. Mining calls for a form of stoicism which arouses the respect of any man who works in open air.

Mining seems to be welcome to breeds of men. Surely it does in the mountains of Maryland whieh beckoned to their midst a particularly sturdy breed a century ago. They came from the British Isles almost wholly, English and Irish and, in still greater number, Walsh and Scotch. Their descendants are still there. Examination of the children registered in the mines' schools show that ninety-seven per cent are still of this strain, a thing almost incomprehensible to one who has seen the faces from the south and east of Europe who huddle about the pitheads in much of Pennsylvania. Here it was almost pure native stock until the 1901 strike, when some Italians came in, but no continued flow followed them and to this day one encounters few names or faces which a few generations gone eould have come from any place except the British Isles.

As one rides down George's Creek today he passes a spot still known as Welsh Hill, from the fact that once a Welsh colony culstered there as thick as did the Welsh coppersmiths in Baltimore when they were starting the city's copper industry. The place names are often homely reminders of the Scotland or England that these immigrant miners were never to see again.

Customs were transplanted, too, and in a day when we look on the widow's pension as an advanced (or maybe a radical) piece of legislation it is entertaining to discover that the old Scotch miners of George's Creek had one of their own before any State legislation was dreamed of. It was a simple affair. If a miner died, leaving wife and bairns (and families of a dozen were not at all uncommon) his mates took care of them as instinctively and generously as they knew their own would be cared for at some time to come.

The normal procedure a young fellow named MacIndoe (he started working at this same spot 56 years ago) paused in his husky labors the other day long enough to describe. A friend of the dead miner took on an extra "half-turn" for his mate's family; that is, he did his regular "turn" and then half as much more from which widows and orphans got the benefit. Often two miners engaged in like philanthropy would work together doing three "turns" altogether, of which each got the benefit of one turn, the third being divided between a pair of widows.

"And did that happen often here?"

"Often?" repeated MacIndoe. "Why it happened always. Boys have to be educated, don't they? And if their father wasn't alive to take care of it, and there was no brother old enough some one had to do it. I've done it myself, and we all have. Why a family of six girls—girls, mind you—was sent through school by the half turns of one of our Scots miners who wasn't related to 'em. That was the rule here. There was no law, and there was no union. It was just our custom and it was a good one 'at we kept up until the compensation act came along to make it unnecessary."

"Wasn't it hard going?"

"Oh, yes, but then, ye see," grinned MacIndoe, "the foreman always knew who was givin' the widow a half-turn, and he'd see that that man got sent where the coal came a little easy."

There are endless sights in the mining country which to the outsider are as surprising as this magnificent clan loyalty. There is no huddling of shabby tenements such as make many of the Pennsylvania mining towns a scene of misery, especially now that the depression has slowed the mines' operation. In Garrett and Allegany the towns have scattered houses, mainly neat and almost always with a garden patch about them so that many a kitchen bill is kept down by the produce which the family or the miner himself in non-mining moments has grown within reaching distance of the stove.

On a hillside near Kitzmiller was encountered a little boy working in the field with a Shetland pony. One realized with a start that this was a hard working pony on "vacation," for normally he is occupied at mining himself. While electric motors pull the trains of coal ears out of the "main headings" the cars are pulled along singly through the interior cross-headings by horse or mule. And in those tunnels where narrow veins have necessitated low ceilings, too low to admit a horse, the sturdy little Shetland works, strange sight to city men who think of the pony's proper place as between the thills of a child's runabout.

In the town of Barton in the 1930 drought James MacDonald set about boring a deeper well. To his astonishment up from a crevice alongside his well-pipe came a flood not of water but of gas. He scrambled about and got the flow checked, and then had it led into a pipe to his nearby house-cellar. Thus confined, it obligingly heated his house through the winter. Through some oddity of atmospheric pressure it ceased to flow in the spring, but now with cold weather back has most considerately resumed its steady flow.

Another and less welcome conflagration exists in two or three spots of that section, notably under the mighty Vale Summit where, traditionally, one Tom Brown some forty years ago wanted to ventilate his mine. So he set up a stove to start a current of air. It started more than that, for it ignited the "wild coal", as they call the small veins of coal above the big commercial veins, and Tom Brown's coal mine keeps on burning to this day, melting the snows even of a Frostburg winter, defying the floods of water that exasperated coal operators have diverted to it, defying even concrete and stone walls built against it—indeed converting them back to their prehistoric lime—and blazing on endlessly.

When will it end? Who knows? Nothing seems to end in that country, even the Big Vein which observers said was exhausted twenty years ago. It was threatened, too, by the careless methods then in use. But at Sonny Mine, previously mentioned, new methods were lately applied.

The old "pillars" were relocated, and the cross-tunnelings through them, and the "rooms" which in turn were cut open. Then Louis Gerdetz, the engineer who refused to believe the vein was worked out, pinned up all this roof with new-type timbers, chemically treated, and with steel supports. Then he bored new "rooms" through the old pillars, and so kept reducing the size of the pillars, exchanging timber and steel for coal until every pillar was quite gone. At the same time he pulled out all the top coal and the bottom coal which the pioneers had left.

When he got through with a mine, which he had found abandoned by a reckless generation of men although only 33 per cent of the coal had been removed from it, he had salvaged pillars, top and bottom as well as abandoned "breast" coal, getting a yield as high as 90 per cent where his predecessors had been satisfied with 33. It is one of the real marvels of modern mining.

The Big Vein of course will go some day altogether. But smaller veins are already producing 1,500,000 tons a year, against the Big Vein's 1,000,000.

The geologists say there were originally 8,000,000,000 tons of coal in Maryland. In 89 years perhaps 2 per cent has been mined. There seems to be plenty of work ahead for those disposed to find it.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By FRANK P. LITSCHERT

That we are living in strange times and that world conditions are ehanging rapidly, is evident on all sides. The trouble of Japan and China over the Manchurian situation is a case in point. Japanese troops have penetrated Manchuria for the published purpose of protecting Japanese nationals. The Chinese claim that Japan is seeking to hold Manchuria, just as it once seized and held Korea, and threatens war against Japan, making an appeal to the League of Nations. The Japanese reject League intervention, claiming that the Manchurian matter is one for China and Japan to settle between themselves. The League evidently does not think so.

American interest in the matter was quickened when Secretary of State Stimson made the announcement that the "American government, acting independently through its diplomatic representatives, will endeavor to reinforce what the Leagues does and will make clear that it has a keen interest in the Manchurian matter. By this course we avoid any danger of embarrassing the League in the course it is now committed." After further exchange of cables between the State Department and the American consul general in Geneva it was announced that an American observer would "sit in" on the session of the League Council at Geneva if invited by all members of the League.

Later it developed that the Japanese government would object to an American sitting in on the League Council, and for a time it was believed that this might block American participation on the theory that action of the council would have to be unanimous. But later it was decided that the council could regard this question of American participation as a question of procedure rather than a question of principle. With this interpretation it would be possible for an American to sit in by invitation of a majority of the council. A vote was taken and the American was invited in by a vote of 13 to 1, Japan easting the dissenting vote.

Just what the outcome will be it is of course impossible to predict at this time as the international picture is changing every day. It is of course possible, in fact most people regard it as probable, that Japan and China will come to an agreement for discussions between the nations and that the war clouds will scatter. If this happens, all well and good, and the show down on League authority will be reserved for the next crisis.

But if Japan does not come to terms with China and either ignores the League or withdraws from it, that would be something else again. The question would then arise as to what was to be done. Would the League through its principal powers seek to coerce Japan, and if so how far would the powers go. And just how far is Uncle Sam involved in the situation through the State Department's note, and the sending of an observer or participant in the deliberations of the League Council?

These are questions which are now being asked by American newspapers and American statesmen, and it is very likely that the question of our international relations and international procedure will receive a thoro airing at the next session of the Senate. Of course most of the statesmen are reserving comment at this time and there is little discussion for the reason that in times of crisis Americans stand by their government and do not desire to embarrass their State Department. But it is evident from newspaper comment and from the guarded statements of many prominent senators, that there will be a full and free discussion of the international situation in the Senate this winter.

In the meantime it is to be hoped that Japan and China can enter into an agreement for settling their difficulties all by themselves. Such a happy outcome would go far to solve what is now a very grave situation and threatens to become worse.

At Little or No Cost
Avoid the Cold Winter—
Fun for Fish in Florida

Weather prophets say this coming winter will be the severest and most expensive winter in 47 years. Why choose even a normal Winter raid, with its 4 to 10 tons of coal shoveling, heavy clothing and extra food, all additional costs over that required in a mild and Summer-like climate. The depression is slight enough to consider shutting up shop, forgetting business cares and regular as a health invigorating tour and change for five months. Average family savings on coal, clothing and food is easily $250.00 in five months, over a moderate house (furnished) for five months, if the travel could be made at little cost, and if there evening here make things about equal with living there those five months will cost in Florida $200.00. Decreasing possibility of be a possibility of earning something at light fascinating outdoor work. That is how 50,000 members of THE ORDER OF HERMAN, a fishermen's organization, have worked out the problem, and have organized the—

Florida Fishing Pilgrimage

A trip to Florida for five months, sight-seeing, fun-making, fishing and flying moderately and plainly in the artistic sunrays. Nothing in the ocean water of the Gulf Stream, with enough work to keep active and solid rest, equals all there is to be seen in Florida. They have made arrangements to stay January and February in Miami the Southern part of Florida and March, April and May in DeLand in the Northern part of Florida taking advantage of knowledge of experts as to climatic and other conditions. Through the number going they have been able to get a wholesale price upon the fare, effecting an average savings of about $70.00 a person on return trip. So that they can announce that for every person who cares to join with them in their plan a coach fare on their special trains of—

$34.72 From Chicago To Miami and Return
$27.61 From Cincinnati To Miami and Return
$34.10 From St. Louis To Miami and Return
$26.05 From Washington To Miami and Return

All these tickets are good from Dec. 1, 1931 to June 1, 1932 on special trains going direct returning from Miami to DeLand, and from DeLand, and if travel in Pullman is desired berth included at just double price. No meals included.

Upon any of these above special trains reservations must be made and may be boarded on notice at any place on the line at the price named beyond. To further reduce travel cost upon receipt of script of ORDER OF HERMAN will be issued for additional coach fares paid. Thus if you paid $60.00 from St. Paul and return script is good for meals and supplies at Camp Headquarters in Florida. See your railroad agent and ask about ... a trip to Miami and compare the price. Ask him the fare to one of these central points too, to see how much you would save. Write us right away the information we require below and we may be able to effect a further saving for you by arranging a special train for a crowd from your section so as to meet these special trains.

Our Finest Special Train Trips

We are expecting to make up six to ten special trains embodying these features, starting from the 15th of December, 1931, until the 1st of February, 1932. Upon them we furnish all the food you want to eat, free. We also issue script upon ORDER OF HERMAN road in Florida for 50% of such additional coach fares you paid railroad from your place to reach the eastern point from which our special train starts. These script are good for meals and supplies at Camp Headquarters. Thus if you paid $60.00 coach fare from Boston to Cincinnati you get back from $30.00 in script. That reduces your travel expense. You should write at once, giving us the information we require below and reserving space, as there is pioneers may care to take more travel economy by getting up a special train for a crowd from your section.

$65.00 From Chicago or St. Louis to Miami and Return

The trip down takes 18 days from Chicago to Miami, see description below, and when you consider that food is furnished free on trains by us upon the trip and it equals 50% of the price, making the cost to you but half of the above rates. Such food is furnished only from Cincinnati as a center. Compare it with the cost by any means of travel and see for yourself the big savings in travel cost. Of course, you may eat in regular Dining Car of Railroad Company and pay the regular meal charges, and if you do we shall allow you Script of ORDER OF HERMAN for 40% of such charges, provided you show such checks receipted at our Headquarters in Florida. For exactly double this rate ($110.00 from Cincinnati) you may ride in and have berths upon Standard Pullman Sleeping Cars, for the trip.

The first special train of three trips leaves Chicago 2:00 P. M., Dec. 15, 1931, and leaves Cincinnati 11:00 P. M., Dec. 15, 1931, leaves Louisville 8:10 A. M., Dec. 16, 1931, arrives at Nashville, 7:00 A. M., Dec. 16, 1931, where a reception will be held for us by local people and free sight-seeing buses will show us Nashville, Tenn. The train leaves at 10:00 A. M., and arrives at Birmingham, Ala., at 9:45 P. M., where sight-seeing buses will show us Birmingham, winding up with a big banquet and reception and train leaves at 8:00 P. M., for New Orleans arriving there at 7:00 A. M., next morning, Dec. 18, 1931, where a whole 24 hours of sight-seeing, banquets, receptions, dinners and excursions have been arranged for with a big ball on Dec. 19, at night. Train leaves 8 A. M., morning of Dec. 19, for Gulfport, Texas, arriving there at 12 A. M., where there will be big dinner, reception and free sight-seeing around the harbor, etc., and leaves at 3:00 P. M. to Biloxi, Mississippi, where the people of Biloxi want to give us an entertainment, reception and dinner and show us the finest Sea-to-resort on the South. The train leaves 1:30 P. M. Dec. 19, and gets to Mobile, Ala., at 7:00 P. M., where a big parade will be held, an luncheon, reception, a banquet and a ball, and leaves next A. M. at 9:00, for Pensacola, Fla., arriving there at 8:00 A. M., Dec. 20, where Florida will first be under inspection. A big dinner will be given us there and we will leave at 2 P. M., to go to Tallahassee, Fla., the Capital of Florida, where the Governor of the State of Florida will formally welcome us to Florida, and where the capital buildings will be visited. Arriving at Jacksonville, Fla., 9 A. M., on Dec. 21, there will be sight-seeing buses all free to our special tourist guests to arrive at Tampa, Fla., 3 P. M. Dec. 21, where a big ball will be given in our honor, leaving there at midnight we will travel to Sarasota, where another big ball, dinner and reception and eight-seeing trip will be given us all free, and leave Sarasota Dec. 23, at 3 A. M. to reach Lakeland 12 A. M. where after a big public dinner we will leave at 2 P. M. to go to Orlando where another big supper and reception will be given us leaving there at 12:30 P. M. to go to Miami Sector which consists of West Palm Beach, Fort Lauderdale and Miami, where at each place Camp Headquarters of the ORDER OF HERMAN will be maintained and the tourists distributed in these three places of coor reach for each other. At all three places night of Dec. 24, Christmas Eve, there will be big banquets at a big hall where all the tourists from our other special trains and earlier arrivals will meet and open up the season. From Christmas to New Year's will be one round of pleasure for all of each of the three places and the welcoming of others upon the following special trains.

Of course, we have described our big time trip and we invite you to be on it. The more the merrier. But if you cannot go at that time, but later there will be six or ten of these special trains and each of them will receive a similar treatment in tour. Write us when you can go, and even if earlier we will try to get together a sufficient number for such a special train. On March 1st the entire camp will leave Miami Sector and travel by train to DeLand Sector, consisting of Orlando, New Smyrna, and DeLand, all within easy reach of each other, and until May 1, at DeLand Sector as at Miami there will be all kinds of picnics, balls, receptions, musical entertainments, pigs, barbecue and fun-making events with fine fishing between.

On the return trip home the citizens of Atlanta, Ga., will hold a reception, ball and banquet, as that will be the only stop on return trip.

The Order of Herman and Its Camp Employment for Everyone

The ORDER OF HERMAN is a National organization of sportsmen, now has over 47,000 members, ($1.00 per year dues) and promotes comradeship in good sports—As described above they will promote fishing upon this pilgrimage. They furnish to our tourist members on this pilgrimage free medical and legal advice and services, picnics, and meeting grounds once a week, lectures, plans and recreations free during the pilgrimage and convenient stations where food, laundry and other necessities and supplies may be had at cost. This pilgrimage and the trains and tours are for members only; every person on these trains must be a member. Membership is open to only white persons, male or female, no age or other restrictions. Applications must be made on organization blanks and $1.00 membership dues must be paid in advance with application. Every member on this pilgrimage will be given a special badge and other identification upon purchase of tickets.

The ORDER OF HERMAN at these camps needs all kinds of help, particularly persons to man boats, trim, pack and transport fish. The surplus fish that sportsmen catch are donated by them to The ORDER, and so well The ORDER have at prevailing rate all the fish caught by many members, and also pays members to go fishing fishing their catch. We will provide members with employment, we prefer that members shall have three to four days employment each week and aim to so arrange matters. From $2.50 to $5.00 a day is the average remuneration—the aim is to provide ordinary sustenance. Nothing more. It is not an attempt to give employment where a big profit may be had for going.

If You Want to Go With Us on This Pilgrimage; Do This—

Send us 25 cents in silver to help pay the printing and postage necessary to send you details, facts, information, about the trips and copy of the By-Laws of the ORDER OF HERMAN and an official application blank or blanks necessary for you, your family and party, and also write us fully, your name, address, age, date and place of birth, citizenship and race, and the same about each of your party going along. Be sure to inform us if any of them are infirm, crippled or sick, and just what they can do if they require employment. Also give us the nearest railroad station to you and when you want to leave and when you will expect to return. Be sure to write plainly. Also write us name of paper you saw this advertisement in, and be sure to date your letter and give the time of the day you wrote it.

RELIEF ORGANIZATION IS FORMED AT MASS MEETING

Mrs. E. Z. Tower, and William R. Browning, Oakland; Chas. W. Ream, Crellin; William Pendergast, Hutton; H. V. Leighton, Mt. Lake Park; Mrs. E. E. Sollars, Deer Park; and J. W. Friend, Frlendsville.

When district committees have too mueh food and clothing for their particular district, the surplus will be taken to the Central committee store house, to be given out to districts where they are in need. Needs of individual families will be reported to the district committee, and if the committee is doubtful whether or not the family is worthy, the central committee will be called upon to investigate.

"In order that there may be no great expenditure of money," Dr. Clarke stated, "clothing, shoes and food should be voluntarily subscribed by the citizens of the election districts and given to the district committees. The committees may in turn, when giving relief to a family, charge that family for that relief. If the family is unable to pay the money, food supplies, fuel, or an order for so many hours of work may be taken in exchange. If, however, tho family has no medium of exchange, the cost of the relief is mercly charged to them in such a way that they are conscious of that obligation."

In this way, it was pointed out, people would not get the idea that the county or citizens of the county owe them a living, but that they must do something to merit assistance, before assistance is given.

Miss Katharine Kirwan, executive secretary of the Maryland Children's aid society, spoke of the work of her organization within the State. James Fitzwater, George Harvey, and George D. Browning, county commissioners, presided at the meeting.

Committee Holds Meeting

At the Central Committee meeting at the Court House last night, organization was effected and plans were made for giving relief this winter. Charles W. Ream was chosen president; H. V. Leighton, vice-president; B. O. Aiken, secretary, and J. M. Jarboe, treasurer. Three new members of the Central Committee were appointed to represent districts not present at the meeting. These new members are Mrs. Wade H. Lohr, Swanton; Mrs. George Warnick, Bloomington; Mrs. J. Alvin Friend, Sang Run. It was decided that this committee meet the first and third Wednesday of each month.

District committees were discussed and selected so that relief may be given as soon as possible. The announcement of these district committees will be made in the issue of The Republican next Thursday. Every member of every family in Garrett county should select wearing apparel and food that can he given to the committee for relief, the new president stated.

The success of the community relief depends upon the willingness of every man, woman and child in the county to do his or her part.

APOSTOLIC LETTER FROM HIS HOLINESS THE POPE

Published on the Feast of the Guardian Angels, October 2.

The following Apostolic letter, published in all Catholic churches on the Feast of the Guardian Angels, October 2, has been sent to The Republican with the request that it be printed in these columns.

Venerable Brethren:

A new plague menaces, indeed already afflicts a great portion of the flock entrusted to our care, striking more cruelly the less strong through the more strongly loved—the children, the humble, and less monied, the workers and the proletariat.

We refer to the grave pecuniary embarrassment, the financial crisis, which has descended upon every people and with steady and frightened progress is bringing unemployment to every land.

We see great multitudes of honorable, willing workers forced to idleness and reduced, with their families, to extreme indigence; workers who desire nothing better than to earn with the sweat of their brow, as the Divine mandate teaches, the daily bread they beg each morning of their Lord.

Touched by Children's Plight

Their cries of distress move our paternal heart and make us repeat with like tenderness the words which went forth from the most loving heart of the Divine Master as He beheld the crowd faint with hunger: "Misereor super turbam"—"I have compassion on the multitude."

With particular commiseration, however, are we moved to pity at the enormous number of children, most innocent victims of this sad state of affairs. "The little ones have asked for bread, and there was none to break it unto them." In the squalor of misery they are condemned to see fade from their lives the joy and the happiness which these ingenious little souls seek to find about them.

Now winter approaches, and with it the long succession of suffering and privations which the cold season brings especially to the poor and to the helpless young.

Asks Crusade of Charity

Most serious of all, however, is this steady aggravation of the plague of unemployment to which we have made reference. The want of so many families and of their children if not provided for, threatens to push them (which may God avert) to the point of exasperation.

Our fatherly heart has thought with trepidation on all of this, and as our predecessors have done on similar occasions—in particular, our immediate predecesoor, Benedict XV of holy memory—we raise our voice and address our appeal to all who possess a sense of faith and of Christian love; an appeal for what may almost be termed a crusade of charity and relief.

Such a crusade, while it will provide assistance to the body, will give likewise comfort and aid to the soul, creating again a serene confidence, disencumbering the mind of those ugly thoughts which misery is accustomed to implant in man's bosoms. It will quench the flames of rancor and of the passions which rend men, and will awaken and sustain the fires of love and concord and the strong and noble bonds of individual and social peace and prosperity.

All Members of God's Family

It is therefore to a crusade of mercy and love, and unquestionably of sacrifice as well, that we call all, sons of the one Father, members of the one and same great family, God's family, and hence all participants, as children of the same family, of the joy and prosperity and of the sorrow and adversity to which our brothers fall lot.

To this crusade we call all as to a sacred duty, a duty rooted in that commandment so distinctly peculiar to the evangelical law and proclaimed by Jesus Christ as His first and greatest commandment (indeed a compendium and synthesis of all the others) the commandment of charity.

It was this commandment to which our predecessors of happy memory appealed repeatedly with like purpose in the days of hatreds and bitter war. We invoke this most beautiful of commandments now not merely as the supreme and all-embracing duty according to Christian law, but rather as the high hand sublime ideal of all souls which are generous-spirited and more finely keyed to nobleness and to Christian perfection.

Armaments Cited as One Cause

We do not feel it necessary to insist on this with many words for it seems so evident that this generosity of heart alone, this fervor alone of Christian souls with their holy impetus toward dedication and sacrifice for the salvation of their brethren, notably for those most needy and those exciting most compassion, as do the throngs of innocent children, will succeed in overcoming by force of unanimous concord the grave difficulties of the present hour.

And since the unbridled race for armaments is on the one hand the effect of the rivalry among nations and on the other he cause of withdrawal of enormous sums from the public wealth and hence not the smallest of contributors to the current extraordinary crisis, we can not refrain from renewing on this subject the wise admonitions of our predecessors which thus far have not been heard.

We exhort you all, venerable brethren, that with all the means at your disposal, both by preaching and by the press, you seek to illumine the minds and open hearts on this matter, according to the solid dictates of right reason and of the right Christian law.

The thought occurs to us to propose that each of you act as the point of union for the charity and generosity of your faithful and the center of distribution for the relief offered by them.

Prayer, Preaching, the Press

However, if in some diocese it seems more opportune, we see no difficulty in giving the leadership to the respective pastors or to some charitable institution of proven efficiency or of your special confidence.

We have exhorted you to use all means at your disposal—prayer, preaching, the press, but we wish to be the first to call to your faithful, begging them in visceribus Christi to respond with generous charity to our appeal, following you in all that you propose after you have acquainted them with this our apostolic letter.

Since, however, human force without Divine aid will never suffice to gain our purpose, let us life on high fervent prayers to the Giver of every gift that in His infinite mercy He may shorten this period of tribulation.

In the name of all our brothers who suffer let us repeat more fervently than ever the prayer which Christ Himself has taught us, "Give us this day our daily bread."

We council all to recall, for their encouragement and comfort, that the Divine Redeemer will count as done unto Himself whatever we may do for His poor (Matt. 25:40), and that, according to other of His consoling words, whosoever shall receive little bnes in His name has as much as received Him (Matt. 17:10).

The feast which the church celebrates today, then, recalls, as if to give conclusion to our exhortation, the touching words of Jesus, who, in the expression of St. John Chrysostom, after erecting impregnable walls for the souls of children added the warning, "See that you despise not one of these little ones; for I say to you that their angels in heaven always see the face of My Father, who is in heaven."

It will be these angels who, in heaven, will present to the Lord the acts of charity computed by generous hearts in aid of children. They likewise will obtain most copious blessings for those who have taken to heart this sacred cause.

Further, approaching as we are the feast of Christ the King, whose reign and whose peace we have sought to promote since the beginning of our pontificiate, it seems to us very opportune to propose that, as preparation for it, solemn triduums be held in every parish church to implose God to spread abroad thoughts of peace and its gifts.

In augury of which we impart the apostolic benediction to you, venerable brethren, to all who will answer our paternal appeal.

OAKLAND WINS FIRST OF CHAMPION SOCCER GAMES

Defeats Grantsville 6 to 2 Tuesday; Girls Even Fieldball Series

After winning the championship of the Southern division in soccer, Oakland high school got the jump on Grantsville, winners in the Northern division, when they defeated the Grantsville booters 6 to 2, at the fair grounds in Oakland on Tuesday afternoon. Lohr, Maroney and Wolfe booted the field goals for the county seat team.

The two teams — Oakland and Grantsville—will play the second of the series at Grantsville this afternoon, and if Grantsville is successful a third game will be played on neutral territory to decide the championship of the entire county.

Oakland Fieldball Team Winners

The Oakland high school fieldball team, winner of the Southern pennant of the county, gained an even break with Grantsville, winner of the Northern pennant, on Tuesday, when the locals defeated the visitors at the fair grounds, 8 to 4. Their next game will take place on a neutral field.

Last Thursday, Oakland soccer team won the championship of the Southern Division by defeating Kitzmiller at Grantsville, 3 to 2. The fieldball team lost to Grantsville, 7-2.

Oakland High School Notes

Scenes from Treasure Island were presented by the English IA class in the auditorium Tuesday the first period.

The senior class officers are as follows: President, Mary Lynn McIntire; vice-president. Edwin Michael; Secretary, Mona O'Brien; treasurer, Isabel Hoye.

The Square Circle geometry class visited the office of Mr. F. R. Corliss recently where a study was made of surveying instruments. The class reported an extremely profitable trip and at the invitation of Mr. Corliss are planning a surveying trip with him.

The boys of the Future Farmers chapter are practicing daily in judging potatoes in preparation of selceting a team to judge potatoes in the show sponsored by The Republican. Three boys will be chosen to judge the potatoes on Friday and Saturday. There are a number of boys expecting to make exhibits at the show.

AFFIDAVIT VOTERS IN STATE ARE URGED TO ACT

Must Declare Intentions This Week in Order to Vote in 1932

Republican and Democratic leaders in Maryland are impressing upon the members of their party, registered by affidavit, the importance of declaring their intentions of becoming voters before the end of the week and preclude any possibility of their not being able to participate in the presidential election next November.

The affidavit procedure was authorized by the Legislature of 1929, but has since been declared unconstitutional by the Court of Appeals, and all who were placed on the check lists without making declaration of their intentions face disfranchisement.

The Attorney General has ruled that any person registered via the affidavit route must be taken off the registration list if challenged by the proper officials.

Galen L. Tait, chairman of the State Central Committee of the Republican party, has appealed, without avail, to Governor Ritchie to call a special session of the Legislature to repeal the declaration of intentions act, on the statute books since early in the century.

Mr. Tait claimed that unless the action were taken 50,000 new voters faced disfranchisement.

Under the declaration of intention act a prospective citizen must announce his intention of becoming a voter of Maryland and then wait 12 months before being placed on the registration books.

November 8 of this year is the last date to do this in order to be eligible to vote in the November 8, 1932, election.

SCOOP'S COLUMN

By Scoop Himself

As Turk Shartzer said last Friday when all the insides fell out of one of the frankfritters, hanging up in Miller's market,—Hollow Weinie.

And it was quite a successful Hallowe'en, if you ask me, both the parade and the dance. Outside of just a very few hundred at the dance who were a little under the weather, everybody was sober and enjoyed the music. Also, the very few hundred must have enjoyed the music, too, for they stayed until the finish.

There are a lot more things that could be said, but who wants to delve into the past when the present is bad enough and the future looks worse.

Police comb mountains near Wilkes Barre, Pa., for fugitives from prison (probably using brush scythes); lightning plows long furrow in cemetery at Oil City, Pa.; 1,000 die in earthquake near Tokyo, Japan; home brew mash clogs sewage system at Erie, Pa.; three killed in Nicaraguan squabble; Los Angeles aqueduct blasted by vandals; anti-fascist clashes resumed in France; there's a scarcity of sauerkraut and weinies in Berlin; they are having below zero weather in Pt. Barrow; it looks like Bim Gump is going to get married——but Garrett county is still going strong.

Did you ever stop to think (that's doubtful) how lucky you were in being privileged to live in Garrett county?

P. S. Don't think, if it is going to cause too much of a strain.

After the parade Friday night Charlie (sure there are lots of Charlies) met up with two Hallowe'enly dressed ladies, false faces and all. Said Charlie, "I could never love anybody with a face like that." Said one of the false faces, "Well, you have."

Truth will go begging now, especially when the members of the new Ananias club of Mt. Lake hold their regular meetings. Its members are Fred Fleming, Lester Yutzy, Carl Frame, Tom Lipscomb, Ben Harvey, Ollie Sweitzer, Joe Sweitzer, Gene Comerford, John Morgan, Jim Painter, Tom Schooley, Hervey Bittner, and Wiley Welling. Out of that list, it would be hard to say who could hold the office of president, as the president is elected on account of his story telling qualities.

With the hunting season arriving, it looks like a successful club, for several months at least.

After mentioning all those names last week, I received thanks from none of them. They must think they can get along without publicity from me.

VOLUME 55. OAKLAND, GARRETT COUNTY, MARYLAND, NOVEMBER 12, 1931. NUMBER 39.

MORE THAN $18,000 TO BE PAID TO CHRISTMAS CLUBS

Approximately 450 Depositors Living In and Near Oakland to Receive Checks December 1

$600,000,000 IN THE U. S.

More than $18,000 will be sent out from the Oakland banks on December 1 in Christmas Savings Club checks, it was announced today. This is approximately the same amount sent out last year. The money will be distributed to more than 450 depositors in the First National and the Garrett National Banks, it is said.

Six hundred million dollars will be distributed to about twelve million members of the Christmas clubs thruout the entire United States, according to an estimate given out by Herbert F. Rawll, president of the Christmas Club movement. Over sixteen millions of this will be distributed in Maryland. A program to inspire wise and useful spending during the week beginning November 30, to be known as Christmas Club Prosperity Week, is being prepared by local merchants in more than 4,000 communities.

It is the belief that this plan will accomplish a slow and steady recovery to normal conditions by having the public spend wisely and not extravagantly. The average amount to be received by each member is slightly under $50.00.

In the survey just completed bankers uniformly express the opinion that the Christmas Club has made an excellent showing in view of present conditions, and that it will offer an outstanding contribution to stabilizing business activities in the approaching pre-holiday season.

The survey shows, too, an increased use of the Christmas Club as a convenient and easy method of accumulating funds for many necessary expenditures other than normal holiday requirements, such as taxes, insurance premiums and mortgage interest.

The Christmas Club savings feature was established twenty-one years ago in the United States, and six years ago in Garrett county by the First National Bank of Oakland. Five years ago this feature was adopted by the Garrett National Bank of Oakland.

Many of the checks which will be received on December 1 will be cashed and the money spent in the immediate vicinity.

Small Amount Each Week

By depositing small amounts each week those who have taken advantage of the clubs now have a sufficient amount accumulated to meet the demands of Christmas.

Next year's Christmas Savings accounts will be opened in the local banks on Monday, December 7. There are clubs for 25 cents each week; 50 cents, $1.00, $2.00, $3.00 and so on. The money deposited in the banks draw interest which is included in the checks paid at the end of the year.

Teacher Training School Schedule Announced

The Standard Teacher Training school schedule has been arranged as follows: beginning in Grantsville on Sunday evening, November 15, running through the week and closing on Friday evening, November 20; beginning at Kitzmiller Sunday evening, November 22, and continuing for a week. Oakland and Friendsville schools will be arranged later.

The dean and instructor for these schools is to be Miss Lillian McCormick, children's specialist of the Maryland-Delaware Council of Religions Education of Baltimore, well known to all Garrett county Sunday school workers.

Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Townshend, Water street, Oakland, announce the engagement of their daughter, Eleanor Ellsworth Townshend, of Washington, D. C., to Mr. Stanley F. Miller, of New York City. Miss Townshend is associated with government work in Washington, while Mr. Miller, the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Miller, of Silver Spring, Md., is an electrical engineer. The date for the wedding has not been set.

Brotherhood To Meet Tuesday

St. Mark's Lutheran Brotherhood will hold its November meeting in the Sunday school room of the church on Tuesday evening, November 17, at 7:30 o'clock. A program has been prepared and refreshments will be served.

Local Committees Appointed In County-wide Relief Program

Through the cooperation of the citizens of Garrett county local committees in the county-wide relief program have been formed to devise plans for carrying on the work in the various communities. Selections for remaining districts will be made at a later date. The committees for each of the districts are composed of the following:

Accident—Mrs. E. H. Georg, Mrs. John Hetrick, Rev. A. D. Scrogum, Rev. H. H. Fickenscher.

Friendsville—W. J. Glenn, R. O. McCullough, Norval Speelman, Asa H. Rush, F. G. Fox, N. R. Selby, H. J. Black.

Deer Park—Mrs. E. C. Clatterbuck, Mrs. D. R. Hinebaugh, Miss Frances Thrasher, Mrs. H. A. Schmidt, Mrs. J. Thomas Moon.

Oakland—A. D. Naylor, Rev. David Trimble, Mrs. F. E. Rathbun, Mrs. Paul B. Naylor.

Grantsville—W. Day Mullinix, Rev. A. C. Bell, Mrs. Henry F. Durst, Mrs. H. F. Broadwater, Mrs. George D. Edwards.

Crellin—Miss Rosalie Click, W. R. Pendergast, Homer C. Shaffer, B. C. Scott.

Mountain Lake Park—Mrs. Anna Sue Harvey, Miss Emma Hamill, J. L. Fitzwater, J. W. Ream, H. M. Weeks, Britten Martin.

Kitzmiller—R. L. Wilson, Howard A. Marshall, Rev. C. R. Kupfer, Harold A. Adams, John A. Shore.

AUXILIARY OF LEGION TO SEEK LARGER MEMBERSHIP

Local Organization to Assist in Drive From November 4 to 23

All eligible women in the State of Maryland are invited to become members of the American Legion Auxiliary during a membership effort to be conducted by the various units from November 4 to 23. The auxiliary chapter at Oakland will assist in the campaign for new members.

Arrangements for the effort are being completed by Mrs. Harland Johnson, State membership chairman, and a substantial increase is expected to result from the activity.

"Although the Auxiliary has grown rapidly in recent years," Mrs. Johnson stated, "many eligible women still have not availed themselves of their membership privilege. The Auxiliary is open to the mothers, wives, sisters and daughters of American Legion members and of men who were killed in the war or who have died since the end of the conflict. Women who were regularly enlisted in the army or navy during the war, such as army nurses and navy 'yoemanettes', are also eligible.

"The Auxiliary offers interesting social contacts and activities, but primarily it offers an opportunity to go forward with the men of the Legion in peacetime service to the country. Greater need exists for unselfish patriotic service this year than at any time since the war and every eligible woman who holds America dear should be in the Auxiliary doing her part.

"The Auxiliary's activities have as their aim promoting the program of the American Legion. The increased importance of the Legion's work in the affairs of the community, State and nation, is evident to everyone. Every member enrolled in the Auxiliary adds strength to the Legion in its patriotic efforts to serve the country in peace as its members served in war," Mrs. Johnson concluded.

Stolen Automobile Recovered

The Chevrolet coupe belonging to Paul B. Naylor, which disappeared from Oak street fronting St. Paul's M. E. church in Oakland on Sunday morning, October 18, was found by officers at Uniontown, Pa., on last Thursday morning at a point on the same street where the same car was found two or more years ago following its theft. Mr. Naylor went to Uniontown upon being informed of the finding of his car and drove it home.

Home Demonstration Agent's Schedule, November 17 to 20

The following schedule was given out by Miss Margaret Burtis, home demonstration agent, for November 17 to 20, inclusive:

November 17, Hoyes Homemakers Club at 1:30 p. m., at the home of Mrs. W. A. Custer.

November 18, Mountain Lake-Loch Lynn Homemakers Club at 1:30 p. m., at the Ladies' Aid Hall.

November 19, Bittinger Homemakers Club at 1:30 p. m., at the home of Mrs. Wm. Glotfelty. Roll call and a short report on the topic chosen.

November 20, Oakland Homemakers Club, 1:30 p. m., at Court House.

GRANTSVILLE IS WINNER IN COUNTY SOCCER RACE

Defeats Oakland 2 to 0 in 4th Game To Decide Victors

Walter Younkin's field goal from the 20-yard line in the last five minutes of play, gave Grantsville High School a 2 to 0 victory over Oakland High School and the Garrett county championship Monday afternoon in the play-off for the title at Accident.

It was the fourth game of the series between the schools, Oakland having won the first game, Grantsville the second, while the third contest ended in a scoreless tie after 70 minutes of play on Friday.

Three hundred people saw Grantsville win the championship and gain the right to play the Allegany county champions in the first of the inter-county games in the State championship tournament.

Oakland kept the ball in Grantsville's territory throughout most of the game but could not penetrate the defense for a score.

The Grantsville girls' fieldball team won the county fieldball championship last Friday by defeating Oakland High School in the third and deciding game of the series by the score of 6 to 4.

Oakland teams had previously won the championship of the southern division of the county by defeating their Kitzmiller opponents. Grantsville, in gaining the championship of the northern division, defeated Accident and Friendsville teams.

Grantsville will meet Bruce High of Westernport, champions of Allegany county, at Cumberland, on Friday afternoon, at 2:00 o'clock.

FAILINGER IS BEING HELD AS HIT AND RUN DRIVER

Alleged to Have Injured Edward Beachy, 58, Grantsville Farmer

Clyde Failinger of near State Line, is being held under $1,000 bond for his appearance on December 18, at a hearing concerning Edward Beaehy, 58 year old farmer of near Grantsville, who was struck by a hit-and-run motorist Saturday evening, October 24, on the National Highway, a few miles west of Grantsville.

Failinger is charged with failing to stop after a collision, failing to report an accident within 24 hours after its happening, and for reckless driving. Failinger denied the charges. He was brought to, Oakland by Corporal Kreis, of the State police, who investigated the ease, where bond was furnished for his appearance when Mr. Beachy becomes able to testify.

Mr. Beachy has returned to his home from Memorial hospital, Cumberland, where his injuries were treated. He received a fractured right leg, a crushed ankle and severe cuts and abrasions about his head, face and body. Mr. Beachy was walking along the highway alone, returning to his home from High Point Camp, at the top of Negro Mountain, when he was knocked down and painfully injured. Fred Dunn, a neighbor, found him about 9 o'clock.

Truck and Coupe Collide

Allen "Dick" Paugh, driving a Dodge truck, loaded with coal, collided with the Ford coupe, driven by Mrs. Joseph F. Fahey, public health nurse, at the Darby corner, north edge of town, about noon yesterday. No one was injured, although the left front wheel of the truck was broken and the left wheel and fender of the coupe mashed and bent. Both front tires on the coupe were flat. Dr. George Clarke, health officer, was in the car with Mrs. Fahey at the time of the accident.

At a hearing before Justice W. A. Gonder Wednesday afternoon, Paugh was directed to pay for the damage done.

Health Officer Reports Diseases For October

Dr. George E. Clarke, health officer, reports the following diseases for the month of October:

Tuberculosis, 1; typhold fever, 3; scarlet fever, 7; whooping cough, 26; gonorrhea, 1; impetigo, 30; chicken pox, 1; measles, 8; syphilis, 8.

While this shows a slight increase over last month, that increase is not alarming. The scarlet fever cases are in the neighborhood of Lonaconing, and it is felt that this mild flurry has been checked, Dr. Clarke concluded.

OVER 600 HAVE HAD CARS INSPECTED SINCE OCT. 15

Save-a-Life Campaign Will Continue Until November 30

Since October 15 when the "Save-a-Life" campaign began in the State of Maryland, more than 600 automobiles in Oakland and vicinity have been inspected by the six authorized stations, according to a check-up late Wednesday evening.

This is far less than the total number inspected in other years, but the campaign does not end until November 30, and it is expected that all automobiles will then have passed inspection or be subject to arrest by State patrolmen. A number of cars not having stickers have already been stopped by State officiers and their owners told to take them to one of the inspection stations, it was stated.

The official stations around Oakland are Atuo Electric Service, Ray Teets, proprietor; Treacy's garage; Sharps Motor company; E. S. Evans' garage; C. H. Browning's Filling Station, and Kerins Brothers garage.

Of the number thus far inspected, approximately 85 or 90 percent are in good condition. Many people know the requirements of the inspection and get their cars in good condition before bringing them in for official examination, it was stated at one of the stations.

The first of these campaigns was conducted in October, 1927, and a total of 1,003 automobiles were in spected in Oakland with 63 percent O. K. Last year the number in Oakland and vicinity reached more than 1,500. Unsafe breaks and lights are the main adjustments being made by the inspection stations.

TO COLLECT AND REPAIR TOYS FOR CHRISTMAS AID

Scouts Will Gather Games and Playthings for Needy Children

As the local scout troop's share in the Christmas distribution of good cheer, the scouts have decided to repair broken toys of the children of the community and put them in shape for December 25. Since the organization of the county-wide relief committee, the troop felt that the clothing and food needs of the county's distress would be well taken care of, and the decision to make over the old toys was made at the regular meeting of the troop last Friday.

A collection of toys will be made on Saturday, December 4, by the scouts, George Hanst, scoutmaster, announced, and repairs will be made in time to send out a number of holiday boxes. All who have discarded games, toys partly broken and rendered useless, and old toys that no longer interest their own children, are asked to have them ready when the scouts call.

School children who want to assist in this work may bring their toys to either the Oakland Grammar or High schools on Friday, December 3, where they will be collected by the scouts and taken to the city hall where repairs will be made.

A number of the scouts assisted in putting the future ice skating pond in good shape last Saturday when they got out with rakes and a roller and worked under the direction of Rev. D. C. Trimble and Robert Stanton.

Laural Whipkey, Edward Paugh, Joseph Rush, and John Morgan were present with their membership cards at the Friday meeting. Tomorrow's meeting will consist of stunts by the different patrols, games, and a scramble.

Marriage Solemnized

The marriage of Mrs. Elizabeth J. Cross and Mr. Earl F. Teets was solemnized at Lake Ford church, Wednesday, October 28, at 2:30 o'clock, in the presence of about 25 witnesses. The bride is the widow of the late Charles C. Cross, Oakland, and has been residing in Oakland and Keyser for the past several years. Mr. Teets is a farmer of the Lake Ford community. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Charles E. Hawkins, of the M. E. church.

Fined for Misrepresentation

Richard Durst and his father Woodrow Durst, were fined $10 each and costs on the charge of attempting to obtain an automobile driver's license on November 9th, by misrepresentation. The father was charged with assisting in the misrepresentation.

Hale Kirkpatrick and E. L. Brooks, both of Uniontown, Pa., were fined $5.00 each and costs for reckless driving. Both drive trucks.

Grantsville Druggist Has Leg Broken in Accident

Bayard Keller, 43 years old, prominent resident of Grantsville, where he is engaged in the pharmacy business, was injured Monday afternoon at Accident when an automobile struck the open door of his machine and caught his leg between the door and frame of the opening. His leg was fractured just above his ankle. He was taken to the Allegany hospital, Cumberland, where he is under the care of Dr. W. A. Gracie.

Fred. Helbig, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Helbig, of Oakland, was operating the machine which backed into Mr. Keller's car. Both Mr. Keller and young Helbig were attending the soccer game being played by the Grantsville and Oakland High Schools. Mr. Keller was entering his car at the conclusion of the game when the accident occurred.

THIEVES ENTER STORE AT LOCH LYNN SUNDAY NIGHT

Is Second Robbery Within Year At Harvey and Ream Store

For the second time within a year the general store of Harvey and Ream at Loch Lynn Heights, was broken into last Sunday night and a number of articles stolen. No clue as to the identity of the robbers has been discovered. Articles of a similar nature were stolen last May or June and entrance to the building was effected in about the same way upon both occasions.

The robbers removed a pane of glass from a window in the rear of the store and crawled through the opening thus made. The goods stolen consisted of clothing and other materials. It is thought that the stolen goods were carried away in an automobile, as there were traces of wheel tracks near the window. The robbers went into the cellar of the building where they emptied potatoes from burlap sacks and used the sacks for collecting and carrying away the articles.

Although it is impossible to make a complete check-up, the firm estimates that their loss will be from $50 to $100.

Armistice Day Passes Quietly in Oakland

Armistice Day was celebrated quietly in Oakland and Garrett county, the extent of the celebration being the presentation of programs in the schools, after which the children were dismissed for the balance of the day.

Most of the stores and business houses closed at noon in Oakland, and many people journeyed to Grafton or Keyser, W. Va., where celebrations and parades were being held. The Legion drum and bugle corps of Oakland took part in the Keyser parade at 1 o'clock, and in the Grafton parade at 7 o'clock.

There was no parade in Oakland or other demonstration.

Maryland Creating Crop of Christmas Trees

Christmas tree production will be a home industry in a few years, State Forester F. W. Besley has predicted. Most trees now used are shipped in from Canada, Maine and Michigan.

"In the past few years several plantations of evergreens have been established in Maryland," Mr. Besley said. "The trees planted are mostly Norway spruce, but are yet too small to be marketed.

"The plantations have a succession of new trees so there will be an annual supply to harvest. When the crop is ready for market the plantations should prove profitable. They utilize in most cases land which otherwise would be unproductive."

Corporal Markley In Charge of Maryland Police Substation

Corporal A. E. Markley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Markley, of Oakland, has been promoted in the State police force and has been placed in charge of a new substation near Waldorf, south of Washington, D. C. Corporal Markley has five men in his station.

Annual Thanksgiving Service to be in Presbyterian Church

The annual Thanksgiving Day service for Oakland and the community will be held on Thanksgiving morning in the Garrett Memorial Presbyterian church, it has been announced.

The sermon will be delivered by Rev. C. A. Shilke, pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran church.

RED CROSS DRIVE IS NOW UNDER WAY FOR MEMBERS

Several Names Already Reported—Campaign Will Continue Until Thanksgiving Day

COUNTY'S QUOTA IS 600

The 50th anniversary roll call drive of the American Red Cross began yesterday in Garrett county and throughout the nation. Heartened by the proclamation of Mayor Grover C. Stemple, of Oakland, who has pledged his support and asked for the assistance of all citizens of the county, campaign workers have already begun actual solicitation.

The Mayor's proclamation is as follows:

To the Citizens of Garrett County:

WHEREAS, The American Red Cross has designated Armistice Day, November 11, for the beginning of the 50th anniversary Roll Call membership campaign, and

WHEREAS, This organization, by its humanitarian deeds over a half century has shown its willingness and ability to relieve distress and suffering in all parts of the world, now

Therefore, I Grover C. Stemple, Mayor of Oakland, do give my heartiest endorsement to the roll call in Oakland and Garrett county, and recommend that our citizens give their support to this worthy solicitation.

GROVER C. STEMPLE,
Mayor of Oakland.

Names turned into Mrs. E. Z. Tower, county chairman, thus far include a double membership each for Miss Thekla Fundenberg and Mrs. Eliza Fundenberg, summer residents of Oakland; and Mrs. Arthur Naylor, Mrs. Louis Bush, Mrs. Jesse Ashby, Mrs. Harold Dawson, Mrs. C. A. Shilke, Mr. Lloyd Shaffer, Mrs. Donald R. Sincell.

Many calls are coming in daily for assistance, Mrs. Tower stated, and it is most urgent that all contributions possible be made.

The quota for Garrett county this year is 600, and an earnest endeavor is being made by the community chairmen to put Garrett over the top, before the close of the campaign on Thanksgiving Day.

Tuberculosis Association to Hold Annual Dinner

The annual meeting and dinner of the Maryland Tuberculosis Association will be held on Monday evening, November sixteenth, at the Rennert hotel in Baltimore according to an announcement made by Mrs. C. Milton Sincell, of Oakland, Seal Sale chairman for Garrett county. Mrs. Sincell stated that the principal speaker will be Doctor Charles F. Wilinsky, of Boston, Mass. Doctor Wilinsky is Deputy Commissioner of Health, in charge of Child Hygiene and Health Units of Boston.

It is expected that many representatives of the counties, including seal sale chairmen, nurses, and health officers will attend the annual dinner.

Reports of the year's work will be read by William B. Matthews, Managing Director of the Maryland Tuberculosis Association, Doctor Samuel Wolman, President, and Henry F. Baker, Treasurer.

Kitzmiller Man Is In Serious Condition from Rifle Wound

Harry Davis, 22 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bradley Davis, of Kitzmiller, is in a serious condition as a result of a rifle bullet fired by an unknown person, which went thru his abdomen, last Thursday. He is being treated in a Cumberland hospital.

Davis was on the farm of John A. Wilson, about 2 miles east of Kitzmiller when the accident occurred, and it was supposed he was hunting, as he carried a gun.

Four Slightly Injured When Car Goes Over Embankment

Misses Betty Gonder, Gladys Aronhalt, Betty Hardesty and Rose Morgan escaped serious injury and possible death yesterday evening about 5 o'clock when the Ford roadster in which they were riding went over a fifteen foot embankment and turned over in Snowy Creek, at Crellin.

All four received cuts and bruises and were partly covered by water when found by Denver Sanders, of Crellin, and a number of others. The car, owned by Joseph Stanton, had the top and windshield broken.

Lesson for November 15

PAUL IN JERUSALEM

GOLDEN TEXT—For thou shalt be his witness unto all men of what thou hast seen and heard.

LESSON TEXT—Acts 21:17-23:22.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Paul in Trouble.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Paul in Trouble.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Paul Faces His Enemies.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Bearing Testimony in the Holy City.

I. Paul's Vow (21:17-26).

Upon Paul's arrival at Jerusalem representatives of the church there gave him a cordial reception. In order that the brethren in Jerusalem might graciously receive him, it was proposed to him by the elders that he take a Jewish vow to prove that he was in no way opposed to the law. They recognized that such an act would in no way compromise or involve the Gentile brethren. Nor did it compromise his own principle of action; namely, to the Jews he became a Jew and to the Gentiles a Gentile, all things to all men in order to gain them for Christ.

II. Paul's Arrest (21:27-40).

How far this act conciliated the Christian Jews we are not told, but it enraged the unbelieving Jews, causing them to resort to mob law. These maddened Jews seized Paul, dragged him from the temple and beat him mercilessly, intending to put him to death. He was rescued from the mob by the Roman guard. In order to protect him from the murderous frenzy of the mob, the soldiers lifted him upon their shoulders and bore him up the stairs. Paul kept himself under control and politely asked permission of the captain to speak to the people. When he addressed him in Greek and mentioned his Roman citizenship, the captain granted his request.

III. Paul's Defense (22:1-27).

Paul's chief concern was not his own safety. He used this last opportunity to witness unto them of Christ.

1. His claim for a rightful hearing (vv. 1-3).

a. His birth (v. 3). He was a Jew, born in Tarsus, a city of no mean reputation.

b. His education (v. 3). He was educated under the tutorship of Gamaliel, and instructed according to the perfect manner of the law of the fathers.

c. His zeal (v. 3). He was as zealous toward God as the Jews who were trying to destroy him.

2. His former attitude toward Jesus (vv. 4, 5). "I persecuted this way unto the death."

3. How his attitude was changed (vv. 6-16). This change of attitude was brought about by the intervention of the Lord. While on his way to Damascus with authority to bind the Christians at Jerusalem, he was smitten to the ground by a light from heaven, and the voice of the Lord said, "Why persecutest thou me?" When Paul inquired as to what he was to do, he was told to go into Damascus where he would receive instructions. Ananias was sent to him by the Lord for this purpose.

4. The Lord commissioned him to go to the Gentiles (vv. 17-21). It was not of his own will that he preached to the Gentiles but by the Lord's direct commission.

IV. Paul before the Sanhedrin (23:1-10).

The Roman officer in order to learn why Paul was arrested commanded the chief council to assemble and brought Paul before them. This shows that there was an effort made by the Romans to give justice to Paul.

1. Paul's earnest look at the council (vv. 1, 2). This was a solicitation of their honor to give him a fair hearing, and also a look of conscious integrity and unfaltering courage.

2. Paul's stern rebuke of the head of the council. "God shall smite thee, thou whited wall." Paul shows that he had the highest respect for the office, but the man now occupying it was not worthy of it.

3. Paul's appeal to the Pharisees (vv. 6-10). Seeing that he could not get a fair hearing, and perceiving that the body before him was made up of Pharisees and Sadducees, he appealed to the Pharisees, for his preaching had something in common with their belief.

V. The Lord Stood by Paul (v. 11).

He was in great need of grace. He may have begun to question the wisdom of his going to Jerusalem, but the Lord assured him that his course was right.

VI. The Conspiracy to Kill Paul (vv. 18-22).

More than forty men banded together for the purpose of getting Paul out of the way.

The Divine Presence

Of the reality of fellowship with God every religious man is assured. Religion implies such a fellowship of love and grace on the part of God. How such a consciousness brings strength and comfort to a human heart let every one who knows the power of salvation attest.

Tidewater Maryland and Its Hardy Past

DUELS, HORSES AND EATING, OCCUPATIONS OF THE GOOD OLD DAYS

By Mark S. Watson, in the Baltimore Sunday Sun

As the Washington bicentenary approaches, and the Calvert tercentenary as well, interest in the antiquities of the Chesapeake Bay country continues to rise. Only a few days ago came the observance of the tercentenary of the first Christian worship on Maryland soil—on Kent Island. Shortly before that a group had organized a society for the preservation of Maryland antiquities which has ample opportunity to bestir itself with disasters threatening old structures in the city itself.

And now comes still another text, entertaining and attractive to the eye, dealing with Tidewater Maryland, written by Paul Wilstach, whose Tidewater Virginia, Potomac Landings and Mount Vernon have previously made many readers familiar with the country just to the south. It would be astonishing if, after all that has been written on this fruitful theme, Mr. Wilstach were able to present much information that is new; if he has not done that in his gleaning of fact and tradition and plain fable, at least he has revived many a tale that will strike most readers as fresh in viewpoint. Many a Colonial character whom we are in danger of forgetting he revives, and on many a site past which a modern motorist speeds unseeing Tidewater Maryland reenacts episodes which in their day were of very great moment.

Such a site is on the banks of the lower Patuxent, for example. On the south, among other estates, lies one of special interest called Mattaponi, and on the north another called Preston's Clifts. The oddity of the association lies in the fact that Richard Preston was an embattled Puritan who, granted 1,000 acres, took them not up around Severn where there was an active Puritan group, but on the banks of Patuxent, defiantly facing the St. Mary's supporters across the river.

When the Cromwell success in England became assured the Puritans in Maryland started their own revolt against the Catholic Calverts, and Preston's home became the Puritan capitol of Maryland. Here the Puritan assembly met and here were kept the provincial records until the St. Mary's government, reviving, sent out an expedition in 1655 to seize them.

And on the South bank a little later rose the walls of Mattaponi which Charles Calvert (who became the third Lord Baltimore) built for his wife, that Jane Sewall who had been the wife of Calvert's secretary, Henry Sewall. It was Sewall to whom was granted an estate on Choptank bordering a creek which, from the relationship, ever since has gone by the name of Secretary Creek. The little house on that estate to this day is known as Lady Sewall's Manor House.

Within a year of Sewall's death his widow became the Governor's lady. The new home he built for her on the Patuxent soon became something more important than a lady's retreat, for as the Calvert position became the less secure during the days of James II the Provincial Council arranged for garrisoning it and thither the St. Mary's government fled hastily when the 1688 revolution finally broke. There, too, in August, 1689, took place the formal surrender.

Nearby are two other ancient manors. One is Susquehanna, oddly associated with the distant Susquehanna Manor of George Talbot from the strange circumstances that just in front of this Patuxent house Talbot committed the murder which, for all his relationship to Lord Baltimore, sent him a fugitive from justice, to hide out in a cave near his own vast estate north of the Susquehanna river. Another nearby manor is that venerable Long Lane Farm, architecturally famous for its thick walls and its walled chamber to which the family could retreat should Indians burn the farmhouse over their heads.

Mr. Wilstach gives entertaining accounts of how certain names originated, notably that of Spesutie Island, in the northern reaches of the bay. Here, quite simply, dwelt the doughty Nathaniel Utie, who was Baltimore's active supporter in fighting the Dutch and Swedes of the Delaware country who claimed Baltimore's territory. Utie followed the nomenclature of many of his contemporaries in naming his home Utie's Hope, but in his desire to show familiarity with classic tongues employed a Latin form—Spes Utie—which soon became the single word which modern boatmen stumble over.

He speaks of a recent discovery which will be entirely new to most antiquarians of this section, and that is a chart of the Susquehanna river ferries and fords, showing no fewer than seventeen from Harrisburg to Havre de Grace. This is several in excess of the number thought to have existed.

There are refreshing portraits of Marylanders, native and adopted, such as Ebenezer Cooke, who seems to have been a Choptank official poet laureate, and transient guests of the State, such as Noah Webster, the lexicographer, who made some entertaining observations on his neighbors, and Whistler, visiting his Baltimore brother and testing the patience of the engineering draftsmen he knew by sauntering up to their drawing boards and drawing pictures over their carefully stretched paper.

There is a reminder of Luther Martin, whose eminence at the bar was so great and whose financial collapse so complete that in 1822 there was a special tax of $5 levied against every lawyer in the State, to be applied to Martin's living. Mr. Wilstach adds, and who can deny it, that Martin is the only lawyer on record to get so tight while engaged in a case before the Supreme Court of the United States that this august body adjourned long enough to let him sober up.

There are diverting passages which deal with Maryland gayeties, so numerous and continuous as to explain the actor Bearnard's remark that > surely there never was such a permissible corruption of a name as that by which people pronounced this region Merriland.

For example, Eddis' account of St. Tamina's Day (May 1) as "the Colonial festival peculiar to Maryland", on which occasion > the natives wear a piece of buck's tail in their hats or some conspicuous situation. During the course of the evening, generally in the midst of a dance, the company are interruption by the sudden intrusion of a number of persons habited like Indians, who rush violently into the room singing the war song, giving the whoop, and dancing in the style of those people; after which ceremony a collection is made and they retire well satisfied.

If that sort of racket were worked in Chicago these days, editorial writers would be very bitter about Al Capone methods. The author does not trace the relationship between Maryland's Saint Tamina and the redoubtable Chief Tammany, who still makes Manahattan famous.

One Robert Brooke seems to have come to America in search of a holiday at the very outset, for when he came to Patuxent in 1650 he brought his pack of hounds with him. Horse racing was from very early days a dominant activity of the colony and in pre-Revolutionary days had established a universality which shocked young Tudor Fithian. That youth's diary remarks that fully a third of the attendance at one of the races was in mourning—not over the result of the race, either, but lierally over some family demise, as they wore black scarfs. We learn that all afflictions are relative in this world of relativity, for he further remarks that "many who wore black I took notice swore most desperately."

The duels of early days afford Mr. Wilstach high amusement, notably those of the blood-drinking Wrights of Chester river, of whom the most bloodthirsty would seem to have been young Master Gustavus Wright, who at the age of 12, attended his father in a duel with Governor Lloyd. Lloyd held his fire, and then, taking advantage of the dueling rules of the day, deliberately walked up close to his helpless opponent with the grim remark that "Your life, sir, is in my hands."

The doughty Wright Senior stood unflinching but silent, waiting for the disclosures of a very unpromising future. His 12-year-old son, weary of waiting broke the silence. "Papa," he exclaimed, "tell him to shoot and be damned to him." Fortunately, Papa did nothing of the sort, nor Lloyd either.

Mr. Wilstach reports this same 12-year-old in one of his own duels later on, when he would seem to have established something very close to an all-time record for bad marksmanship. The duelists were so angry with each other that they stood only six feet apart, armed with two pistols each, which would seem to promise prompt business for at least one undertaker. Yet Mr. Wright hit his opponent in the hand with one shot and with the other inflicted a flesh wound in the side. His opponent missed Wright altogether.

The author makes one more effort to wind up the familiar delusion that most of the old houses in this country were built of bricks imported from England, by citing the Maryland Historical Society research, which showed only three importations of brick into Maryland, totaling 14,000 bricks. The term "English brick," which has confused so many amateur antiquarians, is an identification of the shape of the brick, to distinguish them from the differently shaped "Dutch brick."

He also attempts to set us straight as to the financial state of many of the early Colonial immigrants, mentioning the thousands who came as indentured servants. One veritable Critchon of a servant he has discovered through an advertisement by a candidate who could "wait on table, curry horses, clean knives, boots and shoes, lay a table, shave and dress wigs, carry a lanthorn and talk French; is as honest as the times will admit and as sober as can be."

But even an educated servant was not sure of kind treatment from the rowdy masters, as witness the numerous suits filed against one Tom Bradnox, who in one complaint is said to have fallen on a hapless maid servant "with 21 blows of a great rope's end," his explanation being that "she did spoil me a batch of bread." They took their eating seriously in Tidewater Maryland.

BITTINGER

On Thursday night of last week we experienced our first foretaste of winter when a light fall of snow came and made the ground gray. On Friday night the mercury fell to sixteen below freezing and in the evening another light fall of snow came out of the east, but immediately after the snow the temperature rose rapidly, bringing a fine, mild day on Sunday.

Dr. George E. Clarke, of Oakland, and County Health Nurse Mrs. Fahey of Grantsville, paid this section an official visit one day last week.

Jack Muer and a friend, of Frostburg, were Sunday callers in this village on Sunday.

Charles Buckle and family, Cumberland, visited relatives here on Sunday.

Jacob Miller and family, of Jennings, were guests at the E. S. Brenneman home here last Sunday afternoon.

Messrs. Lloyd Brenneman, Dennis Brenneman and Lawrence Buckle made a business trip, by motor, to Oakland one day last week.

Rev. Robert Dayton, of near Pinto, conducted a series of meetings in the Glades Mennonite church near this village last week, which meetings were well attended and favorably spoken of.

Merchant Arthur Resh, of Casselman, near Jennings, was a pleasant caller at this village last Sunday.

Mrs. C. C. Beachy entertained a party of eleven friends from Pittsburgh, Pa., at dinner at her home near here last Sunday.

Messrs. William Winterberg and M. McFadden, of Grantsville, were pleasant business callers in this village a few daya ago.

KEMPTON

The monthly meeting of the Parent-Teacher Meeting will be held Thursday evening, October 19.

Mrs. R. D. Tate and Miss Viola Broadwater entertained the following guests at a chop suey dinner and bridge party at the home of Mrs. Tate one evening last week: Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Connaway, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Bailey, Mr. and Mrs. John Marshall, all of Thomas, West Va.; Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Smith, Mr. R. D. Tate and Miss Kathryn Speicher, of Kempton. Three tables of bridge were in play. High prize was won by Mr. M. B. Connaway, and the consolation was given to Mr. John Marshall.

Mr. and Mrs. George Sowers, Jr., were guests of the latter's parents in Bayard on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. William Povish entertained guests from Brownsville, Pa., over the week-end.

Miss Sadie McManus spent last week as the guest of Mrs. Estel Ashfield in Hartmonsville.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Lantz visited the latter's parents in Crellin Sunday.

Mr. Michael Lewis has returned from Friendsville.

Russel Hanline underwent an operation for appendicitis at the City hospital in Elkins on Saturday. He is reported as doing very well.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Gibbs visited the former's parents at Red Oak Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Marshall, of Thomas were Sunday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Tate.

Mr. Charles Ludwig visited friends in Bayard Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Tate, Misses Kathryn Spelcher and Viola Broadwater, Messrs. Dorsey Sowers, Frank Strimel, and Robert Turek, and Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Smith attended the Presbyterian church supper in Fairfax Hall, Thursday evening.

"Mac, the Main Street Line is Out!"

A glow behind the storehouse window. Then flames break through the roof. Fire trucks roar—water pours into the building but the fire creeps relentlessly. In its path is the power line that serves the town and operates the pumps. If the water is shut off the town is doomed.
The firemen work tirelessly—but the fire reaches the line—orders are given to shut off the power.
But—the engineers of your power company have prepared for such an emergency. Phones ring at the substation—the load dispatcher is notified—he issues orders to the operators—circuit breakers are opened—power flows through other lines to the pumps. A tragedy is averted.
An interconnected power system is a safeguard to your community—and to your home. Able engineers and substation operators are working constantly to maintain that safeguard.

Through a Woman's Eyes

WHERE WOMEN ARE LIKE PEARLS—RARE!

ALL aboard for the Balkaas!

For that'a where the milleaium has arrived.

Believe it or not, ia the Balkans there are more men than women—far more. That means more eligible young men and more husbands thaa girls wbo are looking for them!

Not only is thére no competition for husbaads, but the youag men actually pay to get wives. Yes, we have it from absolutely authentic sources in Belgrade that an old Balkan custom still in force uader the present conditions of supply and demaad is the payiag of a "bride-price" by the suitor to the father of the girl whom be wishes to marry.

If news from England about the preponderance of women since the war, and bence the dearth of eligible young men, has been discouragiag, let us concentrate on the good news from tbe Balkans!

And let those youag men beware wbo have the feeling of a rarity and are inclined to be "high hat!" For a girl can always board ship for the Balkans, where she will be properly appreciated!

How interesting it would be to observe the effect of this situation on married life in the Balkaas, to see if the vnlue of a wife, as a precious stonc, rises in the eyes of her husband ia proportioa to her rarity. In a situation wherc for every wife there are three or four wifeless men who are proud to admit, "If you don't want her I want her," it is quite conceivable that every husband would be a good husband!

The situation is interesting, to say the least. All aboard for the Balkans.

THE RIDGE-POLE YAMMERKAT

THIS pestiferous creature is fouad in some of the smaller Hollaad villages, where it perches in large aumbers on the house tops and yammers all night loag. Ia the olden days when storks were pleatiful, they would not stand for the racket, aad the roofs were cleared of the pests every night by raiding storks. The beast is very hard to exterminate, as it has aroaad nineteen lives, although a direct bit from a Dutchman's shoe will knock out seven or eight of them. The yammerkat never eats, so it caanot he starved out.

The creature, as the picture shows, is as thin as a rail, having a matchstick for a body and a spaghetti tail. The head is a aagle peaaut, with split navy bean ears and popcorn nose. Toothpicks aaswer for the legs and split lima beaas for the feet. The differeat parts ars fastened together with chewing gum.

STATE'S HEALTH RECORD FOR 9 MONTHS IS GIVEN

Period Slightly Less Favorable Than In 1930

The health record of the State of Maryland for the first nine months of 1931 is slightly less favorable than that for the corresponding period of 1930, according to a monthly bulletin published by Dr. R. H. Riley, director of the State Department of Health. The death rate for the period from January 1 to September 30, inclusive, was 13.4 per 1,000 population in 1931, as against 13.3 last year.

The number of deaths from typhoid fever decreased from 48 in the summer months of 1930 to 39 in the corresponding period of 1931. Tuberculosis, cancer, diabetes and diseases of the nervous system, the circulatory system, the respiratory system and the puerperal state each had slightly lower rates in 1931 than in 1930.There were increases in the number of deaths reported from measles, epidemic cerebrospinal meningitis and whooping cough.

Among the reported cases of notifiable diseases in Maryland during the first nine months of 1931 Garrett county had the following: Typhoid fever, 6; measles, 7; scarlet fever, 2; whooping cough, 27; diphtheria, 3; influenza, 58; erysipelas, 3; chickenpox, 1; tuberculosis, 5; broncho pneumonia, 19; lobar pneumonia, 10; meningitis, 1; and others, making a total of 177.

Deaths in Garrett county from important contagious diseases included whooping cough,3; diphtheria,1; influenza, 21; tuberculosis, 3. Total number of deaths during this period was 153.

There were 383 births recorded during the first nine months in Garrett county, as against 368 for the corresponding period of 1930.

WASHINGTON FOUGHT WITH THE AIM OF PEACE IN MIND

Armistice Day, as the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission points out, should recall to every American mind George Washington as the devout believer that he was in peace. Throughout the eight years of the Revolutionary War. Generni Washington fought with the aim of peace forever in his mind. During his Presidency his scrupulous efforts to keep the United States out of foreign entanglements had as their aim the single thought of peace.

For Washington, particularly in his later and more mature years, war had lost whatever glamour it might have had in his eyes. To hini, peace was a personal blessing as much as a goal for the people. Peace meant to him the enjoyment of his beloved Mount Vernon with its gracious life and its warm hospitality. This right to peace he felt he had won, by wholehearted devotion to military victory. He knew the value of an honorable peace by having pald its price in sacrifice, in trial, and even in the exposure of his person on the field of battle.

He proved the sincerity of his love of peace again and again, by the very readiness to resort to arms once more, when occasion demanded. When what is known as the "Whlskey Rebellion" threatened for a time, early in his second administration, he lost not a moment in despatching troops to put it down. When he had retired from the Presidency to the enjoyment of Mount Vernon, he cheerfully accepted the responsibility of Commander-in-Chief once more, when our differences with France brought threat of war, Fortunately the storm-cloud passed, but Washington had proved his readiness to resort to the battlefield had necessity beckoned.

But the necessity of war alone induced Washington to take up arms. History records what a fighter he was, when the cause was just and the fight was forced upon him. In every other respect he was a warrior who abhored war.

Gcorge Washington had his Armistice Day when England signed articles of peace with the victorious Colonies in 1783. The moment the cause for which he had fought was won and triumph was a reality, he turned his back on military glory. As soon as decorum permitted, he resigned his commission to Congress and turned his face toward home, never again, he hoped, to be drawn away from peaceful pursuits as a private citizen. And this was the act of a man who, but a year, before, had but to lift his hand to grasp the dictatorial power tendered him by an army that adored him and that raged at the neglect of Congress. His devoted officers virtually begged him to assume monarchial powers, and his only answer was indignant refusal.

So one of the greatest soldiers remained one of the greatest advocates of peace, but, be it remembered, always the peace of honor. As head of the army he proved how honorably a war may be won; as President of the United States he proved how a statesman may preserve peace with honor. On more than one occasion the country, during his two administrations, faced the risk of being drawn into European conflicts. Washington saved the country from the peril, but he saw to it equally well that its honor was in no way sullied.

In the great political classic he left us, the Farewell Address, delivered to the American people as he laid down the Presidency, the note of peace is sounded in lines that should be forever branded in memory:—

" . . nothing is more essential than that permanent, inveterate antipathies against particular nations and passionate attachments for others should be excluded; and that in place of them just and amicable feelings toward all should be cultivated. The Nation which indulges toward another an habitual hatred or an habitual fondness, is in some degree a slave. It is a slave to its animosity or to its affection, either of which is sufficient to lead it astray from its duty and its interests."

The passage ends on a note which counsels freedom from these entanglements for the sole purpose of maintaining our peace.

On Armistice Day this year the country is reminded again of those who gave their lives for country and who sleep in the peace of death. Over their bodies George Washington would pronounce his blessing. In deeds as eloquent as his words, they proclaimed America's faithful adherence to the principal that he laid down for our perpetual guidance—peace as long as it is honorable, but war to the death when it is forced upon us, and always for the purpose of restoring peace again.

Homemakers' Column

By Miss Margaret Kirby Burtis

During the winter months there are certain foods which, if used often, will help to prevent colds and other infections. Although they are used the year round it is important to emphasize them in the winter.

Tomatoes, carrots, green peppers, cabbage (the greener the better), and spinach are particularly good vegetables. Milk, butter and eggs are also important. Liver is the best meat for health that we know of.

The following recipes may help to keep your family in good health during the winter:

Liver Surprise

Two cups celery diced, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ cup water, 8 small onions, 1½ lbs. liver, 2 teaspoonful butter, 2 tablespoons flour. Put celery in bottom of casserole. Trim the liver, but do not slice it. Sprinkle with salt and place on celery. Dot with butter, add water, cover and bake in moderate oven 45 to 50 minutes. Cook carrots and onions in a small amount of water until tender then put in casserole with liver. Thicken the vegetable stock with flour mixed to a smooth paste with a little cold water. Pour over meat and vegetables. Cook 15 minutes longer.

Liver En Casserole

One lb. beef liver, 1 lb. spinach, 2 hard cooked eggs. Cook liver in boiling water for 10 minutes. Put through grinder. Cook spinach for 10 minutes in only the amount of water which clings to leaves after washing. Chop fine. Season liver and place in slightly buttered casserole with chopped hard-boiled eggs. Cover with spinach lightly salted. Dot with butter or cover with strips of bacon and bake 10 or 15 minutes. This may be made of calf's liver, but beef or lamb liver is much less expensive and tastes just as good in this dish.

Spinach Souffle

Put 1½ cups cooked spinach thru a puree sieve, add 2 egg yolks and then fold in the siffly beaten whites. Salt to taste. Place in buttered baking dish and bake in slow oven (300 degrees) till set. Serve with a cheese sause by adding ½ cup of finely cut cheese to 1 cup of thin white sauce.

1727 Students Enrolled In University of Maryland

There are 1727 students enrolled at the University of Maryland, figures compiled by Miss Alma Preinkert, assistant registrar, show. This is an increase of 350 over 1930-31.

Nearly 60 per cent of the students come from within the State, there being 1,005 Marylanders on the rolls. There were 1,006 applications for admission for the 1931-32 term, of which 753 were accepted, 176 refused admission while the applications of 77 are pending for the second semester opening in February.

The new women's dormitory at the University is about ready for occupancy. It will be dedicated December 1 and plans for the occasion now are being made. The dormitory will house about 125. The new women's field house is in use.

Work is progressing rapidly on the men's field house at the University, and it is expected to be completed shortly after January 1. The first contest in the building will be a basket ball game with the Navy on January 23, which will dedicate the structure.

JOIN THE RED CROSS—

The annual Red Cross Roll Call began yesterday and with it the opportunity to contribute to the relief of the poor and distressed, not only of Garrett county, but of the world.

It is unnecessary to mention the work of the organization, because its help in time of trouble to millions of people is too well known to everyone.

It is unnecessary to mention the Red Cross workers who have worked unceasingly wherever needed to alleviate suffering and lend a helping hand at all times, because people are aware of their sacrifices and the spirit in which they were made.

It is unneeessary even to mention the organization, because its integrity and unselfish spirit has never been questioned by anyone.

Knowing the organization, the work it is doing and those who are doing the work, it is only natural that all people should be allowed to contribute and help carry out the spirit of the day to live and help live. It is a privilege to contribute to the Red Cross, and everybody with a steady job should give his comparative mite.

Try it, and then notice the increased "inside feeling" of contentment brought about by having done something worthwhile.

INSPECTION STICKERS—

In this annual Save-a-Life campaign conducted by the State of Maryland, what does your inspection sticker on your windshield mean to you? Does it mean that your car is in good condition, or does it mean that you have "pulled one over" on the State, on your neighbor and on yourself?

The campaign was instituted to lower the accident death rate, automobile accidents and damage to property.

In obtaining your stieker when your automobile is not in condition to be passed, you have helped to defeat the purpose of the examination.

A local garage inspector refused to o. k. a ear until some brakes were adjusted. The owner took the ear away and in ten minutes the garage man saw the same vehicle—with a sticker on it. Somebody else, not so particular, had passed the car, and the temporary expense of having the brakes adjusted was avoided by the owner.

The car is still a menace to people, a potential carrier of serious injury or death, yet it carries a State "approval" on its windshield.

The purpose for which the campaign was instituted is all right, but what good does it do if the incident just cited is a general practice?

TELL THE WORLD—

A message may be an old story to you, but every twenty-four hours there is a fresh group of six thousand people who have never heard of you before.

For them to know the business in which you are engaged, the kinds of articles you sell, and the price you charge, it is necessary to tell them. It is also necessary to repeat it to those to whom you have told it before.

One of the best mediums of telling the immediate community world in which you live is through the newspaper and its advertising columns.

Advertising is not money thrown away. Constant and well directed advertising of one's products will bring large returns.

The Republican is in Oakland for that purpose. It will help you to increase your income.

NO MORE FREE ADS—

An Iowa editor whose courage must be that of a David facing a Goliath or of a Horatius standing alone at the bridge, has put into print what all editors feel, but lack the courage to promulgate. He says that he has become weary of running free advertising, and to prove it he has posted a new scale of prices for space in his valued newspaper.

"Here," he writes, "you will find a schedule of prices, from which no deviation will be made, but we hope to donate a certain percentage of our earnings toward founding an asylum for those feeble-minded people who believe the editor has a soft snap."

For "referring to some gallivanting fellow who is mourned by the entire community, when he will only be missed by the boozers," the charge is $10.00.

For extolling a man's heroism and labelling him as one who will stand steadfastly by his convictions, "when everybody knows he is a moral eoward and would sell out for a dime," the fee is $4.13.

For informing the Excelsior's reading public that a man is "a successful citizen, when everybody knows that he is as lazy as a bench-warmer," $2.75.

For the torturing task of referring to some gossipy female as "an estimable lady whom it is a pleasure to meet and know, when every man would rather see Satan coming," the sum of $3.10 will go into the newspaper's coffers.

Similarly, a stated fee is to be exacted for writing up an ordinary preacher as "an eminent divine," and for "whooping it up for the repeal of the Volstead Act in the interest of the local White Mule Funnel Club," said club must fork over $6.67.

THANKSGIVING

An instrument has lately been invented by Paul Humphrey MacNeil, an American, son of a Scottish artist, which makes it possible, in effect, to "see the sun" even when hidden by clouds or fog or snow. The navigator thus has relief from the uncertainty of dead reckoning when the sun is above the horizon though invisible to ordinary eyes. The "all-weather sextant" detects rays beyond the range of human sight—"recording rays from the clouds in approximately parallel lines to the original rays of the sun."

The President has had to employ such a mental sextant in making his Thanksgiving Day observation. The sun is still shining behind the clouds. Adversity has obscured its direct rays. But there are the secondary rays that parallel those which shine in prosperous unclouded days. They have in them a potency to deepen our spiritual lives, quicken our sympathies and our spirit of sacrifice and strengthen our courage.

It will be difficult for some in distress to give hearty thanks for the "abundant harvests" that have still left them hungry, or for the "knowledge that has multiplied," or for the "education that has advanced," or for the general health that has improved, says the New York Times, adding further: But what we can be thankful for as a nation is that throughout the land those who have are uniting in an unprecedented effort to see that those who are in need shall have "full cause to participate in this day of gratitude to the Almighty." The voluntary sharing, neighbor with neighbor, will not only hallow a tradition that was established in time of extreme hardship, but will strengthen the free institutions of our nation which goes forward with sober determination and a high heart. Whatever the currents or winds, the cloud or fog, we need not have the anxiety of uncertainty. Our course is clear. There is good reason for general thanksgiving in the spirit that prevails throughout the land.

NEEDS OF RURAL SCHOOLS

In a recent report of his studies of rural schools and the children attending them, Prof. Thomas D. Wood, of Columbia University, paints a gloomy picture of the conditions surrounding the country child.

He declares that the average rural school house is the worst type of building that could be imagined and "less fit for its use than prisons, asylums, almshouses, stables, chicken houses and dog kennels are for their uses."

In other words, he makes the charges that better provision is made for criminals, paupers and animals than is made for the school children of the rural districts.

While this is a very strong statement, and may not hold true in the better communities, the fact remains the rural schools are not what they ought to be and in many cases are a disgrace to a civilized nation.

Progress is being made in nearly all the backward states, but it is pitifully slow, as greater numbers of children must be provided for each year and school revenues must be continually increased to keep pace with this normal growth.

If conditions are one-half as bad as Prof. Wood declares them to be, parents should take a more serious interest in the situation and put forth still greater efforts to provide proper school facilities for their children.

PRUDENT TAXATION

Congressional leaders are gathering in Washington prior to the opening session on December 7 to discuss fiscal legislation. Since July 1 the Government has spent $661,000,000 more than it has collected and another considerable deficit is in prospect for this year. An earnest effort will be made to bolster up revenue, probably thru increased taxes, to keep the deficit during these hard times within reasonable limits.

There is an inclination among several members of Congress to promote a reckless program of new taxes. They see only the deficit, which is four times as large as it was at this time last year, and the increase of $1,000,000,000 in the national debt. On this evidence alone they are ready to stampede toward higher taxes to balance the budget.

The tax promoters ought not to lose sight of the fact that during the ten years preceding the depression the people furnished nearly $1,000,000,000 annually for debt reduction purposes, says the Washington Post. In normal times the present tax structure not only yields all the revenue that is necessary to operate the Government, but an enormous annual surplus. From a business standpoint the surplus billions that were poured into the debt fund should be regarded as a reserve, to be drawn upon in periods of emergency. With a tax structure that raises nearly $1,000,000,000 more than is needed for current expenditures in normal times an increase in the national debt during a severe depression is no cause for alarm.

Instead of giving too much consideration to the current deficit farsighted leaders will look at the numerous signs of business recovery. The restoration of better conditions may be regarded as certain. No boom is expected, but a gradual development of prosperity similar to that which has always followed in the wake of a depression. Even a reasonable revival of commerce, industry and employment will swell income tax receipts and reduce the prospective deficit to a much smaller figure than is now estimated.

Some temporary tax upon luxuries may be considered advisable to hasten the return of the Government to a balanced budget. A levy of that nature might not retard the business revival. But it is certain that the situation does not call for drastic new taxes. It is the duty of Congress to make the burden of supporting the Government as light as possible, especially when the people are hard pressed and industry is readjusting itself to new conditions. Every member of Congress ought to be on guard against unnecessary and excessive taxes.

M'ADOO'S SUGGESTION

The latest Democrat of national reputation, and there have been several of them of late, to take a stand against the cancellation of the allied debts owing to the United States, is William G. McAdoo, who was Secretary of the Treasury in President Wilson's cabinet, and who knows something about how the money was loaned to Europe.

In a recently published book, "Crowded Years," Mr. McAdoo declares that the cancellation of the debts would place a heavy burden on the American taxpayer. He offers a suggestion, which has been made before, that Great Britain and France, who owe us the greatest sums, cede to us at least a part of their possessions in the Western Hemisphere as a payment on the debts. The former Secretary of the Treasury says in part:

"If they would transfer to us their West Indian possessions, together with British and French Guiana, we could afford to accept them in liquidation of a large part, perhaps as much as half, of their indebtedness. This is far more than the intrinsic value of the islands, and, to the extent that it is, we would be canceling a large part of the debt. But I am sure that public opinion in the United States would approve this generous treatment, especially if it was provided that a just part of the excess value at which we took the islands and other territorial possessions should be applied by Great Britain and France to a reduction of their claims against Germany."

The debt cancellationalists in the United States are having tough sledding. Practically all of the leading statesmen of both political parties are against cancellation. And it might be well to remember, as one authority recently pointed out that the debts would not be actually cancelled. They would merely be transferred from Europe to the backs of the American taxpayers. Somebody, has to pay them, and it is certainly neither fair nor just to ask the American taxpayers to pay back to Uncle Sam money which was borrowed by European nations. The term war debts, is misleading too, as practically all of the debt incurred before the armistice, has been cancelled. The international bankers want to make their private loans in Germany good, and this is only natural, but there ought to be some better method than shouldering the rest of the cost of the war on to the American taxpayers.

IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

Construction work on the Preston Railway from Hutton to Aurora and points beyond that community, was progressing, with the exception that the steel rails would be received in a few days when the laying of the track would begin.

Local improvements included a fence built in the front and rear of St. Paul's M. E. church, an addition to the residence of David Little in the East End, and a new tin roof on the residence of Dr. J. Lee McComas on Liberty street.

Mr. Turley, plowing in a field on his farm near Oakland, turned up several arrowheads and a stone pestle, the latter used by Indians for grinding corn. An Indian grave, opened near Kingwood, revealed a portion of a skeleton, presumably that of an Indian.

A new boiler of 70 horsepower was received for the saw mill belonging to D. E. Offutt, which was located near the Youghiogheny River bridge west of Oakland.

Prof. E. A. Browning, principal of Oakland public schools, stated that nearly 230 pupils were enrolled in the various departments.

Ground for the new home to be erected for Henry Eggers in the East End of town was staked off by the building contractors, Messrs. Bolden & Spedden. The structure was to face 43 feet on Oak street.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Forest fire loss in Garrett county during the spring months was placed at $120,000.

The municipal pumping station at the north end of Third street caught fire and was considerably damaged as a result.

Indications were that Thanksgiving turkeys would be selling in Oakland at from 15 to 18 cents per pound.

"Uncle" Jacob Hershberger, of near Grantsville, arrived in Oakland with the first snow of the season and predicted thirty-two snow storms with a blizzard or two thrown in for good measure; rains by the score and general bad weather for four or five months.

An advertisement in The Republican by Lawton's garage carried a cut of a Hudson "33', a 1912 foredoor roadster, priced at $1,600, complete.

The cold snap at Mountain Lake Park temporarily interrupted the shipment of apples and potatoes, which had been the largest for many years.

Thanksgiving Day services were announced to be held in the Lutheran church with Rev. A. B. Riker, M. E. minister, delivering the sermon.

An Interesting Fact

In attempting to portray the life and interests of the men and women of the early Colonial period in Maryland—those pioneers who laid the foundation of our State and cemented it with patriotism, love and bravery—perhaps no better example can be found than that of Lieut.-Colonel John Jarboe, whose home was mentioned briefly in last week's Interesting Fact.

Time came in the Province when the small Indian fort, or penthouse was no longer needed for the purposes for which it was built, as danger from the attacks of the savages had passed. More attention could be devoted to social life and visitations among the plantations could be made with less danger.

As can be imagined, the high cost of construction of the better homes necessitated economy in space, so that the problem of sleeping the guests, in addition to the family, really became a problem. But necessity was the mother of invention and the problem was solved by women guests and members of the family retiring cross-wise of the large old-fashioned four-poster, sometimes in rows of four, while the men "took pot luck." Only the most intimate friends stayed over night, unless detained by unforseen incidents, the rest leaving early in the evening, lighting their way by pine torches, following a trail of hacked trees, marking their way home through the virgin forest.

But fox-hunting, horse racing, entertainment and revelry were but incidents in the lives of the men folk, for we read in "Homes of the Cavaliers" that Jarboe aided Lord Baltimore in the settlement of his boundary disputes, along with Cresap and other Baltimore adherents, and on at least one occasion was active in the defense of East St. Mary's against the attacks of the Nanticoke Indians in 1667-68.

Then, as now, laws and customs were sometimes flexed to meet the demands of friendship and merit. It will be remembered that under the "Conditions of Plantations" only persons of British or Irish parentage were eligible to receive land grants in the Colony. To meet the situation (and we suspect Mr. Jarboe was the immediate concern of Lord Baltimore) an amendment was made to the "Conditions" whereby it was declared that "divers Frenchmen" and some other people who were already inhabitants of the Colony, should be eligible for land grants. And it was further declared in 1661 by Governor Philip Calvert that John Jorboe, while subject to the Crown of France was, at the same time, a "free denizen" of Maryland, with all the rights of a native-born Marylander. Thus it was that Lieut.-Colonel Jarboe was made eligible as a landed proprietor and the holder of important offices under the proprietary government.

DAILY RECORD OF ONE OF THE STATE HEALTH UNITS

Bad News and Good News Is Received Every Day at Offices

Here are some pages from the daily record of the health officer of one of the Maryland counties. In calling attention to them, Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health, said: "These pages show what is happening in one section of the State. They are equally true of other parts of Maryland and I wish that mothers and fathers who have not had their children protected against diphtheria would read them and would lose no more time in having their children safeguarded against this unneceesary disease. Here are the extracts:

"'Several eases of diphtheria have been reported in the neighboring county. As the disease was unsuspected, there was no control of the contacts and there is no telling how much the condition in that section may affect the health and welfare of the people in this district . . A child coming in contact with a mild case is just as likely to have a severe case as though the first case had been severe. For this reason, I am urging the parents to take all children between the ages of one and twelve years (who are not already protected) to their doctors to be immunized against the disease before it is too late. It takes at least six weeks to get complete and permanent protection. It will not do to wait until after a child has been exposed to the disease. . . .

"'Parents are responding nicely. One doctor started this treatment for more than forty children this week. The necessary material has been distributed to all doctors in the county. Diphtheria is an unnecessary disease. The protection is simple and without danger. My advice to parents is to 'get busy.' It is better to be sure than sorry.

"'A physician from . . . called at my office and reported that he had just been called to see a pre-school child who was desperately ill with diphtheria and that it was necessary to rush her to the hospital. . . An older sister of the child had been having quite a sore throat, but was only out of school one day. The older child's throat looks as though she may have had the disease. A culture has been taken. . . .

"'Another doctor from the same place called on me today and while he told me of trouble, the picture was so different that I call it good news. A case came to him that was so mild that it would not have been recognized as diphtheria if the parents had not been particularly watchful. About three weeks ago the patient received a toxoid treatment for protection against diphtheria. We have not hoped for protection in such a short time, but apparently the mildness of the attack was due to the toxoid. . .

"'More good news. One of the children in this district was at school for nearly a week after diphtheria had developed. Practically all of her classmates had been protected against the disease. So far, they have not shown any signs of it. How different all this is from the dreadful epidemics that used to sweep the country!"

HOLLY AND OTHER GREENS CAN BECOME MARKETABLE

Christmas Business Could Be Built Up, Says State Forester

"Holly, especially that with berries, is the most prized of our Christmas greens," says F. W. Besley, state forester. "It does not grow in the North where it is much in demand so there is a good market for it if properly gathered and handled."

There is no reason, says the State Forester, why a good Christmas business cannot be built up by farmers and other landowners who have large quantities of holly and other greens growing in the woods.

A letter received by Mr. Besley last week from a northern dealer is to the point:

"Do you know of anyone in Maryland who is harvesting holly systematically? All we are able to get up here is what is broken off any way to get it, regardless of the future crop.

"If you could find anyone who is harvesting holly is a neat, systematic way so as to insure the future crop, we should be glad to trade with him. The way the bushes and trees are broken down and smashed exasperates us.

"We believe that the Christmas greens industry should be handled the same as growing any other crop, and it goes against the grain to have to buy from people who have no regard for the future of the industry."

The holly business alone would be worth many thousands of dollars to the landowners of the State if conducted properly, it is said. Two things are required: First, stop vandalism by enforcing the law against trespassers (it is a misdemenaor punishable by fine or imprisonment to take holly or other greens from the property of another), and secondly, cut with pruners the ends of the twigs and branches without mutilating the tree. This will insure succeeding crops and make the business permanent.

51 Millionaires of Osage Tribe Extras In Film

Fifty-one millionaires appeared as "extras" in Radio Pictures' "Cimarron," which is to be presented to Oakland audiences in the Maryland Theatre on Friday and Saturday, November 13 and 14.

Chief Bacon Rind, 80-year-old Osage Indian, and fifty of his tribesmen journeyed to Hollywood to appear in the Edna Ferber epic to insure authentic Indian types.

They are among the richest men in the United States, as a result of the oil fields developed on their lands in the Osage nation.

Louis Brave, full-blooded Osage and university graduate, acted as interpreter for the Indians.

"Cimarron," a story dealing with early Indian Territory history and the Oklahoma land rush in 1889, was directed by Wesley Ruggles. Richard Dix is the star.

Mrs. Grant To Speak at Grace M. E. Church

A feature of the services at the Grace Methodist Episcopal church, at 11 o'clock Sunday morning, will be an address by Mrs. Patience Williams Grant, wife of Dr. William W. Grant, of Oakland. Special music will be rendered by the choir under the direction of Mrs. A. A. Wilson. The annual thank offering for poor children will be received.

Mrs. Grant is a dramatic art reader of much talent and is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Williams, Virginia avenue, and a sister of Dr. Frederick Williams, this city. She taught school here for several years and was teacher of story telling during the summer school of missions at Mountain Lake Park in August. Mrs. Grant also had charge of similar work for the United Sunday School Association of Fairmont and Morgantown, West Va.

Mrs. Grant will give several Biblical readings at the services Sunday morning. The services will be under the direction of the Woman's Home Missionary Union of the church and will be open to the public.—Cumberland News.

SAVAGE RIVER GROUP TO SELL HUNTING PRIVILEGES

Organization Has Jurisdiction Over 7,000 Acres of Forest Land

The Savage River Fish and Game Protective Association, organized five years ago for the purpose of stocking streams with fish, protecting game and averting forest fires over 7,000 acres of land in Garrett county, is now making arrangements to sell hunting privileges on the tract during the season which opens November 15 and continues until December 31.

The area mentioned is said to be rich in stock of rabbits, squirrels, wild turkeys and pheasants and a few wild deer.

It is said that seventeen deer were turned out on the Deep Creek reserve in Garrett county one year ago. The game migrated from the reserve to Jonas Broadwater's farm, on the Savage River valley where they bred last may.

Elmer Green, game warden in Garrett county, reports the area also is plentiful in pheasants.

The idea of selling hunting and shooting privileges is chiefly to raise money to pay expenses incurred in stocking streams and fighting fires and protecting game for Maryland sportsmen.

Efforts in fire fighting resulted in confining ten different fires in the past season to less than 150 acres out of the 7,000 acres, it is avered.

The streams are said to be filled with rainbow and brook trout and have been protected by the organization.

The officers of the association are: Raymond Beeman, president; J. O. Wilhelm, vice president, and Elmer Green, secretary and treasurer. The latter officer is also a district game warden and watchman over the above mentioned tract.

Members of the association are: Orval Stark, Avilton; Thomas Weir, Lonaconing; Joseph Green, Charles A. Green, east side of Savage Mountain; John Clark, West side of Savage Mountain; Clarence Green, Samuel Warnick, Mrs. David Warnick, Jonas Broadwater, Virgil Sides, Oliver Broadwater, Savage River valley.

Oakland High School Notes

Basketball season will soon be here. Practice will start on the 16th of November. Both the Oakland boys and girls teams are going to show the same fight in basketball as was shown in soccer and fieldball. Work is starting in the preparation of the basketball hall. The baskets and banking boards will be erected and some new equipment has been ordered.

On Armistice Day the soccer team met the Oakland Independents. They won over the Indcpendents by a score of 3-1.

A program was given by the senior class in celebration of Armistice Day. After a brief talk on the subject: "How to Promote Peace," by Rev. C. A. Shilke, several impressive talks and recitations were given by members of the senior class.

The glee club was introduced for the first time and enlivened the program with several appropriate songs.

Pictures and Portraits Are Now Taken Instantaneously

The days of looking at the photographer's "birdie" are numbered since science, with one of its newest tricks, has made it unnecessary to hold still while a portrait is being taken, according to James Bell, local photographer.

Mr. Bell has experimented successfully with the new super-sensitive type of film which will take a picture instantaneously, as compared with the one or two second exposure which was necessary in the past, and because of which the subject had to hold a fixed expression and "pose".

The advantage of shorter exposure is expected by Mr. Bell to be especially noticeable in photography of children. Mr. Bell has also installed a new lighting system, and this, added to the supersensitive film, which is five times faster than those formerly used, enables him to make instantaneous portraits of difficult subjects either in the home or in the studio.

DIED.

MRS. ELLA LOWDERMILK

Mrs. Ella Lowdermilk, wife of the late John Milton Lowdermilk, died at an early hour Monday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Victor Frazee.

She was born near Meyersdale, Pa., June, 1851, being a few months past 80 years of age. She was the daughter of the late David and Phoebe Koontz, Meyersdale, and is survived by four sons and one daughter; Percy, comptroller for the Braeburn Alloy Steel Co., of Braeburn, Pa.; Alvin, chief accountant of the Spangelfaut Steel Co., Pittsburgh, Pa.; Burns, chief electrician for the Hope Natural Gas company, Clarksburg, W. Va.; and Harry, employed by the Hope Natural Gas company, at Charleston, W. Va.; and Mrs. Victor Frazee, at home. Four children preceded her to the grave. One sister, Miss Mary Koontz, also survives.

The deceased was a member of the M. E. church at Hoyes and was held in high esteem. Funeral services were conducted Wednesday afternoon at the M. E. church, Rev. T. E. Shea, officiating.

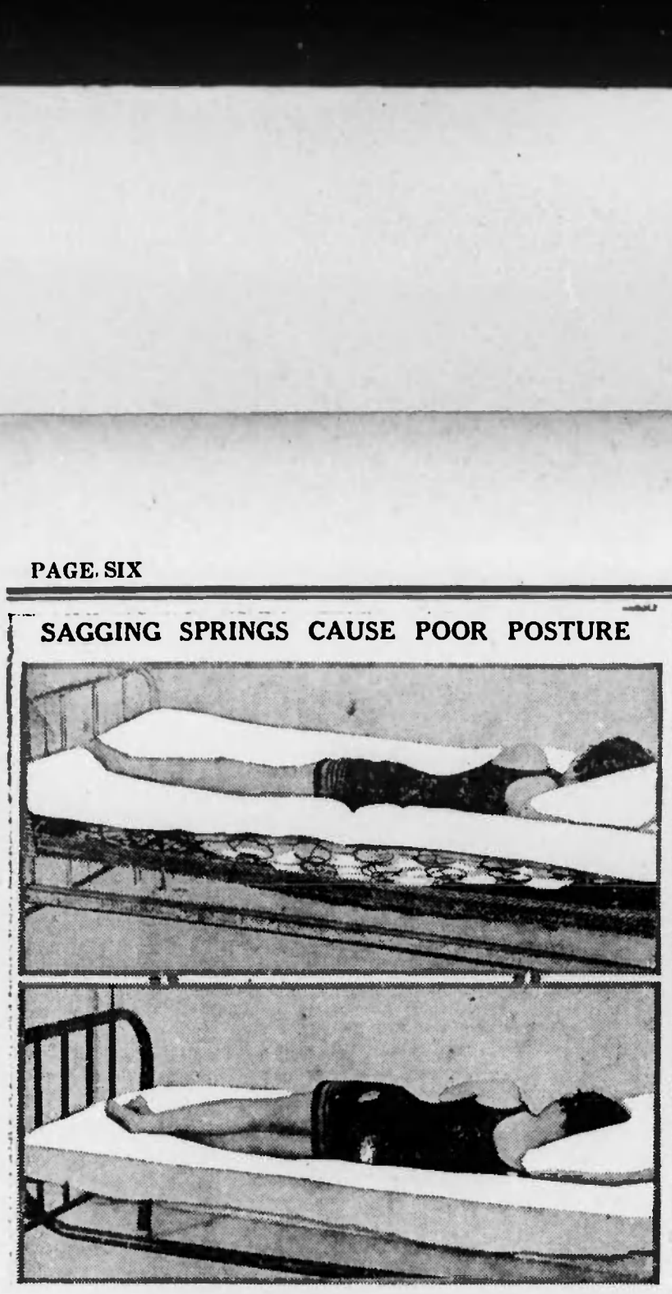
SAGGING SPRINGS CAUSE POOR POSTURE



One Picture Shows Bad Sleeping Posture Produced by Poor Bed Springs, the Other How Much Better It Is to Lie on Firm, Level Springs.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)—WNU Service.

Good posture should be mnintained during the whole of the twenty-four hours, in standing, sitting, walking, sleeping, working, and playing. Extension workers of the United States Depnrtment of Agriculture and state agricultural colleges are constantly showing farm women through home demonstrntion clubs, the effects of good and bad posture, and the points that chnracterize good posture at any occupation.

It may be thought that because one knows nothing about what is going on during the hours devoted to sleep, and because the body is in a relaxed state, that posture while sleeping has no eonnection with posture during the waking hours. When it is realized, however, that seven or eight hours out of every twenty-four are usually spent sleeping or lying on a bed, and that no other occupation of the twenty-four hours keeps a person in one place for any period as long as this, the importance of sleeping in a good position, which will improve the posture in the daytime, is quite easily perceptible.

Sagging hed springs can do n great deal of harm. Whether the person sleeping on them lies on the back on the side, the tendency is to produce an unnatural curve in the spine, and if the same position is nlways maintained, this may become permanent. The shoulders and head nre also thro n out of position on n bed that sinks down in the middle, or that causes one unconsciously to twist about in order to be comfortable. Another less direct effect of bed springs on bodily posture is caused by fatigue. One does not rest well in an uncomfortable position, and when the muscles and joints are tired, posture is affected unconsciously.

GOOD CRANBERRY WINTER DESSERT

Hot Puddings Are Most Enjoyable for Most People.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)—WNU Service.

On winter days a steamed pudding often appeals to those members of the household who like a substantial dessert. For most people hot puddings are most enjoyable when the preceding part of the meal has not been too filling. They should not be planned for the end of a rich, heavy dinner. The following recipe for steamed cranberry pudding is from the bureau of home economics of the United States Department of Agriculture.

2 cups cranberries
1½ cups sifted soft-wheat flour
2 tsp. baking powder
¾ tsp. salt
¼ cup butter or other fat
½ cup sugar
2 eggs
½ cup milk

Piek over, wnsh and dry the cranberries nnd roll them in two tablespoonfuls of the flour. Sift the rest of the flour with the haking powder and salt. Cream the fat, add the sugar and well-beaten eggs, and add to the dry ingredients alternately with the milk. Fold in the cranberries, turn into a huttered mold, cover, and steam for two hours. Serve hot with sauce made as follows:

1 cup sugar
2 tbs. cornstarch
¼ tsp. salt
2 cups boiling watsr
2 cups cranberries
2 or 4 tbs. butter

Mix the sugar, cornstarch and salt. Add two cups of boiling water, stir until thickened and cook for ten minutes in a double boiler. Meanwhile, cook the cranberries with one cup of water until soft. Press them through a fine sieve nnd ndd this pulp to the cornstnrch mixture. Add the butter and serve hot over the hot cranberry pudding.

Cranberry pie is another delicious dessert. The crust should be prehaked before the cranberries and other ingredients are put in.

2 cups cranberries
1¼ cups sugar
2 tbs. cornstarch
¼ tsp. salt
1¼ cups water
1 tbs. buttsr or other fat
Pastry

Wash and pick over the berries and discard any imperfect ones. Mix thoronghly the sugar, cornstarch, and salt, add the water and cook over direct heat for four minutes; then ndd the butler and cranberries, stir and cook the frult for a few minutes. Pour into a partially bnked crust and put alternate strips of thin pastry over the top of the berries. Bake about 20 minutes at 400 degrees Fahrenhelt, or nntil the strips are lightly brown.

Save Steps

In plnnning a kitchen arrangement, grouping utcnsils and eqnipment at the places where they will actually be used, will save many unnecessary steps and motions. Why walk ten feet ncross a kitchen and back again to get the bread knife if the bread box is kept in another part of the room?

Meat Substitute

Cheese is an excellent meat substitute because it is rich in protein and fat and contains calcium, phosphorus, and vitamin A.

PLAY SUIT MADE WITH GALOSHES

Intended to Shut Out Wind and Rain or Snow.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)—WNU Service.

The winter play suit illustrated was carried out in a new, shower-proof, wind-proof cotton fabric. The intention is to shut out wind and rain or snow so that a child dressed in one of these suits and galoshes can play out of doors in any weather. Several pattern companies have patterns that can be ndapted to the special features of this play suit, which was designed by the burenu of home economics of the United States Department of Agriculture.

The straight collar fits snugly up to the neck. A soft knitted collar may be used equally well. The sleeves are straight, and have the width at the wrist confined hy a loop and button. This is a good plan when a sweater is worn underneath as the close-knit wristband of the sweater will keep out wind.

Part of the fullness of the legs is tnken out by a dart extending from the knee to the bottom. This leaves less hulk to be disposed of under the galoshes. Patch pockets with one corner turned down and caught by a button are placed near the waistline in a convenient position for the child. The upper edge of the pockets is cut on a slant so that child cnn get his hand into them easily.

China's Flood Toll One of World's Greatest Human Sacrifices

Starving flood sufferers rush into water to get food.

A situatiol of stark horror now prevails in the flooded areas of the Yangtze Valley where the receding flood waters a creating bavoc that beggars description, according to a report received by Dr. David A. Brown, Chairman of Flood Relief in China, from the National Flood Relief Commission in China.

Flood Relief in China, an organization jointly formed by the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, the Foreign Missions Conference of North America, and China Famine Relief, U. S. A., is seeking $2,500,000 to buy food and medicine for as many as possible of the tens of n llions of men, women and children facing starvation, disease and death as a result of the catastrophic floods.

In order to avoid a conflict with the country-wide campaign for funds for the relief of the unemployed in the United States, as well as with the annual roll call of the American Red Cross, Dr. Brown has informed Walter S. Gifford, director of the President's organization on unemployment relief, that Flood Relief in China's fund solicitation would be limited to mail appeals only now, and will be resumed nfter November 25th, the date fixed for the close of the unemployment campaign. In reply, Mr. Gifford has expres d his appreciation of this act.

Millions of refugees, rendered homeless and completely destitute by the floods, are living under conditions which give promise of nothing but death, according to the report of the National Flood Relief Commission.

Because the vast Yangtze Valley has been inundated, most of the richest crop-bearing territory in China will produce nothing this year, thus creating an inevitable famine. In addition, the flooded districts must cope with problems of epidemic prevention and rebabilitation.

On the basis of a nation-wide survey of the extent of the damage done by the floods, the commission reports that millions of farmers find themselves homeless and without seeds to plant their crops and buffaloes to till their fields. Almost insuperable difficulties confront the relief workers in the prevention of disease among the refugees who are huddled in improvised camps, where without the slightest attempt at sanitation, an epidemic may break out at any hour and spread like wildfire among people weakened by privations.

With millions of Chinese fighting for their lives over the thousands of square miles devastated by the swollen Yangtze River, the National Flood Relief Commission, composed of Chinese and prominent foreigners resident in China, is seeking financial assistance from the people of the entire world in order to cope with the present situation.

"While the task is not beyond human effort," the commission declares, "it is of such magnitude that only the co-operation of the people of the world can insure its success."

National Headquarters for Flood Relief in China have been opened in New York City at 205 East 42nd Street, where contributions are being received for dispatch to China.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

Christine Ackerman vs. Charles W. Ackerman.
No. 3044 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to proeure a divorce a vinculo matrimonii by the plaintiff from the defendant.

The bill states:

1. That on April 19, 1923, she was married to a certain Charles W. Ackerman, of Fayette county, Pennsylvania, with whom she lived as his wife until April 23, 1925, and again from Aprii, 1928, to July 4, 1928, during which time they resided at the home of your oratrix in Garrett county, Maryland.

2. That, though the conduct of your oratrix towards her husband, the said Charles W. Ackerman, has always been kind, affectionate and above reproach, the said Charles W. Ackerman has, without any just cause or reason, abandoned and deserted her, and has declared his intention to live with her no longer, and such abandonment has continued uninterruptedly for at least three years and is deliberate and final, and the separation of the parties beyond any reasonable expectation of reconciliation.

3. That on the 3rd day of December, 1929, a decree of divorce a mensa et thoro was granted to your oratrix by this Honorable Court as against the said Charles W. Ackerman, the same being No. 2904 Equity in this Court, since which time your oratrix has neither seen nor heard directly from the said defendant.

4. That your oratrix and the said defendant, Charles W. Ackerman, have had no children born to them from said marriage.

5. That your oratrix resides in the State of Maryland and the defendant is a non-resident of the State of Maryland, whose present place of residence is unknown to your oratrix, but whose last known address was Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

The bill then prays for a divorce a vinculo matrimonii of the plaintiff from the defendant, for general relief and for an order of publication.

IT IS THEREUPON, This 11th day of November, 1931, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, in Equity, that the plaintiff by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Garrett County, Maryland, once in each of four successive weeks before the 11th day of December, 1931, giving notice to the said absent defendant of the object and substance of this bill, warning him to appear in this Court, in person or by solicitor, on or before the 28th day of December, 1931, to show cause, if any he has, why a decree should not be passed as prayed.

HER WHIRLWIND CAREER

By FANNIE HURST

(©, 1931, McClure Newspaper Syndicate.) WNU Service.

LUELLA MORSE was one of those girls who turn efficient, so to speak, owing to the demands of circumstance.

She had not been educated toward that end.

A girls' finishing school in the East and a pretty sound musical training had endowed her with the comfortable veneer of one whose life seems destined for easy places.

Luella's life, however, did not turn out that way at all. When she was twenty-one, satisfactorily returned to her snug home from her smug finishing school and living the busy life of the society girl in her Middle West city, fortune suddenly turned a cold shoulder. Within four months she was not only orphaned, but found herself seated among the ruins of family splendor that had apparently been only papier mache.

Luella's father, who, ever since she could remember, had maintained a pleasant, large household, sufficient servants to relieve his wife and daughter of creature concern, two automobiles at least and plenty of hospitality for visitors, left an estate which, after the debts were paid and a thousand undreamed obligations met, netted his startled daughter just seven hundred dollars.

It was a rather appalling situation, because if any girl seemed unfitted for the strenuous procedures of a business woman's life, that girl was the pretty and frail Luella.

She had always blended so congenially into the pattern mapped out for her by socially ambitious parents. She had done just the right and normal things for a girl in her position. She had never been a problem; never been one of those girls filled with mystifying desires and unrests.

But like so many human beings who, under pressure, show undreamed of possibilities, Luella responded to the change of circumstances in a fashion that fairly took away the breath of the community.

After a month or two of inevitable collapse and bewilderment, the troubled young woman, refusing various offers of friends to tide her over the immediate future confronting her, took matters upon her own shoulders, so to speak.

And of all enterprises for a girl of Luella's gentle breeding to enter! Within six months after her parents' death, Luella was in the real estate business. Not, it is true, that she had selected it; more specifically, it had selected her. That is, after weeks of aimless searching she had finally stumbled across an opening in a real estate office where, on no salary, but a commission basis, she was given the opportunity to prove her fettle and her nettle in salesmanship.

Her whirlwind career as a real estate promoter in a district covering her own city and the countryside within a twenty-mile radius, was one which was to make local history. How it all came about, how her enterprise, her aggressiveness and her incredible tenacity focused themselves on real estate values, immediate and future, has already become legend.

Unexplainable, least of all to herself, except that her dogged determination to make good gripped her from the first day of her entrance into this business, was the fact that within five years the Morse "family house" had become one of the dominant architectural features of the city.

Before she was thirty Luella Morse was undoubtedly the foremost real estate promoter in her part of the country. Hundreds of modern apartment houses, built along lines originally designed by her, dominated the streets of the city. Her fame as a sociologist had transcended far beyond her own state and, in making possible these tabloid homes for families in moderate circumstances, she was declared by many to have emancipated the family from many of its creature oppressions and woes.

The Morse homes, which were designed in units graduated to the needs of families of various sizes, were the last word in efficiency. Everything in them was modeled along lines calculated to destroy the deadly and deadening effects of household drudgery upon women. The living rooms were models of comfortable efficiency and rounded corners. A minimum number of dust-catching surfaces. Bedrooms with disappearing beds. Kitchenettes that were electrical marvels.

There was not a detail in modern housekeeping that Luella Morse had not figured out with power and simplicity. She was honored not only in her own community but the country over. She had made possible economy, comfort and luxuries for the middle class.

When Luella Morse was thirty she was worth two million dollars. She was one of the outstanding success stories for women of her time, and characteristically enough, she herself occupied a Morse home, her life narrowing down to the simplicity she loved. She kept no servants. In a Morse home they were superfluous.

She was the modern efficient woman, all right. She had reduced housekeeping to its lowest terms. Woman said prayerful things of her; the real estate industry bowed to her undoubted financial genius and did honor to the service she had done to humanity.

When Luella was slightly past thirty a situation, which had chiefly been deferred by the unusual trend of her life, arose. For the first time she might be said to have found time to let the business of living wedge its way into her manifold activities.

Through her work she met a sociologist in a local university named Elmer Brown and fell in love with him. He was a man about thirty-eight, a dreamer, an idealist and imbued with much enthusiasm for the achievements of Luella Morse. An enthusiasm which had not to do with her financial success. He frankly regarded her as a sort of Messiah to women. His respect for what she had done was without limit; and he loved Luella.

They were married.

The Morse home by now has become a national institution. Indeed, it is spreading to all parts of the world. The work of Elmer Brown has long since transcended the confines of his university and he now joins his wife in propounding their fine and humanizing schemes.

Meanwhile, the Elmer Browns have time to give thought and consideration to their own lives.

They live in a beautiful old farmhouse which they have bought on the outskirts of the middle western city. It has fourteen rooms and its upkeep is intricate and exacting.

Luella runs the elaborate household herself. Its cares press upon her. Its complexities disturb her. Its servant problems are endless.

Privately, between Elmer and herself, they have decided it is worth it.

Ancient English Castle of Historic Interest

Excavations at the ancient royal castle at Berkhamsted have revealed many interesting details of its early construction. For many years thick undergrowth and a forest of trees have smothered the crumbling walls and crowned the foundations of the keep.

From the embankment of the railway station, which overlooks the ruins, writes J. Dixon-Scott in the London Daily Telegraph, you can now reconstruct the character of the old fortification, with its unusual double moat and large shell keep, which stands against a background of bared trees. You also may regard with some doubt the defensive value of a site overlooked on the north by higher elevations. With the introduction of cannon in the Middle ages its position as a fortress must have become untenable.

Before that time the castle had been the scene of events of historical importance. It was here that London made its submission to William the Norman. The conqueror's half brother, the earl of Mortaigne, to whom the castle and manor were presented, greatly enlarged the old Saxon stronghold. In the Domesday book the castle was valued at £16. The inventory included two arpends of vineyards, an unusual feature, all trace of which has long since disappeared.

In the reign of Henry II the castle and manor reverted to the crown, becoming an occasional royal residence. Edward III and the Black Prince held their courts within its walls. Here, too, King John of France, the illustrious captive of the Black Prince, spent some time of enforced leisure. Richard III died at Berkhamsted, as did his mother, the duchess of York, in 1496.

A variety of military accouterments, coins, broken pottery and glazed tiles have been dug up. Of these tiles, which are reminiscent of Fourteenth-century workmanship, the most interesting are those depicting designs of the fleur-de-lys and one showing the Lion of England.

Historic St. Malo

Brittany, the "Land of the Sea," is one of the oldest lands in the world, and its Druid stones of colossal size date back thousands of years before the Christian era, and like those at Stonehenge in England are visited annually by thousands. St. Malo on the coast has the appearance of a large ship at anchor. It stands on a rock peninsula and is surrounded by massive walls, which were built in the Sixteenth century as a defense against the French and the British. The town is named after a Welsh monk named St. Malo, or Maclou, who held a bishopric here in the Sixth century.

"Thought" in Lower Animals

Some psychological laboratories nowadays look like Noah's ark, for many mind readers are trying to discover whether, or how well, different species of animals think. One trouble with such methods is that animals behave unnaturally in cages. The way R. L. Garner studied animal psychology was better. Instead of putting animals in cages, he caged up himself with a tame chimpanzee in a Congo jungle for 120 days and observed the behavior of the creatures that stared in at him.

Vast Wealth of Tibet

"The Tibetans have so much wealth in their country that if they choose they could wipe off an empire's national debt, by handling them the lump sum in gold," said a traveler, recently returned from Tibet. His opinion is that there are vast alluvial deposits of gold in "the land of the Llamas," and that they represent untold wealth. The Tibetans did not do any mining, but just picked the gold up from the soil. There were also large deposits of silver and copper in Tibet, all awaiting exploitation.

SCOOP'S COLUMN

By Scoop Himself

These are the kind of nights when it is well to "reach for a blanket instead of a sheet." In fact, if you don't, it's just too bad.

What I'm looking for now is a perfume that will overcome soap odor that takes away (b. o.) body odor, and an antiseptic that will overcome the breath caused by the use of an antiseptic which overcomes halitosis (unpleasant breath).

Girl is kept in closet three years in Washington; bullet bounces off of Negro's head in Pittsburgh and hits shooter; war is declared on Japan by Chinese general; Prince Nicholas of Rumania elopes with divorcee not of noble birth; Ambrose Potts and Sylvia are in the quarrel; Joe Jinks is worried; Theodore Dreiser is charged with misconduct; its snowing and below zero somewhere, but Garrett county isn't so bad, after all; now is it?

Thoughts while not entirely unconscious—Saturday morning, walking up and down the street, a pair of bare legs, the rest of the body covered by a fur coat; my football team won on Saturday and I had no bets out; for the first time in many years there will be no December term of court with a jury in attendance; court room scandal inhalers will now have to find another pre-Chriatmas pastime; Berne Teter has a beautiful shiner which looks like a "can fell off the shelf," but he really had a bad fall, striking a steel rail, it's a good excuse for kidding, though; this time last year the town's water supply was at its lowest and baths were scarce.

In time of depression people learn to do without things their parents never had. To be propertly adjusted, the Empress Eugenie hat ought to look as if a horseshoe pitcher had thrown it at the wearer and got a leaner; Oakland High lost a tough soccer game and the county championship on Monday; more power to Grantsville when they play Allegany county; I'll bet the length of an appendicitis incision has nothing on my shin incision, received during the independent game with Grantsville; a report states that there are 120,000,000 cats in the United States, with 7,000,000 of them in New York. If the people still carry their over-supply to the edge of town and drop them like they used to, the Weber's probably feel like the other 113,000,000 are prowling around their barns and hen houses.

When I first started writing this stuff it was lots of fun, but this week it is just a pain in the neck. Then I could occasionally mention Bill Butt, Romanus Rudy, Bet Dawson and a few others and tickle them to death; now they are so used to it that they get sore if they're not mentionad.

I even get dirty looks from the bootleggers for not giving them a little more free advertising—but their time will come!

I used to get ideas and have this written on Monday morning. Now I never get any ideas and have to write it anyway, usually ending up on Wednesday evening or Thursday morning in which event I always get a bawling out from the Boss Editor.

I used to think that writing this column would increase the subscription list of The Republican more than 500 above the old figure. Now I know that 455 is as high as I can expect. I used to think, also, that this column would give me a raise. Now I have given up hope (depression not taken into account).

Did you ever ponder the life of a columnist? He has little present and future, but lots of past. I first wanted to be a fireman, so I could ring the bell at every railroad crossing; next it was lawyer, but a friend persuaded me not to make that mistake. Then it was teaching, but teachers are expected to practice only what they preach, and finally it was newspaper work right at a time when the field was opening up for bootleggers.

That's luck for you. Had I sensed the opportunities that would open up for people with ability, I might have had my name on the front page of all the big papers, instead of it being on the inside, and just a columnist whom nobody loves. (I had better qualify that statement. I hope there is one).

Hizzonor Mayor Stemple came into the office Tuesday afternoon and wouldn't give any good reason for it until I remembered that last Tuesday afternoon he came in and we were all eating some ice cream that George D. had sent over with his compliments. Then it was clear. He thought it was a weekly occurrence. While here he said that the Accident crowd was a bunch of sports, and could they fill you up! In the Mt. Lake robbery last Sunday, Bert Leighton did not have anything taken.

Someone in the office yesterday said they had a note due at the bank and nothing to do it with. Most business places, banks, etc., closed at noon yesterday in celebration of the Armistice. The Postoffice was open all day. It's only two weeks until Thanksgiving. I'm going to give my thanks in Chicago.

A member of the Ananias club of the Park turned in the following about their fishermen:

He riseth up early in the morning and disturbeth the whole household.

Mighty are his preparations.

He goeth forth full of hope.

When the day is far spent, he returneth, smelling of strong drink

And the truth is not in him.

GRANTSVILLE

Woman's Community Club Meeting

The Woman's Community Club meeting held at the home of Miss Christina Winterberg on Wednesday afternoon was largely attended and was quite interesting. The meeting was in charge of Miss Winterberg, who introduced Miss Burtis, the recently appointed Home Demonstrator for the county. Miss Burtis gave a brief outline of the program for the coming year to meet the needs of the club members, and also urged the club to do social welfare work among the people during the approaching winter.

Plans were made to make and furnish clothing for the children in need and also food has been donated to be prepared and served at the Grantsville school for a number of children as a project with the other program.

Dr. Clarke, the county health officer, and Mrs. J. F. Fahey gave a summary of the health program and work they have been doing among the rural one-room schools since the opening of school. Dr. Clarke talked of the relief plan which was organized in Oakland last week to provide food and clothing for those in Garrett county who are not in a position to care for themselves this winter. The committee consists of a central committee and fifteen district committees, one in each election district.

H. C. Edwards was appointed for Grantsville district. He attended a meeting in Oakland Wednesday night and will have outlined plans to work out with the help of each person in the district to relieve the situation.

The annual Christmas party will be held Wednesday, December 2, at the home of Mrs. Hayward Broadwater.

Bridge Club

The Bridge Club was entertained at the home of Mrs. J. F. Fahey on Tuesday night. Three tables were in play, and the prize was won by Mrs. C. O. Bender, high, and Miss Vivian Powers, low.

Missionary Meeting

Mrs. H. P. Miller entertained the Lutheran Missionary Society on Tuesday night at the Stone House Farm. There were twenty-five members and several visitors present. The topic: "Virgin Islands," was discussed by Miss Kate Bannatyne, school supervisor, which was instructive and interesting.

Final plans were made for the annual chicken supper to be held in the social room of the Lutheran church on Thursday night, November 12.

Funeral of Noah Warnick

The funeral of Noah Warnick, who died at his home near Grantsville on Saturday morning, will be held at the Reformed church, Grantsville, on Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock with services at the home at 1 o'clock. Rev. M. A. Keifer, the pastor will officiate. The pallbearers will be members of the church consistory: W. E. Stanton, J. A. Beachy, J. H. Folk, C. O. Bender, J. U. Stanton and N. U. Broadwater. Interment will be in the Grantsville Cemetery.

Mr. Warnick is survived by his wife and the following children, Mrs. H. O. Miller, Grantsville, Mrs. W. H. Dill, Jerome, Pa.; Harry and Dalton Warnick, Cleveland, Ohio; Cecil Warnick, Los Angeles, California, and nine grand children, sisters, one brother, and many other relatives and friends.

Fieldball Team Wins Championship

The girls' fieldball team of Grantsville High School won the championship for Garrett county at the game played with Oakland at Accident, the score bing 6-4. They will play Central High School of Lonaconing, winners of the Allegany county championship, this week, probably in Cumberland.

Likewise Grantsville High School soccer team won the championship of the county in a game played at Accident on Monday with Oakland. The score was 2-0. They will also play the winning team of Allegany county Friday.

Boy Scout News

The following named Boy Scouts have been promoted to the second class: David Paul, Dale Patton, Kenneth Edwards and Otis Kamp. A five-mile hike was taken with their leader, George W. Diefenbach, on Monday evening, when they made use of flash signals and other things they have studied in their scout training.

Teachers' Bridge Club

Miss Fern Folk entertained the Teachers' Bridge Club one evening recently. The prize was awarded to Miss Emma Caulk.

Bridge Club Entertained

The Bridge Club was entertained on Tuesday night by Mrs. N. R. Davis. The prize was won by Mrs. C. O. Keller.

Personal and General News

Mrs. J. H. Dorsey is undergoing treatment at Miners Hospital, Frostburg.

Benny Epstein, Baltimore, is visiting Miss Fern Folk.

Mrs. Ella Keller, who had been visiting Mrs. Annabel Brown, St. Louis, was called home on account of the serious illness of her sister, Mrs. Bruce Liehty, of Meyersdale.

Henry C. Bonig and son Henry, of Lonaconing, recently visited Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Bill.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Reynolds and daughter, Johnstown, visited their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Swauger.

William Bevans, who has been ill the past four months in Washington, D. C., has improved and was brought to the home of his mother, Mrs. Marshall Beachy, by his sister, Mrs. Frances Boucher, who will remain here some time.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Edwards and children visited Mr. and Mrs. Will Edwards at Morgantown.

Edward A. Beachy, who was injured by a hit-and-run motorist two weeks ago on Negro Mountain and had his leg fractured, has returned from Memorial Hospital, where he had been a patient following the mishap.

Miss Almeda Simpson, Washington, Pa., is here visiting her mother, Mrs. Donald Simpson, and her sisters Mrs. H. C. Edwards and Miss Ethel Simpson.

At Little or No Cost Avoid the Cold Winter—

Fun for Fish in Florida

Weather prophets say this year will be the longest and most severe Winter in 47 years. Why shovel snow when a normal Winter void, with its 0 to 10 tons of coal shoveling, heavy clothing and extra food, all additional costs over that required in a mild and Summer-like climate. The depression is slight enough to consider shutting up shop, forgetting business cares and getting an a health invigorating tonic and change for five months. Average family savings on coal, clothing and food is easily $200.00 in five months, and a moderate house (furnished) for five months will cost in Florida $200.00. Decreasing possibility of earning here make things about equal with living there these five months. If the travel could be made at little cost, and if there be a possibility of earning something at light fascinating outdoor work. That is how 90,000 members of THE ORDER OF HERMAN, a fishermen's organization, have worked out the problem, and have organized the—

Florida Fishing Pilgrimage

A trip to Florida for five months, sight-seeing, fun-making, fishing and living moderately and plainly in the actual courses, bathing in the ocean waters of the Gulf Stream, with enough work to keep active and solid rest, seeing all there is to be seen in Florida. They have made arrangements to stay January and February in the Southern part of Florida and March, April and May in DeLand in the Northern part of Florida taking advantage of knowledge of experts as to climate and other conditions. Through the number going they have been able to get a wholesale price upon the fare, effecting an average savings of about $75.00 a person on a return trip. So that they can announce that for every person who cares to join with them in their plan a coach fare on their special trains of—

$34.72 From Chicago To Miami and Return	$27.61 From Cincinnati To Miami and Return	$34.10 From St. Louis To Miami and Return
$26.05 From Washington To Miami and Return

All these tickets are good from Dec. 1, 1931 to June 1, 1932 on special trains going direct returning from Miami to DeLand, and from DeLand, and if travel to Pullman is desired berth included at just double price. No meals included.

Upon any of these above special trains reservations must be made and paid for in advance by boarded on notice at any place on the line the price fixed hereon. To further reduce travel cost 50% of scrips of ORDER OF HERMAN will be issued for the actual coach fares paid. Thus if you paid $60.00 from St. Paul and return to get to Chicago, $30.00 in scrips will be issued to you. This scrips is used for meals and supplies at Camp Headquarters in Florida. See your railroad agent and ask him the cost of such a trip to Miami and compare the price. Ask him the fare to one of these central points too, to see how much you would save. Write us right away the information we require below and we may be able to effect a further saving for you by arranging a special train for a crowd from your section so as to meet these special trains.

Our Finest Special Train Trips

We are expecting to make up six to ten special trains embodying these features, starting from the 15th of December, 1931, until the 1st of February, 1932. Upon them we furnish all the food you want to eat, free. We also issue scrip upon ORDER OF HERMAN good in Florida for 50% of such additional coach fares you paid railroad from your place to reach the centers from which our special train starts. These scrips are good for food and supplies at Camp Headquarters. Thus if you paid for food and supplies at Camp Headquarters. Thus if you paid $30.00 coach fare from Boston to Cincinnati, you get same from us $10.00 in scrip. That reduces your travel expenses. You should write at once, giving us the information we require below and reserving space, etc., and if possible we may save you more travel expense by getting up a special train for a crowd from your section.

$55.00 From Cincinnati to Miami and Return	$65.00 From Chicago or St. Louis to Miami and Return

The trip down takes 10 days from Chicago to Miami, see description below, and when you consider that food is furnished free on trains by us upon the trip and it equals 30% of the price, making the cost to you but half of the above rates. Your food is furnished only from Cincinnati as a center. Compare it with the cost by any means of travel and see for yourself the big saving in travel cost. Of course, you may eat in regular Dining Car of Railroad Company and pay the regular meal charges, and if you do we shall allow you deript of ORDER OF HERMAN for $5.00 of such charges, provided you show such checks receipted at our Headquarters in Florida. For exactly this price ($110.00 from Cincinnati) you may ride in and have berths upon Standard Pullman Sleeping Cars, for the trip. The first special train of these trips leaves Chicago [illegible] Dec. 15, 1931, and leaves Cincinnati 11:35 P. M., Dec. 15, 1931, leaves Louisville 2:10 A. M., Dec. 16, 1931, arrives at Nashville, 7:00 A. M., Dec. 16, 1931, where a reception will be held for us by local people and free sight-seeing buses will show us Nashville, Tenn. Arriving at Jacksonville, Fla., 9 A. M., on Dec. 21, there will be sight-seeing buses all free to our special tourist guests and arrive at Tampa, Fla., 6 P. M. Dec. 21, where a big ball will be given in our honor, having there at midnight we will travel to Sarasota, where another big bath, dinner and reception and sight-seeing trip will be given us all free, and leave Sarasota Dec. 22, at 8 A. M. to see Larkwood 10 A. M. where after a big public dinner we will leave at 2 p. m. to go to Orlando where another big supper and reception will be given us leaving there at 10:00 P. M., to go to Miami Sector which we tourists of West Palm Beach, Fort Lauderdale and Miami, where at each place Camp Headquarters of the ORDER OF HERMAN will be maintained and the tourists distributed in these three places of easy reach for each other. At all three places night of Dec. 24, Christmas Eve, there will be big banquets and a ball where all the tourists [illegible] special trains and earlier arrivals will meet and open up the season. From Christmas to New Year's will be one round of pleasure for all at each of the three places and the welcoming of others upon the following special trains.

Of course, we have described only the times trip and we invite you to be on it. The more the merrier. But if you cannot go at that time, but later there will be six or ten of these special trains and each of them will receive a similar treatment in tour. Write us when you can go, and even if earlier, we will try to get together a sufficient number for such a special train. On March 1st the entire camp will leave Miami Sector and travel by train to DeLand Sector, consisting of Orlando, New Smyrna, and DeLand, all within easy reach of each other, and until May 1, at DeLand Sector as at Miami there will be all kinds of amusements, balls, receptions, musical entertainments, plays, banquets and fun-making events with fine fishing between. On the return trip home the citizens of Atlanta, Ga., will hold a reception, ball and banquet, as that will be the only stop on return trip.

The Order of Herman and Its Camp Employment for Everyone

The ORDER OF HERMAN is a National organization of sportsmen, now has over 47,000 members, ($1.00 per year dues) and promotes comradeship in good sports—As described above they will promote fishing upon this pilgrimage. They furnish to our tourist members on this pilgrimage free medical and legal advice and services, picnics, and meeting grounds once a week, lectures, plays and concertions free during the pilgrimage and convent at stations where food, laundry and other necessities and supplies may be had at cost. This pilgrimage and the trains and tours are for members only; every person on these trains must be a member. Membership is open to only white persons, male or female, no age or other restrictions. Applications must be made on organization blanks and $1.00 membership dues must be paid in advance with application. Every member on this pilgrimage will be given a special badge and other identification upon purchase of tickets.

The ORDER OF HERMAN at these camps needs all kinds of help, particularly persons to man boats, trim, pack and transport fish. The surplus fish that sportsmen catch are donated by them to The ORDER, and as well The ORDER buys at prevailing cash all the fish caught by many members, and also pays members to go fishing taking their catch. We will provide members with employment, we prefer that members shall have three to four days employment each week and aim to so arrange matters. From $0.50 to $1.00 a day is the average compensation—the aim is to provide ordinary sustenance. Nothing more. It is not an attempt to give employment where a big profit may be had for going.

If You Want to Go With Us on This Pilgrimage; Do This—

Send us 25 cents in silver to help pay the printing and postage necessary to send you details, facts, information, about the trips and copy of the By-Laws of the ORDER OF HERMAN and an official application blank or blanks necessary for you, your family and party, and also write us fully, your name, address, age, date and place of birth, citizenship and race, and the same about each of your party going along. Be sure to inform us if any of them are infirm, crippled or sick, and just what they can do if they require employment. Also give us the nearest railroad station to you and when you want to leave and when you will expect to return. Be sure to write plainly. Also write us name of paper you saw this advertisement in, and be sure to date your letter and give the time of the day you wrote it.

Storehouse Secured for Supplies

Under the direction of the Central Committee of Garrett county organized relief work, the local committee for the Mountain Lake Park section met at the Loch Lynn school house last Wednesday evening to plan relief work for the committee. This committee is composed of H. V. Leighton, chairman; John W. Ream, secretary and treasurer; J. L. Fitzwater, Miss Emma Hamill, Miss Mary O'Donnell, Mrs. Anna Sue Harvey, H. M. Weeks, Britten Martin and Virgil Steyer.

A storehouse has been secured in which articles intended for relief work are to be placed until needed. Arrangements have been made so that anyone having foodstuff, such as flour, meat, potatoes, apples, cabbage, canned vegetables or fruits, clothing, underwear, shoes, etc., can leave the same at Martin's store, Mountain Lake Park; Harvey and Ream, or Weeks and Weeks, Loch Lynn, or at Virgil Steyer's, Steyer. These merchants will see that all articles are transferred to the storehouse in Loch Lynn, from which they will be distributed to the needy who will suffer for food and clothing during the winter months, unless aid is given.

Everyone is asked to give something to this urgent need so that no one in the community may suffer. A number of calls have already been received by the committee.

There will be preaching in the M. E. church here on Sunday morning and evening.

In the same church this (Thursday) evening, beginning at five o'clock an oyster supper will be served, and the price is fifty cents.

John W. Brown, of Pittsburgh, was a business visitor at the Park Tuesday.

Mrs. Anne Reppert closed her cottage on Monday and left for Baltimore, where she will spend the winter with her daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Fike spent a few days with friends and relatives in Terra Alta this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. Fleming are spending a week in Fairmont.

P. T. Lipscomb has been at Deep Creek Lake for the past week completing some work.

Mrs. R. L. Cunningham and son L. M. Cunningham, spent a day in the Park this week. They motored here from Fairmont.

Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Frame, of Detroit, Mich., and James Frame, of Fairmont, are guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Frame.

Mr. Tom Collins, of the Monongahela West Penn Company, was a business visitor at the Park this week.

Mrs. Isobel Hill and son Jordon D. Hill will leave the Park the first of the coming week for Florida, where they will spend the winter.

Wiley Welling, Chief Bailiff of the Park, reports that he counted 205 gray and two red squirrels one day in the Park. We believe the story, although some are mean enough to intimate that he is competing with Fred Fleming for the presidency of the Annanias Club.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By FRANK P. LITSCHERT

The recent British election bringing to the Nationalist government the most complete victory in the history of British elections may well be an important step upward out of the world-wide depression. A few weeks ago a great many people were fearful that Great Britain was about to be engulfed in a wave of financial chaos. There were rumors of mutiny in the British navy, the budget was unbalanced and the country had to go off the gold standard. The British Empire had apparently come to the parting of the ways.

That there was a real national crisis, that the nation was faced with the choice of a return to fundamentals or chaos, is not to be doubted. In this hour, the inherent patriotism of the British people asserted itself, and the result was the most decisive blow for nationalism and against international socialism in the history of the country. That this occurred need not surprise those who are in any way familiar with the history of Great Britain. Separated from the mainland by water, the British people were able to form a nation, long before the same thing was possible for the continent. As an island nation the people early became convinced that their national safety rested on a foundation of unity and national defense. National defense took the form of the most powerful navy in the world.

As a result, British tradition is centuries old, and for many generations the people have been convinced that their very existence depended on their national unity and their British traditions. So successful were the efforts of the people that the little island country grew to be an empire on which the sun never set. National traditions of safety were therefore reinforced by national pride. Of late there have been indications that the British empire might disintegrate, that Great Britain might lose its place as the clearing house of the world's business. Whether or not this is true, the fact remains that when the British people realized that their nationalism, and their place in the sun was threatened by economic disaster, and realized the cause of this threatened disintegration, they spoke in no uncertain terms at the ballot-box. The sweeping endorsement of conservatism in government was the result.

There is a lesson for America in this election. The time may come perhaps sooner than many of us realize, when we will be faced with a choice between fundamental principles of government, and national disintegration. Will our answer be as decisive as that of Great Britain? It is true that we have written a glorious history in the short time allotted to us a nation. We do not possess centuries of tradition and national unity, as found in Great Britain, but we do have, or had until recently, an American spirit which balked at no danger and no handicap. The great heart of America is still sound, still adheres to the fundamental principles of American government. But there are abroad in the land forces of disintegration, as powerful as those which almost wreaked havoc in Great Britain. We have men in high places, so called intellectuals, who sneer at patriotism, who decry the teaching of history from an American standpoint, who would destroy our national defense and our constitutional government.

At present they seem to be getting the space in the newspapers, and a great deal more attention than they deserve. What will the result be? If we are to meet the crisis as Great Britain has met it, when our hour as a nation strikes, is it not neccssary that we have a revival of real patriotism and of national thought? There is too much internationalism abroad in the land, too much philosophy which has its roots in Eastern Europe rather than in the soil of America. When we get back to preaching first principles and acting them as well as preaching them, in our religion, in our business and in our home and social life, things will once more adjust themselves and the good ship America will move forward again.

COUNTY AGENT'S COLUMN

J. H. CARTER,
Resident County Agent,

Changes In Fertilizer Law

Maryland is cooperating with eleven other Northeastern States in bringing about changes in fertilizer practices which should prove to be extremely helpful to farmers of the State in buying fertilizers, it is announced by L. E. Bopst, Associate State Chemist, who has charge of the administration of Maryland fertilizer control laws. For a number of years, efforts have been made in this section to provide uniform laws and regulations covering matters of agricultural interest and making possible a clear understanding of the same by the farmers of the Middle Atlantic and Northeastern States.

This effort was accomplished when a new Fertilizer Law was enacted by the last session of the Maryland Legislature and which will become effective January 1, 1932. Among the changes embodied in this new law, is one which requires that after January 1 the nitrogen content of fertilizers must be stated in terms of nitrogen and not in terms of ammonia as has been the custom in past years.

Mr. Bopst points out that the nitrogen in fertilizer is present in many different forms, among which may be mentioned sulphate of ammonia, soda of soda, calcium cyanamid, calcium nitrate, calcium cyanamid, calcium phosphate, tankage, fish meal, cottonseed meal and other animal and plant by-products. However, nitrogen in the ammonia form is present in only a few of these materials. For this reason, among others, it is desirable that the element "nitrogen" and not one of the forms in which it occurs, should be used. One percent of nitrogen is equal to 1.22 percent of ammonia.

New regulations which have been adopted, supplementing the main statute, provide that the percentage of plant food must be stated in whole numbers, that the analysis must be included as a part of the brand name, And that the guarantee on mixed fertilizers shall include only nitrogen, available phosphoric acid and potash soluble in water. Penalty provisions are included which make it possible for the control official to initiate legal action against violators who have been careless in the manufacture of their goods.

As a result of several conferences held during the summer, uniform regulations, which are similar to the provisions of the New Maryland Law, have been adopted in New Jersey, Delaware, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, New York, and in the New England States.

The new law will make it easier for Maryland fertilizer buyers to determine the value of goods that are offered for sale and will also assist manufacturers in keeping down the cost of manufacturing and selling fertilizers.

Control officials desire the cooperation of the fertilizer buying public to the extent of thoroughly acquaining themselves with the changes embodied in the new law in order that confusion may be avoided when it becomes effective.

WEST MARYLAND WARDENS INSPECTED BY OFFICIALS

Need of At Least Three More Fire Towers In County Expressed by Assistant Forester

NEED MORE EQUIPMENT

The forest fire fighters of the Maryland mountains have been given a careful inspection during the past ten days by Assistant Forester Walter J. Quick, Jr., who is in charge of forest protection throughout the State. In making his reports Tuesday to State Forester F. W. Besley, at Baltimore, Mr. Quick emphasized the need for additional fire fighting equipment in order that the forest wardens and their crews might do an efficient job in protecting the Maryland mountains from fire. He pointed out the difficulty of fire control in the mountainous area due to precipitous slopes, scarcity of good roads and poor telephone facilities.

Need Telephone Service

The inspection of the Garrett county wardens was made in company with A. L. Sines, district forest warden for the county. In general, it was found that the wardens had been diligent in kepeing their equipment in good condition and handy for immediate use. Forest fire towers visited at Snaggy Mountain, Thayerville and Bittinger were in operation and plans were considered for improving the service by securing new maps and additional telephone connections. Fires, which are promptly discovered by Garrett county towermen, at times must burn for an hour or more before distant fire fighters can reach the scene, clearly indicating the need for telephone line construction by interested parties in order that forest wardens close to the fires may be notified promptly. The lookout system for Garrett county was found to be only partially developed, large portions of the county being without means of promptly discovering fires. Need for at least three more towers was expressed by Assistant Forester Quick.

Younger Men Desired

In commenting on the fire fighting organization, Mr. Quick indicated that the forest wardens are from among the best citizens of the county and stand especially high in their local communities. Their active interest and loyalty to their task of forest protection are particularly fine. The report to the State Forester, however, recommended the gradual replacement of some of the older wardens by younger men who are better physically able to engage in the arduous task of fire fighting. District Warden Sines announced a special campaign to organize additional fire fighting crews throughout the county so as to provide the wardens with dependable fire fighters instead of groups of inferor laborers that sometimes drifts onto the fire lines.

Extensive Area Involved

In discussing Mr. Quick's report, State Forester Besley, at Baltimore, stated that organized forest protection had existed in Garrett county for well over twenty years. The first tower, however, was built in 1915, but numerous wardens had been commissioned prior to that date. He said that an efficient organization and adequate protection facilities are of prime importance in the county, due to extensive forest areas covering 60 per cent of the county and valuable State forests covering over 30,000 acres. Mr. Besley said that every effort is being made to improve protection facilities in Garrett county because of the great importance of the mountainous area in supplying a large amount of the future timber for the State. He announced that the State Board of Public Works, headed by Governor Albert C. Ritchie, has just authorized a telephone line improvement for the Thayerville tower, which will be completed before spring. The State Forester indicated that the Department of Forestry is providing the forest wardens with fire fighting equipment as rapidly as funds become available. At the present time $1,500 is provided annually for this purpose which must be used cautiously in supplying the 650 forest wardens and 3,000 registered fire fighters throughout the State.

Mrs. Walter Dawson and Mrs. Cecil Smith spent a few days in Baltimore this week, having accompanied Mr. Dawson to that city early Tuesday morning.

GARRETT COUNTY MAN SHOT WHILE HUNTING

Accidentally Hit By Charge of Shot Fired By Companion

Lawrence Wiley, 22 years old, employed on the Fred. P. Miller farm at Accident, was shot by his employer in an accidental manner last Monday morning as they were hunting rabbits on the Miller farm. This is believed to be the first casualty of the present year's hunting season in the county.

Wiley's right arm was rather painfully lacerated where the load of shot entered and he was immediately taken to Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, where he is under the charge of Dr. Frank M. Wilson. His condition is not regarded as serious but he remains in the institution and under the care of the physician to guard against possible infection.

Hundreds of hunters invaded the woods of Garrett county Monday, seeking rabbits, squirrel, quail and other small game. Exactly 1,400 licenses have been issued at the office of the Court Clerk to hunters, most of them being given out during the past week. Three obtained non-resident licenses, 6 the State-wide license and the balance, 1,391, obtained county-wide resident licenses.

DAVID BECKMAN COMMITS SUICIDE ALONG HIGHWAY

Body Found Early Monday By Paul Shore; Is Fourth Victim in County in Recent Months

HAD BEEN DEAD HOURS

David Beckman, 23 years old, son of Wayman Beckman, of the Deer Park community, was found dead at 3:30 o'clock Monday morning at the intersection of a dirt road leading to the Harvey farm and the cement road between Sand Flat and Deer Park. He came to his death from a self-inflicted bullet wound thru his body, Garrett county authorities announced late Monday evening.

Beckman's body was found lying in front of his automobile with a .38-calibre pistol near his lifeless hand by Paul Shore, of Kingwood, W. Va. He had been dead several hours when the body was discovered.

The bullet which ended young Beckman's life had been fired through his body from beneath his left shoulder, and taking a downward course missed his heart but penetrated one of his kidneys and came out on his right side above his hip, investigating doctors stated.

When Shore reported the finding of the body to local officers he said that he had seen the body as he drove by on his way to Kitzmiller but did not stop, believing that the man was intoxicated. Returning about an hour later he noticed that the body was still there. He stopped and discovered that the man had been shot. Shores immediately came to Oakland and notified Chief of Police B. B. Nethkin and an investigation followed by W. W. Dawson, State's Attorney, and Sheriff Haenftling.

Officers were told that Beckman had attended church at Sand Flat Sunday night in company with Bessie Harvey, of Deer Park. Beckman was intoxicated, officers said, and the girl refused to ride home with him in his car. She telephoned her employer, Charles Ashby, who went out to the church and took her home. Beckman, it is said, became incensed and said he would secure a gun and kill both the girl and himself, the officers were told.

It is believed that Beckman obtained the revolver shortly afterward and killed himself early on Monday morning. The gun was the property of Dewey Harvey, for whom Beckman worked.

An autopsy was performed by Drs. N. I. Broadwater and Geo. E. Clarke, following which authorities issued a certificate that the man came to his death by a self-inflicted wound.

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at Pleasant Valley with interment in the cemetery there. He is survived by his father, Wayman Beckman and two brothers, his mother having died several years ago.

This is the fourth suicide in the county in recent months.

Dr. and Mrs. Ralph Kercheval announced the birth of a son at their home in Oakland this morning.

FIRE DESTROYS WAINGOLD GARAGE BUILDING FRIDAY

Aided By Strong West Wind, Flames Swept Interior and Imperil Four Other Buildings

FIREMEN FIGHT 5 HOURS

Fire, combined with an unusually strong wind from the west, completely destroyed the Waingold garage, a two-story tile and brick building on Liberty street, and endangered several other near-by structures at one o'clock last Friday morning.

The interior of the building was a mass of flames when the fire was discovered and it was not until after an hour's battle that Oakland firemen had the blaze under control. Firemen did not leave the scene until after five hours of hard fighting.

A dense smoke spread over a portion of the town, due to the brisk wind, and the William-James Hotel, the NuWay Laundry, the Liberty Cash Feed store and the warehouse of A. D. Naylor & Co., as well as a barn on the Waingold property were threatened, the barn, warehouse and feed store being ablaze several times during the progress of the fire.

The building burned was valued at $8,000. Three of the six automobiles in it at the time of the fire were driven to safety, but the other three were consumed, along with a carload of old tires, machine shop tools and accessories belonging to S. H. Shahan, who had the building under lease.

Both trucks of the Oakland fire department, using five lines of hose, were unable to make much headway against the flames, and when the sidewalls fell the flames were blown by the wind for more than a hundred feet. The fire department of Terra Alta, West Va., arrived to assist the local firemen, having been notified of the danger menacing adjacent property, but the flames were under control when they arrived here. Their coming, however, was appreciated by Oakland residents.

The building was owned by L. Waingold, and the loss is partly covered by insurance.

The original building was erected several years ago and was owned by A. R. Martin. An explosion of gasoline partly line caused its partial destruction and it was rebuilt by Mr. Martin, who afterwards sold it to Mr. Waingold. Fire again wrecked it and it was rebuilt the second time. Friday morning's fire was the third visitation and caused its complete destruction.

Pictures Sunday Night For Benefit of County Relief Fund

"Africa Speaks," a benefit picture for the Garrett County Relief Fund, will be shown at the Maryland Theatre, Oakland, on Sunday evening, beginning at 8:30 o'clock. The price of admission will be 15 and 35 cents, and all of the proceeds except the actual cost of the picture itself will be given to the relief fund of the county.

"Africa Speaks" is a graphic motion picture and sound record of a trip taken by Paul L. Hoefler through the hitherto unexplored regions of Africa. The daily habits of wild beasts are included in the filming.

MT. LAKE PARK MAY BECOME CENTER OF AGRICULTURE EXTENSION WORK

Formation of Country Club Almost a Certainty

Judging from the progress being made on the subscription petition for stock in the proposed Oakland Country Club, the formation of an organization and the erection of a golf course along Route 37 seem almost a certainty, according to those interested in the movement.

Practically five thousand dollars has been subscribed in Oakland, Kitzmiller, Crellin and surrounding towns and as soon as the site for the country club is decided upon, work will begin on the course so that it will be in condition for summer residents and tourists as well as the townspeople next spring.

A number of Oakland residents are actively interested in the organization.

BLOOMINGTON MINER IS KILLED BY FALL OF ROCK

Jesse B. Ours, 45, Crushed To Death In R. J. Ross Mine Last Thursday Night

WAS WORKING ALONE

Funeral services for Jesse Bernard Ours, 45 years old, of Bloomington, Garrett county, who was crushed to death at 7:00 o'clock Thursday evening when he was caught beneath a rock fall in the R. J. Ross Coal Company mine near Bloomington, were held at 2:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon at the First Methodist Episcopal church in Piedmont,, Rev. O. W. Brittingham, the pastor, officiating. Interment was made in the Bloomington cemetery.

The dead man was working in the mine alone, and the accident was not discovered until a foreman went to the place where the miner had been engaged in his work, where he found the body almost completely covered by rock which had fallen from the mine roof and life extinct.

Besides his widow, Mrs. Celia Ours, he is survived by the following children: Delos Ours and Mrs. Morris Holland, Piedmont, and six step-children, Louise, Lloyd, Willabell, Amanda, Harrison and Morgan, at home. He is also survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James W. Ours, Cross, W. Va., and the following brothers and sisters: Dayton Ours, Piedmont; Emory and Walter Ours, Cross; Mrs. Frank Daniels, Mrs. Sarah Kight, of Westernport; Mrs. Edgar Biggs, Cross, and Mrs. Lewis Keeken, Luke, Md.

Rev. Shilke To Preach Annual Union Thanksgiving Sermon

Rev. C. A. Shilke, pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran church, will preach the Thanksgiving sermon at the annual union Thanksgiving Day service for Oakland and the community, to be held in the Garrett Memorial Presbyterian church Thanksgiving morning at 11:00 o'clock. The offering will go to the needy of the county.

NAT T. FRAME, WEST VIRGINIA EXTENSION WORKER, ACTIVELY INTERESTED IN ADDING TO PARK PROGRAM

Would Not Interefere With Religious Schedule at Mountain Lake Park, But Add To Activities Throughout Season, With Possibilities Of a Winter Sports Program Later—Need Cooperation of Maryland and Pennsylvania Officials

That there is a strong possibility of developing Mt. Lake Park into a center for agriculture extension activities for parts of West Virginia, Pennsylvania and Maryland, bringing its programs on a par with those at Oglebay Park, Wheeling, West Va., and the West Virginia State 4-H camp at Jackson's Mill, W. Va., was made public following a meeting of a number of Oakland citizens on Tuesday evening.

Nat T. Frame, director of Extension Service for the College of Agriculture of West Virginia University at Morgantown, is interested in developing the Park for the West Virginia counties of Monongahela, Preston, Mineral, Grant and Tucker, and feels that these can best be served in cooperation with the Maryland Extension work for Garrett county and the Pennsylvania work for the counties of Fayette and Somerset, according to a letter received here.

These mountain counties have a similar agricultural problem and topography, Mr. Frame stated, and form a unit with Mt. Lake Park as a natural center.

Providing that Dr. Symons, director of Extension work, University of Maryland, College Park, and Dr. McDowell, of State College, Pennsylvania, will cooperate, Mr. Frame will agree to furnish extension workers to help build and put on a program at Mt. Lake Park to a total salary amount of three thousand dollars. He will also center at the Park the conference and convention activities of the extension service for this large area of West Virginia, before mentioned.

Mr. Frame expresses himself as interested in this project not as a tempory idea for the year, but as the nucleus around which shall be built a fifty year program of development, and with such in mind feels that the ownership of Mt. Lake Park should be vested in the State of Maryland since the Park is within the bounds of that State.

He strongly advises the wisdom of its purchase by the State as a state park and its management be turned over to the University of Maryland to be handled through its extension service, with which the West Virginia extension office and the Pennsylvania extension office should cooperate in the development and financing.

He advocated the beginning of a fifty year program of development in Rural Life with Mt. Lake Park serving as a great institutionalized center for the whole Allegheny Tablelend area.

Dr. T. B. Symons has recently held a conference of extension workers on the idea of developing a great "Adult Education" program. Around this idea will probably center much of the extension work of the State of Maryland.

Proposed Programs

That there would be a clear idea of what this development would comprise and the type of program that might develop here, Mr. Frame stated that the typical extension program at these centers is built up chiefly as follows:

Extension conferences with leaders from State and county; demonstration schools by college experts on animal husbandry, soils and crops, home making, poultry husbandry, friut growing; farmers clubs, county and state gatherings; farm women's clubs; four-H clubs of State and county gatherings centering their four-fold development work of head, hand, heart and health, or the intellectual skill in crafts, religion, and development of body.

There would also be nature study clubs, annual farmers' jubilee, community sings, music festivals, pageants, etc.

That there would be a committee appointed to see Dr. Symons to ask his support to help carry this program for Western Maryland, with the thought that an appropriation to buy the Park for a State Park would be asked at the next legislature, was said.

That the Extension service of Pennsylvania would also be asked to cooperate, was also mentioned. The Mt. Lake Park Association will offer the use of their buildings to any satisfactory committee or operating group on any reasonable basis and will cooperate to bring back those groups which have been coming to the Park during the past years.

Extension programs at Oglebay Park and Jackson's Mill begin as early as April and carry on into September. As large a program would be possible for Mt. Lake Park, and with the winter conditions at this altitude, there is a possibility that winter sports program of skiing and skating, with winter study clubs, would be inaugurated.

MUCH INTEREST SHOWN IN ANNUAL RED CROSS ROLL

Ninety-Two People Have Subscribed $95 Thus Far In Reports of Four Local Chairmen

ENDS THANKSGIVING DAY

Much interest is being shown in the 50th anniversary Roll Call of the American Red Cross this year, according to Mrs. E. Z. Tower, county chairman, and although only a few of the reports are in there is a possibility that the quota for the county will be reached before the close of the campaign on Thursday—Thanksgiving—it was stated.

In no year of the fifty years in which the Red Cross has existed in the United States has the absolute voluntary character of its service to the public received such great emphasis and support as in the year of the drought just passed, Mrs. Tower said. It has been estimated that more than 80,000 men and women in city, town, village and country Red Cross chapters and other agencies bore the brunt of distributing the relief necessary.

This traditional volunteer spirit of the Red Cross, while effective at the

"Crellin Night" To Be Observed at K. of P. Lodge

"Crellin Night" will be observed at the regular meeting of the Knights of Pythias lodge on Friday evening, when a program will be presented by members of the lodge from Crellin.

Charles W. Ream will be in charge of the program and a number of specialties will be offered. Past programs furnished by Crellin have always been very interesting, according to lodge members, and a large turnout of the membership is anticipated. The meeting will begin at 7:30. Refreshments will be served.

THANKSGIVING DINNER THIS YEAR TO BE CHEAPER THAN EVER; FOOD IS NOW SELLING FOR MUCH LESS

Survey of Prices at Local Stores Indicates Reduction on Practically Every Item

Thanksgiving dinners this year will cost less than at any time since before the World War, according to information obtained from various merchants of Oakland.

From soup to nuts there has been a substantial decrease in the cost of food and it is estimated that a dinner may be prepared half as cheaply as in 1918.

With a bountiful yield of crops, practically every product of the farm is being offered at low prices and canned goods is off at least 25 per cent from last year, it is estimated.

Although there is no definite price yet for turkeys, the merchants feel that there won't be much of a change from last year's figures which were 18 to 20 cents per pound on foot and from 30 cents to 35 cents for the dressed birds.

Chickens were priced 20 cents alive and from 27 cents to 30 cents dressed last year. This Thanksgiving, it is predicted, they will bring 16 cents alive and from 23 to 25 cents dressed.

Cranberries, a Thanksgiving Day necessity, are selling for 15 cents a quart this year as compared with 20 cents or more last year.

Sweet potatoes are retailing for two and one-half cents a pound as compared with four cents last November.

Eggs, marked up to 45 cents last year, are now bringing about 35 cents a dozen.

Butter of the highest quality is quoted at 28 cents, whereas it sold for 45 cents this time last year.

Apples, selling as high as $2.25 a bushel in November, 1930, are being sold this year at 50 cents or thereabouts.

Oranges are approximately the same as last year—from 39 cents to 45 cents per dozen—and lemons remain the same, at three for 10 cents. Celery also remains the same, from 5 cents to 10 cents a stalk.

Potatoes are lower than last year, the new crop bringing about 60 cents a bushel as compared to $1.00 or more last year.

BRING IN NEWS EARLY

Because next Thursday is Thanksgiving Day and has been proclaimed a holiday by President Herbert Hoover, The Republican will be printed on Wednesday, November 25, instead of appearing on its regular publication day of Thursday.

In order that all the news of the county appear, it is necessary for advertisers and correspondents to send in their material one day earlier than usual.

Casting Bread Upon the Waters

By HELEN ST. BERNARD

(© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.) (WNU Service.)

MAISIE MILLIKEN, until last night a member of the Broadway Follettes, playing at the Rialto, Atlantic City, walked slowly down the board walk, munching salt-water taffy, peppermint flavored.

The sun was bright and warm, offsetting the sharp breeze that swept in from the ocean, breaking the waves into white foam on the sand. Few people were out at this hour—shortly before eight. Rows of deserted wheelchairs awaited the promenade hour. The big hotels loomed up against a morning sky of clear azure and Maisie wondered if behind one of those impressive portals there was not a job that would pay her enough money to buy a ticket back to New York. There was just one quarter, bright and shining, in the little scarlet pocketbook that dangled from her arm.

She smiled grimly as she caught her own name on the tattered bulletin that waved in the breeze in front of the closed Rialto. Last night she had led the chorus in singing the so-called latest song-hit:

"Giving. . . . Giving. . . . Giving all the time. . . ."

The song was foolish but the girls got it across. In fact, it was the only feature in the entire show that won any applause from the stolid audience of first-nighters. When the final curtain had descended on an already thinned-out audience, the manager had mysteriously disappeared with the evening's proceeds.

Maisie had had enough to pay for her night's lodging at the boarding house on a side street. She had hesitated before buying the package of salt-water taffy, but it would have to do for breakfast. The quarter must stay in the little scarlet pocketbook until something turned up.

She passed a restaurant. A white-clad girl was dexterously flapping pancakes in the window. Pancakes, maple sirup and coffee for 20 cents. Maisie closed her eyes and reached for another piece of taffy. She was desperately hungry. Then a sudden happy thought. Perhaps she could get a job there frying pancakes or waiting on the table, or even washing dishes. Anything to appease that awful emptiness and to get back to New York.

She debated for a moment. Farther down the walk a small group of people had congregated at a railing, seemingly intent on something below them in the sand. She would stroll down and see what it was all about and in the meantime she would raise the courage to apply for a job; and a breakfast. She joined the group. A sand artist was at work, brown, bareheaded, smiling. Slowly, but surely, a figure was taking shape in the white sand before him; a child, unkempt, ragged, pathetic, with outstretched hand—and in the background the shadowy suggestion of a guardian angel hovering over her.

Maisie liked the idea, especially of the guardian angel. She felt more cheerful. With a final touch here and there, the artist brushed the sand from his hands and, with a stick, he wrote in fantastic lettering:

"CAST YOUR BREAD UPON THE WATERS. . . ."

Several coins were thrown down upon the strip of canvas at his feet. He smiled up at his audience with an appeal that fascinated Maisie. "Cast your bread upon the waters" . . . Long ago when Maisie was a child, back in the little home-town in Indiana, she had learned that lesson in Sunday school.

She opened her pocketbook and felt blindly for the quarter—the last cent she had in the world. Her fingers closed over it and the shining piece went spinning through the air and she started to hum; to sing:

"Giving . . . giving . . . giving all the time. . . ."

A man, stout and red-faced, turned to her quickly with questioning eyes. Then he brought his cane down with a resounding thud.

"Well, here you are! I've been looking in at every hotel in Atlantic City for you this morning, young lady."

"Really!" chirped Maisie. "Odd you didn't find me at the Traymore."

Maisie was accustomed to these advances from middle-aged admirers.

"Traymore!" he snorted. "And there wasn't enough money to pay you off last night after that crook lit out! Do you want a job?"

"Job?" she queried. "What kind of job? I'm particular, I am."

For a moment he looked disappointed, heartsick. "Aren't you the blond that sang that song in the show last night? Tell me, aren't you? That giving song. . . ."

Maisie nodded.

"Well, if you can put a song like that over, you can sure hit the mark with some real stuff. We're opening up here tomorrow night, and need a girl to sing. Come to rehearsal at eleven." He motioned at the closed theater. "I'll depend on you."

"Casting bread upon the waters," mused Maisie, late of the Broadway Follettes. "I wonder if that artist would lend me back that bread I cast down there, until I. . . ."

"Until you what?" asked her benefactor. "You've got a job and that's a lot more than some folks have. What more do you want?"

"What more do I want?" And Maisie laid both hands over her empty stomach. "Right now I want pancakes and maple sirup and coffee."

Cupid Gets Out His Bow and Arrow

By DOROTHY DOUGLAS

(© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.) (WNU Service.)

JOHN RAYMOND listened to the most blood-curdling sharpening of a knife that he had ever heard. Was there to be a tremendous slaughtering in the flat next door or was it merely that someone was about to carve something?

Certainly whoever was sharpening that knife intended to get a keen edge on it.

No wonder the gorgeous blue Persian cat, who occupied a sunny portion of the fence dividing the gardens one flight below, bounded frantically up the fire escape outside Johnny's window and his neighbor's to see what it was all about.

John Raymond would like to have known, too, as his curiosity was aroused. Every morning, since the windows had been opened to welcome the new spring, he had listened to that knife-sharpening process and tried to picture what breakfast dainty could possibly necessitate so keen a knife.

And each morning as the lovely cat heard it, he dashed like a streak of silver lightning into the open window.

Raymond had used every cat call in his vocabulary to lure the handsome pet into his own flat, but Johnny, as he had heard the cat called, simply stared at him with wonderful topaz eyes and kept his distance.

And the more aloof Johnny kept himself, the more eager was Raymond to induce him inside. Raymond was not only a cat lover but he painted animals in so successful a manner as to have considerable fame to his credit.

Then, like a flash, the truth dawned on Raymond.

The sharpening of the knife was some secret code between cat and master or mistress, whichever the case might be. No doubt Johnny knew that a bit of meat was to be cut for him when that sound reached his ears, and he lost no time in demanding it.

Consequently, next day, when Raymond felt that the flat next door was empty of its human inhabitants, he got out one of his own carving knives and a tempting bit of fresh liver and sharpened away with all his might.

A flash, and Johnny had whirled himself into Raymond's open window. There was no more aloofness. Johnny was purring and rubbing most affectionately against Raymond's legs and gazing up with his great topaz eyes. In fact, Johnny put his two silky paws on the edge of Raymond's breakfast table and left two smutty paw marks thereon.

This was the beginning of a new friendship. Johnny, being left for several hours a day all by himself, made himself comfortable in Raymond's sunny flat.

And Raymond set to work on a painting that was later to dazzle the eyes of the animal lover's world. Raymond had wisely left a bit of Chinese blue velvet carelessly on the sunny window ledge knowing full well that Johnny would easily ensconce himself thereon.

And the painting progressed wonderfully until one evening when Raymond had closed the window with Johnny on the inside.

Suddenly into his artist's dream burst the sound of frantic calling. "Kitty, kitty, kitty! Come Johnny—Come Johnny!" And later the loud sharpening of a knife.

Raymond jumped to his feet and opened the window, but as a matter of fact Johnny never moved—he was well fed and most cozy on his blue velvet cushion.

"Are you calling a blue Persian cat?" asked Raymond with a guilty look on his face. "Because if you are he's in here with me."

"Well, I like that! Enticing my beautiful cat into your flat and locking him in. I think I will report you to—"

"My dear young lady," expostulated Raymond while he definitely admired the speaker—or at least the little glimpse he had of her as she leaned from her window. "I merely wanted to make a portrait of your cat—he's the most beautiful animal I've ever seen."

"Oh!" exclaimed Miss Jarvis hanging so far out of the window now that Raymond was fearful of her toppling out, "could I just have a peep at it."

Raymond beamed and Miss Jarvis discovered what she had felt for a long time, unbeknown to Raymond, that she should like her masculine neighbor—she had often watched him going in and out of the flat but he seemed always so preoccupied that she had dispaired of ever knowing him.

"Only upon the condition that you refrain from reporting me to the police as a cat thief—I haven't any desire to figure in the papers."

Johnny in the meantime had arisen from his velvet cushion, stretched himself and yawned comfortably. His sitting for the day seemed to be over and he approached Miss Jarvis.

She took him fondly in her arms and he rubbed his soft head against her hands in perfectly happy cat love. He purred and was perhaps telling her all about the portrait.

"And when am I to see Johnny's picture?" asked Miss Jarvis.

"I'll bring it around to your flat door—if I may—right away, if you'll let me," said Raymond, and while the silvery Johnny and his golden mistress disappeared from the window, Cupid got out his bow and arrow.

SCOOP'S COLUMN

By Scoop Himself

Monday; 9:00 a. m.—If you had arisen from a cozy, warm bed at 3:45 a. m. to the tune of the trusty alarm, seen the sights of Gettysburg and of Washington, D. C., and crawled into that same cozy bed at 4:30 a. m. the next morning after having driven about 400 miles, just 24 hours and 45 minutes of gadding about, do you believe your brain would function normally enough to write a column? Neither do I, but since it doesn't take any brains to write this, I might as well go ahead.

But in case the mighty sandman overtakes me, don't let it worry you and thank your stars that I'm not telling you any dreams or fairy tales. Open up, eyes! I haven't even got started and you begin to go back on me! Oh. what's the use?

Tuesday morning: Archibaldson (Armistice Day): "And there, son, I have told you the story of your daddy and the great war."

Son Bobby: "Yes, daddy; but what did they need all the other soldiers for?"

* * *

Wednesday morning—If I don't soon hurry up and get something written the Boss Editor won't be able to get the paper out tomorrow. I believe I've caught up on my sleep.

Well, here goes. Once upon a time—

Thursday morning—The Boss Editor said we go to press in five minutes, whether I have this column written or not. I didn't think he could do it. Well, I had a good trip, anyway.

The horsemen were reunited for one big day. Reeves was the same as ever. We inspected the Battlefield at Gettysburg, and the people there hadn't changed either. Then to the City of Washington to see Herbie Hoover, but met up with Mr. A. S. Ours instead, walking along G street. Saw Bill Haines, movie actor, in person. He looked human. Went eight blocks looking for a place to eat where you don't have to grab it and put it on a tray where it is invariably spilled before you are able to find a vacant seat. Finally wound up in a cigar store where they sold everything but the brand of cigars we wanted.

Inquired of a cop about Froggie Cross and Paul Shultz, but both were off duty. We left our card. Had to ask how to get out of the Fox theatre. Seems like the passageways led to every place but the one we were looking for. On the way back we got to Winchester just in time for a fire, but it wasn't nearly as successful as one the other night around these parts.

After the fire here was under control Jim Towler dropped back to normal. His blood pressure increased enormously during those early morning hours. A lot more people wear pajamas than I had supposed. Extreme styles were apparent among the spectators from a bathrobe ensemble worn by Joe Hinebaugh to collar, tie, hat, top coat and all accessories worn by Eddie Elias. Eddie will be excused if he proves that he hadn't gone to bed yet.

Yesterday Bob Hoffman was reading the Washington Post to see if our names were in the personal column proclaiming to one and all that we had visited the city. It wasn't, and Bob expressed his disgust.

Bill Naylar has gone in for raising pigs since catching the greased one at the skating rink the other night. Going coon hunting and bringing back a skunk has been the "fortune" of Bill Glotfelty and Frank Criss. Bring on the Hush or Odorono.

Everytime the fire whistle bolws, Jim Compton starts every pump at the city water works. Last Friday morning after playing five streams on the fire for five hours, the water in the reservoir was only four feet from the overflow.

Frank Ross, Piqua, Ohio, says he looks forward to reading The Republican and that Scoop's column is good. Now there's a fellow who knows what he is talking about and is not afraid to say what he thinks. Joe Kitzmiller got sore last week because he couldn't find the column. He wants a picture of Scoop run at the head of the column hereafter so he can find it without looking.

Saw a sign in a store window the other day which read: "Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Clothes." That's what a lot of people have been insisting on for years, and they ought to be glad to know that they are finally coming to it.

I had to go to Morgartown to get a black bow tie not already tied. There wasn't one in Oakland. That dilapidated struggle buggy that sopped in front of the Bargain House on Monday must be a family pet of the driver. It has been "aged in the mud."

A lot of people are going to be happy around here on December 1 when they cash in on their Christmas Savings chacks. Have you joined the Red Cross yet? The Home Demonstration Agent is a demon for work. She hardly takes time to eat.

* * *

Over the Telephone

"Can't you come over tonight?"

" No, I'm washing my D. V. D.'s."

Interruption by operator: "I'm ringing them."

How's that for five minutes' work? Wrong again. This column was written on Tuesday—or was it Wednesday?

COUNTY AGENT'S COLUMN

J. H. CARTER,
Resident County Agent,

Save The Leaves

This is the time of year when deciduous trees and shrubs shed their leaves and go into the dormant condition which enables them to withstand the rigors of winter. Many householders consider the accumulation of leaves an unmitigated nuisance and hasten to rake them up and burn them. Such waste, however, is painful to the gardener who appreciates the benefit which the garden derives from the leaves when properly composted and worked into the soil. Organic matter in the form of decaying leaves has a positive affect on the soil in improving the physical character and in greatly increasing its water holding capacity.

Considerable potash is also returned to the soil this way. It is usually not practicable to apply the leaves directly to the garden because of their bulk and the fact that they may allow the air to penetrate and dry out the soil. It is, therefore, advisable to first compost the leaves. Recent investigations have brought to light a method of hastening the process of decay thus rendering the compost available for use in a comparatively short time.

The decay of vegetable tissues is effected through the action of organisms such as bacteria and fungus. These need nitrogen for food and the process is more rapid in an alkaline reaction. It has been found that the addition of certain chemicals will greatly hasten the action of these organisms.

A pit or bin will be found advantageous for the making of the compost. The chemicals are added to the leaves as the pit is being filled. According to one formula there should be added to each ton of leaves 50 pounds of superphosphate, 25 pounds of ammonum sulphate and from 15 to 20 pounds of hydrate lime. The material should be kept moist but not wet and if the pile can be turned a time or two, more uniform results will be obtained. Debris from the garden may be added to the compost provided it is not affected by soil-borne diseases.

The compost will be all the richer for the addition of chemicals. The scarcity of manure makes it all the more important to save the leaves and other vegetables wastes. If poultry manure is available, this can well take the place of sulphate of ammonia in the formula. Most plants respond well to application of compost to the soil. If the fertility of the soil is to be built up more rapidly, it is advisable to add a complete fertilizer to the compost.

DEER PARK

June Grove Circle, No. 38, of the Woodmen, held its regular meeting in W. O. W. Hall last Thursday evening. After the business meeting refreshments were served by Misses Lola King and Pleasant Reis.

Lesson for November 22

PAUL IN ROME

GOLDEN TEXT—I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me.

LESSON TEXT—Acts 25:1-12; 28: 16-31.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Paul in the Greatest City of the World.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Paul's Life-long Ambition Fulfilled.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—A Prisoner Proclaims the Gospel in Rome.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Paul's Ministry in the World's Capital.

I. Paul Appeals to Caesar (25:1-12).

In order to appreciate this action on the part of Paul it is well to get a synthetic grasp of the experiences which forced him to make this appeal.

1. His trial before Felix (Acts 24). The officials of the Sanhedrin were represented by Tertullus, a Roman barrister. He brought a fourfold charge against Paul:

a. A pestilent fellow (v. 5).
b. An inciter of rebellion (v. 5).
c. The ringleader of a sect (v. 5).
d. A profaner of the temple (v. 6).

To this charge Paul replied in a clear and dignified manner, setting forth the facts of his life, and demanded that his adversaries bring proof of their accusation. Felix was greatly moved by Paul's testimony concerning Christ, but postponed decision, expecting to receive a bribe from Paul.

2. Trial before Festus (25:1-12). Festus was the successor of Felix. Two years had elapsed, but the Jewish hatred had not abated. Paul's foes in Jerusalem sought to have him brought there for trial, intending to lie in wait and kill him on the way. Festus, willing to please the Jews, purposed to send him to Jerusalem for trial. For this Paul rebuked him, declaring that he very well knew that he was innocent. Seeing that it was impossible to get justice at the hands of Festus, he made use of his right as a Roman citizen and appealed to Caesar. Festus was taken by surprise and found himself in an embarrassing position, as he was unable to explain to Caesar as to why an innocent man should go to Rome for trial.

3. Trial before Agrippa (25:13-26:32). This was occasioned by the visit to Festus of Agrippa and Bernice. Upon their arrival, Festus told them of his perplexity. Therefore, they expressed a desire to hear Paul. Paul gladly made his defense before them and appealed to them to accept Christ.

II. Paul's Journey to Rome (27:1-44).

1. The ship (v. 6). It was in a vessel of Alexandria sailing from Myra to Italy.

2. The company (vv. 2, 37). Two of Paul's friends, Aristarchus and Luke, were permitted to go with him. Besides these three there were 273 in the ship.

3. The storm (vv. 14-20). The ship made little headway on account of unfavorable winds. Paul advised that they winter in Fair Haven (vv. 9-12), but his advice was unheeded. In verses 14 to 20 we have a most graphic description of the storm. Tempestuous winds as well as soft breezes await God's faithful ones.

4. Paul's serene faith (vv. 21-26). God is as near to his faithful ones on a stormy sea as in the quietude of the home. Paul was not only calm, but bade the people be of good cheer (v. 22). He promised them safety though the ship would go to pieces.

5. The ship's crew safe (vv. 27-44). All turned out as God had promised.

III. Paul's Ministry in Rome (Acts 28:15-31).

1. Welcomed by the brethren (v. 15). They met him at the Appii forum, a distance of about forty miles from Rome. This was the first time he was thus welcomed.

2. Paul's lenient treatment (v. 16). He was allowed to hire a house and live apart, being guarded by a soldier.

3. Conference with the leading Jews (vv. 17-22). He allowed himself only three days to rest. His object was to have a fair understanding with the Jews. He explained the reason for his being there. The result was that the Jews took neutral ground, but expressed a desire to hear what Paul could say in defense of a sect which was evil spoken against.

4. Paul expounding the kingdom of God and persuading concerning Jesus (vv. 23-31). He pointed out a real kingdom, the Messianic Kingdom, with the historic Jesus as the King. The kingdom to Paul meant a definite reign of a definite person, not merely an improved state of society. This he showed from the Scriptures. He went through the Old Testament, carefully showing the kingdom teaching to be in harmony with the law and the prophets.

Personal Consecration

There is also need of a clear understanding of what consecration means. It is not an indulgence in pious yearnings and smug phrases. It is the willingness to face facts squarely, to deny one's self in behalf of others, to give, to work with one's heart and soul that God's kingdom may come upon earth.

Pleasures Not Lasting

The pleasures of sin are but for a season, but the punishment of unpardoned sin is everlasting.

TAKE CARE IN SKINNING WILD RABBITS THIS YEAR

Advice To Hunters Given Out by State Department of Health

Reminding hunters, market men, housewives and others who handle game, as the hunting season opens, of the danger of contracting tularemia, or rabbit fever, through contact with infected animals, Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health, advises sportsmen and food handlers to take special precautions in skinning rabbits and preparing the meat for the table.

He said: "Rabbit fever, or, to use the medical name, tularemia, is an infectious disease to which rabbits and other small animals are susceptible and which human beings contract thru handling the animals. The disease spreads from animal to animal thru the bite of infected ticks. It may also be spread by the bite of a certain species of fly. Human beings contract the disease in two ways, either thur the infected animals or thru the bite of infected ticks. As the insects continue to carry the infection over long periods, care should be taken at all seasons to avoid being bitten by them.

"The presence of the disease in animals that are being skinned or are exposed for sale can be detected by a characteristic appearance of the liver and spleen which are dotted with tiny white or yellowish spots. The infection may be picked up by persons who handle the game through a scratch or break in the skin, or it may be carried into the eyes or nose in rubbing the hands over the face, after they have been in contact with the diseased animals.

"A disease that corresponds closely to what we now call tularemia, or rabbit fever, has been known to hunters and market men for a long time, but it has only been comparatively recently that its source has been studied and its method of transmission discovered. The disease has often been mistaken for typhoid fever, which it may resemble at the start. Sometimes the attack begins with a severe chill and with other symptoms that resemble grippe. In many cases an ulcer develops where the infection has entered the body and the nearby glands become greatly enlarged.

"The disease requires prompt medical treatment and the family physician should be called for those who develop symptoms that suggest rabbit fever. The doctor's diagnosis may be confirmed by blood tests and the laboratory of the State Department of Health is prepared to make the necessary tests and will do so at the request of the attending physician or the county health officer.

"Tularemia was made reportable in Maryland in 1928 and since then 58 cases—30 in Baltimore City and 28 in the counties—have been reported to the State Department of Health. There have been six deaths.

"Tularemia occurs principally in wild rabbits. It has been found in rabbits raised in rabbitries. Thorough cooking of the rabbit renders it harmless."

Armistice Day Assembly Is Held In Crellin Town Hall

An Armistice Day program was rendered in the town hall at Crellin on Wednesday, November 11, which was largely attended by the people of the town and community.

The Crellin Band entertained from 1:00 until 1:30 o'clock, after which the following program was presented by the school children and others:

Song, "America"; invocation, Rev. D. C. Trimble; flag salute and song, "The Star-Spangled Banner"; recitation, "Our Flag," Gale Shaffer and Billy Graham; reading, "The Flag of Our Country," Loretta Ashby; recitation, "Armistice Day," Juanita Rodeheaver; song, "Keep the Home Fires Burning"; reading, "Citizenship," Vera Breedlove; recitation, "In Flanders' Field, America's Answer," Feretta Smith and Dorsey Ashby; reading, "The Name of Old Glory," Farrell Welch; recitation, "Our Flag," Harry Sanders; song, "Smiles,"; address, Rev. David C. Trimble; recitation, "The Flag Goes By," Madeline Sereno; closing song, "America, The Beautiful."

STIMULATING THE PARK—

There is now on foot a movement to inject a little life blood into Mt. Lake Park, which for the past several years, has had good blood but not enough of it.

The idea has originated with Nat T. Frame, director of Extension work, West Virginia University, and suggests the carrying out of a program at Mt. Lake Park, for the Tableland area, similar to the ones scheduled for Oglebay Park, Wheeling, W. Va., and Jackson's Mill, the State 4-H camp of West Virginia.

This would in no way interfere with the religious programs already at the Park, but would supplement and enlarge the schedule so that a full program woull be carried on from April to September, and possibly through the winter months.

The idea has been established but whether or not it will take root depends on the coopcration of Maryland and Pennsylvania. The thought of a recreational center at the Park is a huge one, and its advantages are not of a day, but for a year and future years.

The adoption of the idea would be like a blood transfusion. It is well worth considering seriously.

READING GOOD BOOKS—

In this day and age when the market is swamped with all kinds of articles, stories, fiction, etc., and other so-called literature, the problem of selecting worth while reading material for children and even adults, is a huge one.

The United States is celebrating this week National Book Week, in an attempt to stimulate the reading of good worthwhile literature.

This year, particularly, the improvement of international relations or world wide friendship is being stressed by those interested in the movement.

National Book Week started 13 years ago as Children's Book Week, but since that time the demand has grown until today it includes everybody.

To read good books is an education. To read the trash that is included in many magazines and pamphlets of today is no stimulant to the mind. Learn to pick the good out of the mass production and be well read.

CITY'S WATER SUPPLY—

During the fire last Friday morning how many people gave a thought to the water supply of Oakland, and how fortunate the city was in having the waterworks system that it does?

While five streams of water played on the fire for five hours, the pumps were working steadily to replenish the reservoir, and when the water was no longer needed, the supply in the reservoir was only four feet from the overflow.

Not only is there plenty of water for all ordinary needs and emergency calls like the one last Friday morning, but the purity of the water cannot be surpassed, because there is no superpure water, or grade above 100 percent.

In having good drinking water and plenty of it, Oakland has an asset that cannot be tabulated in figures.

TROUBLE BORROWING IS NOT FOR US

It was the grand old liberal and cosmopolitan, Thomas Jefferson, who said during the Napoleonic wars that if the European cows insisted in horning one another, the part the American people should play was that of milking all of them.

In other words, Jefferson believed that if the nations of the old world were stupid enough to war with one another for territorial, trade and dynastic reasons, it was entirely proper that a nation which did not believe in wars waged for such selfish ends, should show better sense by profiting through peaceful commerce stimulated by the unwisdom of others. He believed in making peace pay better than war.

The world is filled with rumors of war. Its shadow falls on the Orient; soon it may fall on Europe. The United States will be affected by any great war, wherever fought, but it has nothing at stake which would justify entry into it, short of invasion of our own soil. We need, more than ever, however, to put ourselves in what Washington called a "respectable posture of defense." If sparks fly this way, we need a good fire department to put them out before they burst into flame. The stronger we are in our ability to defend ourselves the less likely it is that our weakness will be a temptation to attack from any quarter.

Whatever the technical rights of seaborne commerce, the risks of commerce with combatants, in case of war, should be taken beyond our borders by those who stand to directly profit by them. "In the midst of war, all laws are silent," and at such a time this nation cannot undertake to spend life to save property.

This country is ready to defend itself to the last dollar and the last worthwhile life, but it will do no more adventuring abroad in wars with the causes and purposes of which we have nothing rightfully to do.

Most of our pacifists want to involve the United States in every world-wide controversy on the quaint theory that the rest of the world is willing for us to settle these disputes rather than merely become involved in them to the jeopardizing of our own peace.

Those who combine a sane love of peace with a true love of country believe that a nation which wants nothing but to maintain its own just rights and interests, without invasion of the just rights and interests of other nations, can best serve itself and the world by remaining neutral, rather than becoming a partisan, during the world conflicts so complex, so deeply rooted, so difficult to understand, involved in the international clashes of the old world which for centuries have been producing war, and now threaten war again.

ADVERTISING DOES IT

That business can be revived speedily if values are given prospective purchasers and that newspaper advertising is the most powerful medium of carrying trade news to the people are declarations of Charles B. Dulcan, vice-president and general merchandise manager of The Hecht Co., of Washington, D. C. In a recent statement he declared:

"Newspaper advertising has again proved that it is the most powerful and effective advertising medium. The results are direct and instantaneous.

"For the past week thousands of stores throughout America have conducted drives for increased business because they seemed, in some mysterious way, to have reached the conclusion that prices were at low ebb, whereas savings accounts indicated that their was money to spend for goods that had dropped way below normal.

"Our own concern took this view, increased its advertising and as a result we have sold more goods every single day this past week than in our best previous year. Specifically, since last Monday we have increased our business 30 per cent in dollars and cents; we have sold 44 per cent more items in this week than in the corresponding week, 1930. We have given employment to 10 per cent more people. We showed a tenfold increase in our long-distance wires and buyers' trips to New York. We placed more orders; shipments arriving at the store were increased 20 per cent. We have stopped going down."

WHEN WINTER COMES

The American spirit is giving a good account of itself. Never, outside of war emergency, has such a nation-wide demonstration of helpfulness been inaugurated so promptly and so thoroughly. Busy men and women from every walk of life, quite regardless of political or other affiliations, are responding to President Hoover's request by organizing systematically and effectively to provide all necessary relief this winter.

From many sections of the country word has come that cities and communities have already subscribed the necessary quotas to care for the unemployed; that special work has been provided for the able-bodied who are without jobs, and that local relief workers will look after those who are without resources and unable to work. With remarkable unanimity towns, small community centers, cities and states have announced their determination to care for their own people. Outside help is neither asked nor desired, and particularly strong feeling is expressed against Federal doles in any form or under any subterfuge.

The large cities of the country are making extraordinary provision for the winter months. They are burdened with the care of an unusually large number of non-residents who have gravitated cityward seeking employment. In the free distribution of food and lodging in New York last winter it was found that as many as 70 per cent of the applicants were not residents of the city. Many smaller communities with limited means have given notice that their relief must be restricted to residents. In view of this situation the unemployed should not wander far afield, but should endeavor to fit into plans where they have some hold through residence or former occupation.

It is natural that New York should face the greatest difficulty of all in taking care of its jobless and floating population. The coordinating committee of the welfare council has combined the efforts of more than 100 social and service agencies in arranging their winter program, with the result that there are now facilities in hand to provide every homeless person in New York with food and shelter. When the metropolis can thus care for all within its vast area there is no reason to believe that smaller communities can not and will not be prepared to look after their own people. And this assertion had its answer at the public meeting held in the Court House in Oakland Thursday evening when a representative group of people from nearly every section of the county pledged themselves to the noble work of seeing that all in need should be provided for through the organization formed at that meeting.

TWO KINDS OF REVIVALS NEEDED

We need in this country a revival of religion and of patriotism.

We need a revival of religion because it furnishes the only code of ethics that has ever proved of any practical account. We have overproduction of about everything in this country but character. Washington truly said that religion is the nursery of character, and character is the cement which holds our civilization together.

It is one of the grave penalties of a period of luxury and ease that it destroys the tendency to serious thought. For that lack of serious thought we are paying the price today. Whenever things go wrong under a representative form of government it must be charged up to the selfishness and indifference of the people whose responsibility it is to create and renew this government. About half of our citizens do not even take the trouble to vote, and if they were not pounded into action by political organizations the precentage would be less than half that.

Every complaint against corruption, incompetency, greed and graft in government is an indictment of the citizenship which tolerates and endures and even supports the sort of officialism under which these abuses develop. If only those who have done their full duty as citizens, the sovereigns of a republic, were to complain about these evils, the noise they make would be inconsiderable.

The complaint that the oncoming gencration is less serious and more indifferent than the old, has some basis, but not so much as is generally believed. The character of the young is formed by the mature and the old, not so much by precept as by example.

It was commonly taught and believed during our more prosperous years as a nation that "getting by" with the least possible effort was an evidence of cleverness. Hard work came to be regarded as at best a necessahy evil, and any sort of hardship for the individual something to be resented in outcry against the social and economic system under which such a thing was possible.

But work is not a curse, but a blessing. It is essential to the development not only of the body, but the mind. It liberates, develpos and inspires men. The unused hand withers. The unused brain decays. The unused heart hardens. With use all these organs are developed and are strengthened.

The best school Americans ever attended was the harsh college of the wilderness, which presented obstacles to men which made it necessary for them to toil and think and struggle.

If youth of today is less serlousminded, less purposeful, less courageous, less independent than the youth of a generation ago it is because it has, on the whole, been its misfortune to have things too easy. Few men either think or work unless they are driven to it by a necessity which seems malevolent, but is actually beneficent. The present perlod of depression will make more men than it breaks; will make them in character though it break them in fortune, and thereby give them a usefulness and thoughtfulness and happiness that is of more value than material wealth.

We are told that the oncoming generation takes no interest in religion, because it is too little related to life. Religion is something that no one does anyone else any particular personal favor by studying or accepting. Religion deals with the origin and destiny of men beyond the horizon, behind and in front, to which their eyes can reach, and within those horizons helps work out the problem of the individual's relation to truth and to his fellowmen. If either youth or age is not of its own initiative interested in such a problem, it is because the distractors of the temporary completely absorb them. Many of them will have to meet the sorrows and difficulties of life which sober and make thoughtful before they can realize the essential need of religion.

We need a revival of religion and patriotism. And religion, under wrong-headed leadership, is seeking too much to divorce itself from patriotism. The one great emotion cannot destroy the other without destroying itself. In patriotism is wrapped up the loyalty to home and kindred, to principles and ideals; behind it in our history is the moving tradition of heroism and sacrifice that runs from generation to generation. The two go together, and he who would separate one of these vital loyalties from the other would destroy both.

SPIRITUAL CALMNESS

By J. A. Hall, in the Decatur (Ga.) New Era

A thoughtful writer once said: "There are few things in the world worth striving for, and one of these is peace." What a world of gospel truth is contained in this brief sentence! When we have spent a long lifetime in the fruitless struggle for wealth, position or fame and find ourselves standing at last empty-handed as life's sun nears the purple western horizon, we realize all too keenly the utter futility of our longings, our strivings, our toils and regrets which brougth us nothing of abiding value.

If we have yearned for fortune and engaged in a long and pitiless struggle to acquire material things, we at last realize the bitter truth that houses and lands, stock certificates and bank balances are no part of us. They are somthing entirely detached —something lifeless and unsympathetic. They are merely so many scraps of paper which we have succeeded in capturing during a lifelong quest.

If we have sought for position, we have found that the glamour passes with the fleeting day, and, however much we may be honored by one generation, the next ruthlessly elbows us aside and in just a little while we are old, obscure and forgotten. Nothing in the world is more uncertain and nothing more often followed by an enduring sting of bitterness than the spotlight of public acclaim. He who seeks it, like the moth which is attracted to the candle, will, sooner or later, get his wings singed and fall helplessly to the ground—a charred, lifeless and hideous thing.

One of the things worth striving after is peace.

When the swiftly passing years have separated you from the friends and the scenes of youth and you find most of the things which people strive after both useless and beyond your reach—when your friends have gone their ways and your children have taken up their tasks in other lands, you realize as never before that about the only thing worth having—the only thing which you can use and which brings abiding comfort in a world which is becoming more drab with each succeeding season, is peace. Tranquillity of surroundings, calmness of soul, restfulness of mind and body —these are some things you can use and which help more than anything else can to make the ragged edge of life bearable. He, whose mission upon earth was to promote peace and good will, sought to make men see the futility of striving for power, wealth and the gratification of worldly ambitions, and over and over again He proclaimed the enduring value of tranquillity.

The great Teacher of life's essential values sought to make it clear that peace does not abide in an abundance of things. The possession of things brings the disquieting sense of responsibility. Things decay, or perish with the using. Things pass with time. Peace comes with tranquility of mind and calmness of soul. "The Kingdom of Heaven is within you."

There are few things in the world worth striving for. One of these is peace.

Surprise Party

Miss Mary Sisk was hostess at a surprise party given in honor of her mother on Saturday evening at the Sisk home in Loch Lynn. Those present were Misses Grace Callis, Gladys Sanders, Kathleen Jessee, Hallie Lish, Anna O'Brien, Lena Slabach, Mildred Ford, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Sisk, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Kemphfer, Mrs. Delph Callis, Mrs. Cal Cuppett, Mrs. August Killius and children, Mr. and Mrs. John Sisk, Rev. and Mrs. Burns, Rev. Jessee, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ford, Mrs. Ida Simmons, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Sisk, Mrs. Florence Perrine, Mrs. Emma Lish, Messrs. Sam Slabaugh, Joe O'Brien, Edward Callis and Kermit Jessee. Refreshments, consisting of sandwiches, coffee, and cake, were served.

IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

Ernest Liller, 17, son of William Liller, of Oakland, was runover and instantly killed at the B. and O. station in Oakland. He was on the edge of the platform looking at a passenger train on the opposite track when he was struck by an eastbound freight. Justice A. B. Gonder summoned a jury of inquest composed of A. G. Sturgiss, foreman; James A. Hayden, Daniel E. Offutt, Bowie Johnson, A. D. Naylor, P. A. Chlsholm, J. W. Hart, George O. Miller, Henry J. Mayers, Henry Felty, George D. White and Samuel Lawton, who found that Liller had been killed by a train drawn by engine No. 559, which was running at a greater speed than six miles per hour.

A town ordinance prohibiting trains from running more than six miles an hour was in force at the time and the same evening when the Chicago express arrived in town the bailiff arrested the engineer on a charge of having violated the ordinance. The train was delayed until after the trial of the engineer was concluded and then permitted to proceed westward. The verdict of the court was that the engineer was guilty and his fine was paid by a high railway official who was aboard the train at the time.

The mercury in Oakland dropped from 50 degrees on Monday to 9 degrees on Wednesday.

The lumber firm of C. M. Rathbun Company, at Mountain Lake Park, operating a large planing mill, was running full time.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

In an interview with Dr. H. W. McComas, published in the Baltimore Sun, he is quoted as saying: "The practitioner of medicine should keep out of politics. I have been Mayor of Oakland several terms, but I shall never again be a candidate."

Messrs. U. M. Stanton and Elijah Livengood, the former of Grantsville, and the latter the "Maple Sugar King" of Elk Lick, Pa., came to Oakland in L. H. Diefenbach's automobile. Notwithstanding the horrible condition of the roads, the run was made here in a little less than two and one-half hours.

H. A. Rasche, B. and O. agent, returned to his duties following an attack of rheumatism.

At the high school a new board of editors composed of Walter W. Dawson, commercial; Harry Weimer, junior; John Scott, freshman, and Edward Chance, editor-in-chief, was named.

$600,000,000 FOR CHRISTMAS CLUBS

Within the next two weeks banks and savings funds in all parts of the United States will begin the distribution of $600,000,000 to members of Christmas clubs. This is an astounding total in view of the depression of the last year, and it becomes important because of the reasonable certainty that the largest part of it is likely to be placed in circulation between Thanksgiving and Christmas. The money goes to 12,000,000 persons and the average sum for each will be about $50. New York leads all other States in the amount of money to be distributed, and Pennsylvania comes second with $66,000,000 to its credit. Washington, D. C., makes the best showing for cities with a total of $8,000,000. But in all something like 4000 communities will feel the benefit of having this great amount of cash placed in circulation.

There is no doubt that the expenditure of this money will have a stimulating effect upon business. When we add to it the natural improvement that has been felt in the last few weeks, it should be the means of creating a feeling of buoyancy which will hasten the return of normal times. The millions of persons who have been depositing in these clubs have given us an exhibition of thrift as compared with mere hoarding. They have, in the words of former President Coolidge, been saving in order that they may spend. Indeed, the watchword of the organizers of the clubs to their members is to "spend wisely but not extravagantly." The advice is hardly needed. Most of these savers probably know in advance precisely what they are going to do with their money. In most cases it will be used for the purchase of gifts for relatives and friends. Those who fear it may be wasted can cast aside their misgivings. There has not been a time in the last two or three decades when goods of all kinds could be bought to better advantage.

The one who conceived the idea of Christmas Clubs builded better than he knew. They have brought happiness to millions. And they have created the habit of thrift so that great numbers now regularly set aside certain sums to meet their obligations when they come due. This year those who are fortunate enough to get their Christmas money will not only benefit personally, but will also have the added satisfaction of knowing they are contributing to the return of prosperity by helping to turn the wheels of trade and industry.

St. Paul's M. E. Church Notes

We are pleased to announce that Miss Lillian McCormick, of the Religious Education Staff of the State of Maryland, will be with us at 10:45 Sunday morning. Miss McCormick's address will be worthwhile, and it is to be hoped that she may have a large audience.

Miss Betty Broadwater will have charge of the Epworth League service at 6:45 p. m. All young people of the church are invited.

The theme for the evening worship will be "The Friendship of Jesus."

Oakland High Quint Begins Practice Sessions This Afternoon

Facing the necessity of rebuilding almost his entire team, Coach Foster Speicher will call for basketball candidates for the Oakland High School basketball team this afternoon for the first practice session of the season. Thirty or more candidates are expected to report.

During the past week the baskets have been erected in the auditorium and wiring placed over the lights and windows, and everything is in shape for the initial practice session this afternoon following the regular school dismissal for the day.

Prof. F. D. Bittle, principal, and John Thayer, who have had exeprience in basketball, will help instruct the boys in the fundamentals of the game.

Only two of last year's regulars will be available this year, as Joseph Sollars, Kenneth Graves and Richard Glotfelty were lost by graduation from the school. Joseph Rice, guard, and Edward Maroney, forward, will be the nucleus around which the 1931-32 quint will be molded.

No games have been scheduled as yet.

Grantsville Fieldball Champions To Play Central High Nov. 20

Grantsville High School girls' fieldball team, champion of Garrett county, will play Central High School's undefeated and untied fieldball team of Lonaconing, winner of the W. M. I. League championship for the third successive season, in the initial game of the State-wide championship tournament at Frostburg on Friday, November 20.

The game will start at 2:30 o'clock, and Miss Marguerite Miles, girls' referee in Maryland for the Playground Athletic League, of Baltimore, will officiate. The P. A. L. further stated that the winner will play the victorious team in the series of games between the teams in Washington-Frederick and Harford-Anne Arundel counties on December 2.

Last year the Lonaconing team defeated Friendsville, winner of the Garrett county championship. Grantsville won the Garrett county title this year by defeating Oakland High in two out of three games.

Mountain Top Ministers Meet

The November meeting of the Mountain Top Ministers' Association was held in the Masonic Club room, Oakland, Monday morning.

Sheep Killed On Highway

Five or six sheep, said to be the property of Jonas Glotfelty, residing on a farm south of town on Route 37, escaped from their enclosure last Sunday and strayed on to the roadway. Some unknown motorist ran into them and killed five of the animals outright, their remains being scattered for some distance along the concrete.

BRUCE HIGH WINS SOCCER CLASH FROM GRANTSVILLE

Allegany Countians Score Thirty-three Points In Tilt

Grantsville High School, winner of the Garrett county soccer championship, was defeated by Bruce High School of Westernport at Cumberland last Friday afternoon, 33 to 1, in the opening game of the State-wide championship tournament sponsored by the Palyground Athletic League of Baltimore.

Sixteen field goals and one penalty marker, thirty-three points in all, constituted a new record for the Allegany-Garrett series. Six years ago Barton High School defeated Oakland, Garrett county champions, 28 to 2 in Frostburg, but Bruce shattered that record Friday.

Coach John Grindle's outfit, keyed to the championship pitch, ran up a 21-0 lead at half time, added 12 more points in the second half and held the opposition scoreless 40 minutes when a penalty goal by Younkin, center forward, produced the Grantsville team's lone tally.

The closest score recorded in the series between Allegany county and Garrett county was made in 1921 when Barton defeated Kitzmiller 4-1.

Grantsville was Garrett county's representative for the second time, Kitzmiller and Oakland having won the other titles.

History of the Series

Year	Score
1921	Barton 4; Kitzmiller 1
1922	Barton 8; Kitzmiller 0
1923	Barton 6; Oakland 0
1924	Barton 9; Oakland 0
1925	Barton 28; Oakland 2
1926	Barton 18; Oakland 0
1927	Bruce 6; Kitzmiller 1
1928	Brue 6; Kitzmiller 1.
1929	Beall 13; Grantsville 2
1930	Bruce 8; Kitzmiller 0.

Those playing for the Garrett county champions were Folk, Loechel, Ross, W. Walls, Klotz, H. Walls, Robinson, Baer, Younkin, Bowers, Kamp; substitutes, Miller, Patton, Paul.

DEFECTIVE LIGHTS LEAD IN FAULTY AUTO DEVICES

82,317 Reports from Save-a-Life Inspection Show Bad Brakes Next Chief Offenders

With little more than two weeks of the inspection period remaining, E. Austin Baughman, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles, yesterday warned motorists that there would be no leniency on the ruling that 1932 license plates would not be issued to an automobile owner unless his machine officially has been marked satisfactory.

Third of Autos Inspected

Although the campaign has been in operation for a month, and the period has been extended two weeks over that of last year, only about one-third of the automobiles registered in Maryland have been inspected to-date, Mr. Baughman said.

State police have been ordered to continue to divert all Maryland automobiles without the official red and white stickers to the nearest station.

Reports from save-a-life inspection stations throughout the State reveal that defective lights out-number all other flaws in the safety mechanisms of the automobiles examined thus far.

The office of the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles yesterday said that while 137,195 automobiles have been inspected to date, figures are available only from the 82,317 reports which it has tabulated. These figures show that the lights of 29,049 machines either have been adjusted or replaced, while faulty brakes on 19,320 automobiles have been relined or adjusted.

Windshield Wipers Faulty

Windshield wipers follow brakes in point of numbers with 5,220 replaced or repaired, while 4,446 horns have been found defective. About 1,200 mirrors have been replaced and 960 obscured markers have been corrected, according to tabulated reports.

Since the opening of the campaign over 1200 cars have been inspected by the seven official inspection stations in Oakland. These stations are Central Garage, Auto Electric Service, Treacy Garage, Sharps Motor Company, E. S. Evans, C. H. Browning, and Kerins Brothers Garage.

Annual Re-registration of Scout Troop To Be Made Soon

The annual re-registration of members of the local Scout troop will be made within the next few weeks, according to George Hanst, scoutmaster. Blanks for this re-registration of the members have been received from national headquarters with orders to list only names of Scouts who intend to remain active in the troop.

With the exeeption of five or six, the entire membership of the troop will be re-registered. Each year every Scout in the country must re-register prior to the date of the organization of each individual troop. The Oakland troop was organized in December of 1924, and at the beginning of 1932 will be starting out on its eighth consecutive year. There will be approximately 40 registered for 1932.

LUTHERANS TO CELEBRATE 25TH ANNIVERSARY WEEK

Years Spent In Present Church To Be Commemorated Dec. 1-6

St. Mark's Lutheran church, Oakland, will celebrate the 25th anniversary of the building of the present church, with a week of special services, beginning on Tuesday evening, December 1, and closing with the special anniversary service on Sunday, December 6.

Men's night will be observed on Tuesday, December 1, and will be in charge of the Brotherhood. Rev. W. Roy Hashinger, of Morgantown, W. Va., will be the speaker.

Young People's Night will be observed Wednesday night and will be in charge of the Luther League. Rev. David Trimble, St. Matthew's Episcopal church pastor, will speak on "A Message to the Youth of the Church."

The women of the church will have charge of Thursday's services and the address will be made by Dr. Lewis Manges, of Harrisburg, Pa., the son of a former pastor here, Rev. E. Manges, who was minister at the time of the church dedication in 1906.

Friday night will be community night with a sermon by Rev. Walter B. Brock, "The Church and the Community." Greeting will be brought by the pastors of the various churches of the community.

Sunday morning, December 6, will be given over to a special anniversary service with a historical setting and messages from former pastors and greetings from friends of the congregation.

The present church was built following a fire in 1905 which destroyed the former edifice located at the corner of Third and Alder streets.

Local Relief Committee To Gather Supplies

The relief committee representing part of districts seven and fourteen of Garrett county, which includes Oakland, met last night at the home of Mr. A. D. Naylor to make plans for relief work here during this coming winter.

At this time Mr. A. D. Naylor was elected chairman of the committee; Mrs. Paul Naylor, secretary; and Mrs. Owen Treacy, treasurer. The other members of the committee are Mrs. F. E. Rathbun, Mrs. Rose Frazee, Mr. Harry Loar, Rev. C. B. Sines, and Rev. D. C. Trimble.

In the near future the members of this committee will canvass their district asking for donations. Anything in the way of foodstuffs, clothing, or money will be greatly appreciated. The committee will see that these things are collected in a central storehouse from which they will be distributed each Thursday morning between the hours of 9 and 12. This storehouse will be located for the present in the Naylor building, Liberty and Wilson streets, Oakland.

Those living in the country districts who would like to have a share in contributing to this relief committee may leave their supplies and donations at the store of A. D. Naylor and Co., Oakland.

MARION'S PECULIAR CIRCUMSTANCE

By FANNIE HURST

(©, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)
(WNU Service.)

MARION JOYCE did not realize that there was nothing unusual about her predicament. Analyzing it, it used to seem to her that no one had ever been harassed and harrowed as much as she in her peculiar circumstance.

The peculiar circumstance was that there was a particular person, who ever since Marion Joyce could remember, had been in her way. Not that there had been ever the slightest degree of conflict between Marion Joyce and this unconscious party to her discontent. They had grown up in the same town together, they had attended the same schools and occasionally had met socially. But from her earliest memories of Alice Laidlaw, there had been something about this attractive, vigorous personality, that had set to gnawing within Marion, dull pangs of jealousies and resentments.

It is true that in a way Alice Laidlaw had always been a leader, yet Marion, in her way, had by no means been an inconspicuous or incompetent student or member of the social life of her community. While their paths had crossed only casually, each of these girls, Marion Joyce and Alice Laidlaw, had been endowed with the gifts of personality and charm.

Of the two, Alice Laidlaw had more of the quality of aggressiveness which makes for general popularity. She was president of school-and-social organizations, where under the same circumstances Marion would only have been an active and respective member. Alice Laidlaw had an executive capacity for running things. Even when she was sixteen and in high school, she had been a potential club woman. She was then already a frequent feature in the newspapers, president of a literary society, member of a debating team, leader of a conspicuous student rebellion against faculty restrictions.

That was probably where the shoe pinched Marion. Although she would never admit it, even to herself, it must have been, that incorporated in the capable and intelligent figure of her colleague Alice Laidlaw, Marion beheld qualities that she herself yearned to possess. That was why, again without even admitting it to herself, Alice Laidlaw was in Marion's way. Every conquest of the Laidlaw girl was anathema to Marion. Without even her nearest and dearest friends suspecting it, Alice's election to this and that presidency, her graduation with honors, her subsequent prominence as a club woman, political woman, social worker, world traveler, were actually elements in making Marion Joyce's life, even after she was married to the man of her choice, Fred Markus, one of rankling discontent.

Curious how seldom the paths of these two women crossed, and yet come to think of it, by no means inexplicable. It was doubtless due to the fact that Marion could not bear to look upon the attainments and achievements of this girl who had always walked in paths that Marion yearned to tread.

To pick up the evening paper and find Alice Laidlaw's photograph confronting her, was sufficient to spoil her dinner and make her querulous with Fred. And with a dogged kind of perversity, it seemed to Marion that the successes of Alice Laidlaw took pains to thrust themselves under her very nose. A chance newspaper dropped in a public place would fall in a position to reveal a photograph of Alice Laidlaw to Marion. With frequency that seemed to Marion almost psychic, scraps of conversation which she overheard in theaters or in public conveyances, were as often as not, about Alice Laidlaw, her brilliancy, her success, her prominence. Seldom, if ever, was it Marion's good fortune to hear a slurring word or behold a slurring line spoken of Alice, and then, even when that happened, it only seemed to enhance her position among the great.

Unimportant people had no enemies.

Fred Marcus, who loved his wife, had no even the slightest inkling of this canker at her soul. If there were in her makeup certain human delinquencies, certain shortcomings, it seemed to Fred that she had fewer of them than the run-of-the-mill of wives, and it never occurred to him that even these few delinquencies in the woman he loved, such as her occasional irritabilities, were due to the subterranean fact that a woman named Alice Laidlaw was in her way.

To Fred Marcus, Alice Laidlaw was just a local woman of prominence. He had met her a few times and had even discussed her upon occasion with his wife, admiring her accomplishment without knowing that he was turning a knife in the heart of Marion.

There was to come a lull in this chronic soul-hurt of Marion's. The papers came out one day blaring the fact that Alice Laidlaw was to take up residence abroad for a period of five years where she was to study certain sociological conditions in the various capitals of Europe. There was a great hullabaloo over this enterprise, functions, entertainments, farewells, were staged in honor of the departing celebrity, and no prophet in her own country ever departed with more adulation than the local favorite, Miss Alice Laidlaw.

During the next five years word of Alice's accomplishments in foreign lands; tidings of her presentation at this and that court, and of her manner of projecting her home city into international prominence came floating back. But there was something in distance that seemed to ease the hurt in the heart of Marion. Besides in that period of five years, three children were born to the Fred Markuses, a new home had been planned and built, and the affairs of life had flowed in busily and happily. It was not that Marion forgot; it was not that her curious capacity to stumble across evidences of the success of Alice Laidlaw had in any way diminished, it was simply that distance had dimmed the picture and time had mitigated it.

Also, in that interval, even with the birth of her babies, Marion had tried to keep up contacts. She was member of several women's clubs, and while never an executive, her standing locally was that of an able woman. She was a member of important organizations, of the mayor's reception committee and had created in her home the air of culture and camaraderie that made it a focal point for social gatherings of distinction.

Ironically enough, the most important event in which Marion was called upon to participate as member of the mayor's reception committee was the return of Alice Laidlaw after an absence of five years.

It seemed to Marion that this was the straw that broke the camel's back. Nothing in the world could save her from the ordeal of standing in line to welcome back into the fold the triumphant figure of the returning native except the plea of illness. And despising herself, hating herself, berating herself, Marion remained at home on the day of Miss Laidlaw's arrival on that very plea.

It was more than she could endure to behold this woman who had succeeded in walking the paths she yearned to walk, return in triumph.

Triumph it was.

For two weeks after her return, the local newspapers carried stories of this or that opinion, exploit or happening connected with Alice Laidlaw.

While sitting in the railroad station one day waiting for the return of her husband Fred, who had been away on a business trip, Marion's eye, with its usual cruel capacity for overlooking no printed word that had to do with Alice Laidlaw, lit on an article in a newspaper held by the man in front of her on the waiting-room bench. Sitting there with her fingers clinched, as always under such circumstances, Marion flagellated herself by reading the article from end to end.

It was a feature story in which Alice Laidlaw related to a woman reporter her idea of "an ideal woman."

How could Marion refrain from reading such an article? What was Alice Laidlaw's idea of an "ideal woman"—Alice Laidlaw, who was herself an ideal woman to so many others, Alice Laidlaw, who had always been a leader since her earliest school days, who was the subject of so many conversations, who had won international prominence and for whom everybody worthwhile in the whole town turned out to welcome home?

Marion read on excitedly. The "ideal woman" was a mother and a home-keeper; she was intelligently interested in civic affairs, but to her, home affairs came first; she had not one child, but several; her home was the focal point for social gatherings of distinction.

At the conclusion of the article, Alice Laidlaw cited a local figure to typify a woman whose life, activities and characteristics embodied all the fine qualities that went to make up Alice Laidlaw's composite version of the ideal woman.

The figure whom she had chosen from the local community as her symbol was Marion.

Experts Lay Down Rules for Correct Breathing

If you are curious as to whether or not you breathe correctly, unbuckle your belt and slip it up a few inches, halfway between waistline and bust line. Exhale and pull your belt in as tight as you can until you're empty as a pricked balloon. Now, take a whopper of a breath and see how many notches you can expand. It is here that chest expansion should be measured, instead of under the armpits, as your old gym teacher believed.

"Ordinarily breathing should be unconscious," says Dr. Eugene Lyman Fisk, in Collier's Weekly, "but everyday deep-breathing exercises should be employed. People who are shut in all day may partly compensate for the evils of indoor living by stepping out of doors and taking a dozen deep breaths whenever the opportunity presents itself."

"Do your heavy breathing in the morning when you first wake up," says Helen Hayes. "Repeat it whenever you feel fatigue or nervousness creeping over you. It will also cure the insomnia that may attack you at night."

Men as a rule breathe more deeply than women. A man's diaphragm is placed lower than a woman's, which gives his chest more room; and his more active habits of life have made this muscle stronger. Women, with a few glowing exceptions such as athletes, actresses and singers, are shallow breathers. In the hustle and bustle of life in general, they are apt to neglect their diaphragms.

TWENTY-SIX MARRIAGES PERFORMED DURING WEEK

Total Number For the Month of November Thus Far is 55

Twenty-six marriage licenses were issued during the week ending Monday at noon from the offices of the Clerk of the Circuit Court in Oakland, bringing the total for the month of November to 51. Fifteen of those issued were granted on Saturday, the 14th, while only one couple applied on Friday, the thirteenth, both parties being divorcees and evidently having no fear of the supposed jinx.

The year's total to date is now 1181. One license issued was marked "don't publish," while one applicant was refused a permit.

A FORGOTTEN DUEL

Every American schoolboy has been taught that George Washington, during the eight years of the Revolution, had other enemies than the English to fight. More than once jealous generals sought to oust him and take his place. One of these attempts, the Conway conspiracy, is referred to in all American history books; but historians have passed over the story of the duel it caused between Generals John Cadwalader and Thomas Conway. Now, as we near the celebration next year of the two hundredth anniversary of George Washington's birth, all these personal issues pertaining to his life take on new interest, and this incident of Conway's duel needs to be recalled.

We are informed by the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission that General Cadwalader so hotly resented General Conway's surreptitious move against the Commander-in-Chief that he challenged Conway to a duel. Probably the only record of what actually took place between the two generals was set down many years after the event by Alexander Garden, an officer in the Continental Army and aid-de-camp to General Nathaniel Greene.

As described by Garden, General Cadwalader arrived at the appointed rendezvous accompanied by General Dickinson as his second, while Conway's attendant was Colonel Morgan. It was agreed by the seconds that on the word being given, the principals might fire at their own time, either off-hand or with deliberate aim.

The parties having taken their positions and the word being given, Conway immediately raised his pistol, fired—and missed. General Cadwalader was about to fire when a strong gust of wind disturbed his aim, and he lowered his weapon.

"Why not fire, General Cadwalader?" Conway taunted him.

"We came here not to trifle," General Cadwalader retorted, "When the wind has passed, you will find me acting my part."

"You shall have every chance of performing it well," Conway jeered, and at once turned himself full face to his adversary.

General Cadwalader fired, and Conway fell forward on his face, the bullet entering his mouth and carrying away a sliver of his jawbone. The wound, however, was not fatal.

The call of honor having been satisfied, the two officers, Garden records, parted without resentment, and Conway lived to write to George Washington a letter of sincere repentance for his part in the cabal against the Commender-in-Crief. Whether Washington replied is not known to history. No answer has ever been found.

Some new ways to prepare Thanksgiving Cranberries

Cranberry Juice Cocktail

Four cups cranberries, 2-3 cup of granulated sugar, 4 cups water. Cook cranberries and water until skins pop open (about 5 minutes), strain thru cheesecloth. Bring the juice to boiling point, add sugar and cook until it boils 2 minutes. Serve cold. For future use put in sterilized bottles well corked and sealed.

Quick Cranberry Conserve

Cook ½ quart cranberries and ½ cup of sugar together as in making sauce. Then add 1 cup seeded raisins, ¼ cup chopped walnuts and chopped rind of one orange plus its juice.

Jellied Cranberry Salad

One or 2 cups chopped cranberries, 1 package lemon gelatine, 1 cup boiling water, ½ cup nut meats, ½ cup sugar, 1 cup water, 1 cup celery, cut up. Dissolve gelatine in boiling water; cook cranberries with sugar and water and add to the gelatine mixture. Let cool and add the celery and nut meats and place in molds and then serve with mayonnaise.

Cranberry Sherbet

One cup crushed cranberries (one pound), 3 tablespoons lemon juice, ¾ cup water, 1¾ tablespoons lemon-flavored gelatine, 3 egg whites, 1 cup whipped cream. Cook cranberries and run through potato ricer. Boil sugar and water two minutes. Pour over gelatine and stir until dissolved; cool; add cranberries, lemon juice and cool. Whip cream and fold with eggs. Add fruit and freeze.

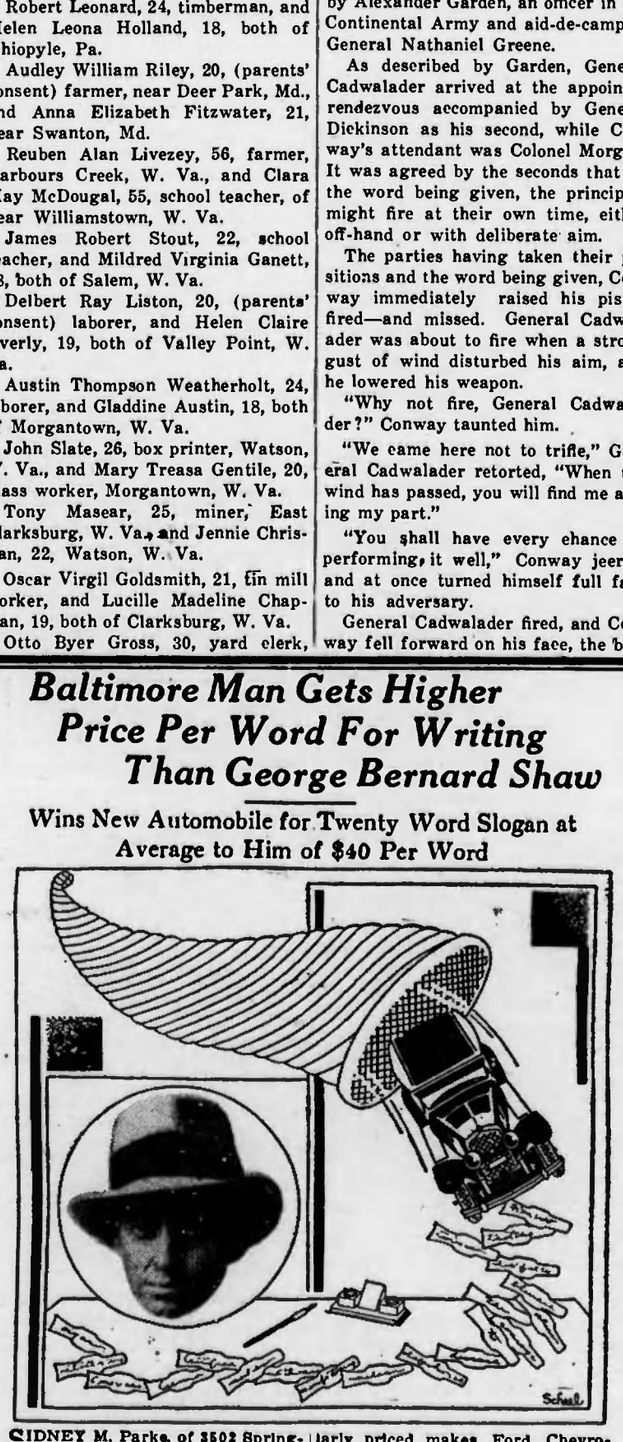
Baltimore Man Gets Higher Price Per Word For Writing Than George Bernard Shaw

Wins New Automobile for Twenty Word Slogan at Average to Him of $40 Per Word



SIDNEY M. Parks, of 3502 Springdale Ave., Baltimore, Md., has topped George Bernard Shaw and other literary lights in the price he receives per word for his writing, it was announced today. He has won a new car for a twenty word slogan submitted in the national Cremo Twenty Word Cigar Band Statement Contest. The price paid to him per word is around $40.

"An auto a day helps drive depression away" is the slogan which the American Cigar Company seems to be following in its contest for a 20 word statement descriptive of the merits of the Certified Cremo Cigar. Every day, Sunday excepted, until further notice, it is awarding a closed car, allowing a choice of the three leading popularly priced makes, Ford, Chevrolet, or Chrysler's Plymouth. Mr. Parks is the 113th to win an automobile in this contest.

In addition to stimulating the automobile business, the contest's popularity is creating a trail of jobs in its wake. The many thousands of letters which arrive at the company's offices every day are doing their bit toward giving the paper industry a boost. Dozens of extra employees are kept busy all day sorting the contest entries as they come in.

With responses pouring in from all parts of the country, it is pointed out that it is a real distinction to make up a statement that will stand out as a winner in the contest.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

Christine Ackerman vs. Charles W. Ackerman.
No. 3044 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a divorce a vinculo matrimonii by the plaintiff from the defendant.

The bill states:

1. That on April 19, 1923, she was married to a certain Charles W. Ackerman, of Fayette county, Pennsylvania, with whom she lived as his wife until April 23, 1925, and again from April, 1928, to July 4, 1928, during which time they resided at the home of your oratrix in Garrett county, Maryland.

2. That, though the conduct of your oratrix towards her husband, the said Charles W. Ackerman, has always been kind, affectionate and above reproach, the said Charles W. Ackerman has, without any just cause or reason, abandoned and deserted her, and has declared his intention to live with her no longer, and such abandonment has continued uninterruptedly for at least three years and is deliberate and final, and the separation of the parties beyond any reasonable expectation of reconciliation.

3. That on the 3rd day of December, 1929, a decree of divorce a mensa et thoro was granted to your oratrix by this Honorable Court as against the said Charles W. Ackerman, the same being No. 2904 Equity in this Court, since which time your oratrix has neither seen nor heard directly from the said defendant.

4. That your oratrix and the said defendant, Charles W. Ackerman, have had no children born to them from said marriage.

5. That your oratrix resides in the State of Maryland and the defendant is a non-resident of the State of Maryland, whose present place of residence is unknown to your oratrix, but whose last known address was Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

The bill then prays for a divorce a vinculo matrimonii of the plaintiff from the defendant, for general relief and for an order of publication.

IT IS THEREUPON, This 11th day of November, 1931, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, in Equity, that the plaintiff by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Garrett County, Maryland, once in each of four successive weeks before the 11th day of December, 1931, giving notice to the said absent defendant of the object and substance of this bill, warning him to appear in this Court, in person or by solicitor, on or before the 28th day of December, 1931, to show cause, if any he has, why a decree should not be passed as prayed.

"Little Stories for Bedtime"

by Thornton W. Burgess

FARMER BROWN'S BOY

You cannot always surely tell
If things be ill or things be well.

WHEN the poor suffering wounded little Bob White crawled under the fence he didn't know it but he had crawled onto the land of Farmer Brown and a sign warned all hunters to keep off—that no shooting would be allowed there. And when that poor little Bob White looked up and saw right in front of him one of those two-legged creatures like the one with the terrible fire-stick, and at once had given up all hope, he had been too sick at heart and suffering too much to recognize Farmer Brown's boy.

But that is just who it was. You see Farmer Brown's boy had been so anxious for fear that some hunter would come over on his father's land in spite of the signs that he had gone down on the Green Meadows just as soon as he had eaten his breakfast. He had seen the hunter on the land of Farmer Jones and had heard him shoot. With all his heart Farmer Brown's Boy had hoped that the hunter had missed. Now as he looked down and saw the poor little suffering bird he knew that the hunter had not missed and fierce anger swelled his heart. He quite forgot that he himself used to hunt with a terrible gun before he had learned to know and to love the little people of the Green Meadows and the Green Forest.

He stooped and very tenderly lifted the little Bob White, who closed his eyes and was sure that now all would soon be over.

"You poor little thing. You poor, poor little thing," said Farmer Brown's boy as he looked at the torn and broken wing. Then he looked across at the hunter and scowled savagely. Just then the hunter saw him and at once started toward him. You see the hunter thought that perhaps if he offered Farmer Brown's boy money he would allow him to hunt on Farmer Brown's land. He knew that that was where Bob White and all his family had flown to. When he reached the fence he saw the little Bob White in the hands of Farmer Brown's boy.

"Hello!" exclaimed the hunter, in surprise, "I guess that's my bird!"

"I guess it's nothing of the sort!" retorted Farmer Brown's boy.

"Oh, yes it is," replied the hunter. "I shot it a little while ago, but it got away from me. I'll thank you to hand it over to me, young man."

"I'll do nothing of the sort," replied Farmer Brown's boy. "It may be the bird you shot, more shame to you. But it isn't yours; it's mine. I found it on our land and it belongs to me if it belongs to any one."

Now the hunter was tempted to reply sharply but remembering that he wanted to get this boy's permission to hunt on Farmer Brown's land he bit the angry reply off short and said instead, "Why don't you wring its neck? If you'll get your father to let me shoot on your land I'll kill another for you and then you will have a fine dinner."

Farmer Brown's boy grew red in the face. "Don't you dare put your foot on this side of the fence," he cried. I'd have you to know that these Bob Whites are my very best friends. They've worked for me all summer long, and do you suppose I'm going to let any harm come to them now if I can help it? Not much! Look how this poor little thing is suffering. The law lets you hunt them, but it's a bad law. If they did any harm it would be different. But instead of doing harm they work for me all summer long and then when the crops which they have helped us save are harvested we turn around and allow them to be shot! But they can't be shot on this land and the sooner you get away the better I'll like it."

Instead of getting angry the hunter laughed good naturedly. "All right, I'll keep off your land, sonny," said he. "But you needn't get so excited. They're only birds and were made to be shot."

"No more than you were!" retorted Farmer Brown's Boy. "And they've got feelings just as you have. This poor little thing is trembling like a leaf in my hand. I'm not going to wring its neck. I'm going to try to cure it." With this Farmer Brown's boy turned his back on the hunter and started for home. And the poor little Bob White, not understanding, had no more hope than before.

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS

By H. IRVING KING

COMPANY ON MONDAY

IF YOU have company on Monday you will have company every day during the week. As perhaps you know, for this superstition is general throughout the United States. It arises from that impulse in man, as old as the race itself, to "seek for a sign" at the beginning of any new enterprise, or the beginning of a new epoch or specified division of time; to "pierce the veil through which we may not see." The savage seeks for a sign from his medicine man before setting out on the warpath, and for this, when the Grecian fleet lay becalmed at Aulis ready to sail for the plains of Troy, did Iphigenia see aroaad her the "stern black-bearded kings, waiting to see her die." And the Roman Augurs sought not only for a sign "when the eagles marched to Rimini" but at stated intervals forecast the welfare of the Roman people.

A new enterprise, a new week, must have a sign at its commencement. Though Sunday is really the first day of the week in practice we regard Monday as the week's beginning; and something innate in us makes us regard a happening at the beginning of anything as a prognostic. If you have company on Monday it is "a sign" that you will have company every day of the week.

In some sections of the country people say that if you have company on Sunday—not Monday—you will have company the rest of the week. These people might be called the "strict constructionists."

Wealthy Eskimos

Prosperity appears to be smiling on some members of the so-called submerged races. An official of the Hudson's Bay company reports to Country Home that there are several Eskimo families on its books who make upward of $40,000 a year from the sale of white fox furs.

Their income is no more remarkable than some of their ways of spending it. Each of these aristocratic Eskimo families, for instance, buys coal at $300 a ton. They spend equally large amounts for radio equipment and airplane rides.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

"FISHING WITH A GOLDEN HOOK"

TO FISH with a golden hook is to fish for more than mere sport.

It is usually fishing with a sinister motive, fishing with the idea of looting a treasury, exploiting a franchise, mulcting a citizenry.

So, fishing with a golden hook, which is a euphemism for offering a bribe, has been in our language a long time.

While we find its earliest recorded use in English in Arthur Brook's "Tragical History of Romeus and Juliet" published in 1562, the metaphor originally appeared in the work of the Roman historian, Suetonius, particularly in his De Vita Caesarum; Augustus Octavianus.

A TRIBUTE

The following tribute has been paid the late Sister Mary Jarlath, daughter of Mrs. Mary Stanton of Oakland, in a letter addressed to her by Mrs. Kate R. Rasche, which The Republican is permitted to publish:

Blessed are they that die in the Lord; they rest from their labors and their works follow them.

My Dear Mrs. Stanton:

You can truly pray thus: "I have loved, O Lord, the innocence and the beauty of the bright children with which Thou hast blest the lives of my late beloved husband and myself. With angel voices hovering over the celestrial entrance, chanting their anthems, 'Welcome home, thou good and faithful,' the father gone on before of Sister Mary Jarlath, was looking out, waiting with open arms to enfold his exceedingly deserving child within them, to take her hand and lead her before the radiant throne to the Eternal Majesty, murmuring, 'we return to Thee, O, God, this thank offering; this precious gift Thou Thyself hast selected, out of the many treasured gifts and blessings Thou hast showered upon us.'"

We, your many, many deeply sympathetic friends who mingle our tears with your own, do not expect to cease weeping because Armistice Day, Thanksgiving, also Christmas joys and happiness are afloat upon our atmosphere, but we can let our tears be tears of rejoicing and gratitude in that your dear child is passing these and all future happy festivals with the joyful noble line of Barlow-Stantons and the other many relatives who have arrived.

Like our brave dead who fell in the terrible battle of the Meuse-Argonne, Sister Mary Jarlath died for a noble cause. She gave up her young life, her holy all, to the God who had endowed her with the self-abnegation, rare courage and true prayerful piety of a saint.

More than 1,200,000 American soldiers participated, were in the divisions that formed the spearhead of the counter attack against the Chateau-Thierry salient. The frightful fight of the Meuse-Argonne was begun, lasting 47 days of intense slaughtering. Supplies were constantly being carried to the fighters by brave, fearless, the undaunted. In the meantime high-explosive shells were bursting all about them, mowing them down, while helpful hands fell in line to "carry on smoothly," without even the stop of a comma.

Pens of industrious, indefatigable writers are daily pushing forth blazing chronicles of war and of war heroes, but only God's efficient recording angel tells of the cruel battle of endless days and nights in a constantly sweltering climate, without any let-up or relief, where our young American missionaries have chosen to help in the rescue of famishing precious souls for God's Kingdom. Anyway, who wants to fool time reading what a recording angel writes? One appreciative soul out of a hundred; maybe one out of a thousand.

There is no supply train following on the foreign mission battlefield. If a dollar is squeezed out of our vanity case, after hearing the recital of some missionary's pitiful hard luck story, we pass on feeling broke. How did we come to allow our heart to run away with our head? These do not take the time necessary to understand or study the why of the foreign missions.

Why should a girl of talent, of every kind of ability, highly educated and accomplished, choose to work among a few out-of-her-way souls in a field afar, when she could be eminently useful at home doing the same work—saving souls? Because intelligence and its twin-sister, education, has broadened her mind, opened a passage way into her heart to let in all neglected suffering humanity, be their color black, yellow or white.

There are plenty volunteers to fill the home missions who would fall over if asked to work among the heathen, who would need supply trains with delicacies to keep up their morale, who would not live for the sweet Lord's sake day in and day out on the natives' grub of maize, rice, curry and muddy water.

Sister Jarlath laid her beautiful young life, exquisite with every refinement of birth and of culture upon the altar of self-sacrifice. She closed her eyes and entered her last long sleep in the exile of Dacca, India. Her lone grave is there under the green waving, prayerful palms, six meagre miles from our antipodes, be the fact here chronicled.

Christmas, and the blessed Spirit of Christmas, has begun to pour its harmonious notes of "peace and good will" into our Oakland atmosphere, the home town of Sister Jarlath's nativity.

While we adore on bended knee the Infant Christ, the newborn King, O, Emmanuel! Thou hast laid Thy gentle becoming infant finger on the fair brow of Sister Mary Jarlath; Thou hast closed her eyes and she sleeps! While a morsel of Dacca green sod covers her beloved form, while those privileged weeping green palms are bending over her lone grave we love to think her beautiful soul has joined the holy choirs of angels and continues to sing the hymns that were so dear to her heart while she was present with us.

May thy soul rest this day in Holy Sion, dear Sister Mary Jarlath, formerly Miss Marie Stanton, of Oakland, Maryland. K. R. R.

Oakland, Nov. 17, 1931.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By FRANK P. LITSCHERT

Statements given out during recent weeks by leading Democrats to the effect that they do not favor the so-called debt cancellation scheme and believe that it would work a hardship on the American people, are causing many Washington politicians to wonder whether a change is not coming over the policy of the Democratic party with regard to our foreign affairs.

Since the historic fight over the League of Nations in the United States Senate more than a decade ago, a fight which resulted in the defeat of the internationalists, the Democratic party has carried a political handicap in its adherence to the League of Nations program. This has led a great many Americans to believe that the party is committed to internationalism in various forms and has caused it to suffer greatly at the polls. For every time the American people have had a chance to register their opinion on internationalism, it has been a verdict decidedly in the negative.

Several weeks ago Bainbridge Colby, one of the leaders in the Wilson administration, came out unqualifiedly against relieving the European nations of their debts at the expense of the American taxpayers. A few days ago, in a book of his experiences, just published, William G. McAdoo, Secretary of the Treasurey under President Wilson, declared himself against debt cancellation. And just the other day, in an Armistice Day speech, to be exact, Mr. Bernard M. Baruch, a recognized leader of the Democratic party and former chairman of the War Industries Board, said, among other things, in discussing France, Germany and Poland:

"It seems to me that no matter what composition we make of debts and reparations they will be of no avail until those three nations come to some permanent agreement that will bring about and continue peace in Europe. As a matter of fact, this peace lies in the hollow of the hand of France. It is for her to say if peace and happiness shall reign over Europe. It would be unwise for us to submit to any change in the debts and reparations until that is done.

"Many people ask for a cancellation of debts, but they cannot be canceled. If we forgive the money that is owed us, the American taxpayer, manufacturer, laborer and farmer must pay it, because the receipts from the war debts have become a part of our budget and if they are not paid by others they must be paid by us."

In an Armistice Day address at Cleveland, James W. Gerard, prominent Democrat and Ambassador to Germany in President Wilson's administration, advocated for peace, "an army of 500,000 men, an adequate navy and a resolution to sit tight and mind our own business."

In the newspapers the other day, Senator B. K. Wheeler, of Montana, who represents the Democrats in the so-called western progressive element, said in support of a proposed reservation to the World Court resolution:

"I can see no reason for the United States getting into the League. As for the Court, the action taken on the Austro-German customs pact was purely political and has done much to destroy the reputation of the Court."

There seems undoubtedly to be a drift in the Democratic ranks away from the internationalism which the party represented in the years immediately following the World War, an internationalism which, of course, has always been opposed by a group of Democrats centering around former Senator Reed of Missouri. If this drift is maintained, according to Washington observers, it means that the Democrats have come to realize the handicap which the accusation of internationalism has meant to their party, and are going to get back to first principles. It is too early of course, to predict as yet just how far this movement will go, but it is one of the interesting current developments in American politics, and may have far-reaching effects. Reports coming from the West and Middle West are to the effect that the people in those important sections of the country are becoming heartily tired of the emphasis placed on European politics by certain influences, especially the Eastern press, and it may be that Democratic leaders, some of them at least, are awakening to this situation.

At Little or No Cost
Avoid the Cold Winter—
Fun for Fish in Florida

Weather prophets say this year will be the longest and most severe Winter in 47 years. Why chance even a normal Winter cold, with its 6 to 12 tons of coal shoveling, heavy clothing and extra food, all additional costs over that required in a mild and Summer-like climate. The depression is right enough to consider shutting up shop, forgetting business cares and going on a health invigorating tour and change for five months. Average family savings on coal, clothing and food is easily $250.00 in five months, and a moderate house (furnished) for five months will cost in Florida $200.00. Decreasing possibility or securing hard money things about equal with living there three months. If the travel could be made at little cost, and if there be a possibility of earning something at light fascinating outdoor ——. That is how 35,000 members of THE ORDER OF HERMAN, a fishermen's organization, have worked out the problem, and have organized the—

Florida Fishing Pilgrimage

A trip to Florida for five months, eight-seeing, sun-bathing, fishing and living moderately and plainly in the actual conveys. bathing in the ocean water of the Gulf Stream, with enough warm to keep active and solid rest, seeing all there is to be seen in Florida. They have made arrangements to stay January and February in Miami the southern part of Florida and March, April and May in DeLand in the Northern part of Florida taking advantage of knowledge of experts as to climatic and other conditions. Through the number going they have been able to get a wholesale price upon the fare, effecting an average saving of about $75.00 a person on a return trip. So that they can announce that for every person who cares to join with them in their plan a coach fare on their special trains of—

$34.72 From Chicago To Miami and Return
$27.61 From Cincinnati To Miami and Return
$34.10 From St. Louis To Miami and Return
$26.05 From Washington To Miami and Return

All these tickets are good from Dec. 1, 1931 to June 1, 1932 on special trains going direct to reservation from Miami to DeLand, and if travel is Pullman a second berth included at just double price. No meals included.

Upon any of these above special trains reservations must be made and may be boarded on notice at any place on the line at the price fixed beyond. To further encourage travel each 20th of script of ORDER OF HERMAN will be issued for additional coach fares paid. Thus if you paid $22.50 from St. Paul and return $11.00 in script will be issued to you. This to get to Chicago, $11.00 in script will be issued to you. This script is good for meals and transfer at Camp Headquarters in Miami. The new railroad agent [illegible] price. Ask him the fare to a trip to Miami and [illegible] to see how much you would one of these central points is. Write us right away the information we require below and we may be able to effect a further saving for you by arranging a special train for a crowd from your section so as to [illegible] those special trains.

Our Finest Special Train Trips

We are organizing to make up six to ten special trains on holidays, as those features, starting from the 18th of December, 1931, until the 1st of February, 1932. From them we furnish all the [illegible] to and from. Who also have script upon ORDER OF HERMAN good in Florida for 50% of such additional coach fares you paid railroad from your place to reach the centers from which our special train starts. Those in script are good for food and supplies at Camp Headquarters. Thus if you paid $30.00 each from Boston to Cincinnati, you get back from us $10.00 in script. That reduces your travel expense. You should write at once, giving us the information we require below and reserving space, etc., also if possible we may have you more [illegible] getting up a special train for a crowd from your section.

M. to see [illegible] at 15 A. M. where after a big public dinner we will leave at 2 P. M. to go to Orlando where another big supper and reception will be given us leaving there at 12:30 P. M., to go to Miami where we will be [illegible] at Miami, where consists of West Palm Beach, Fort Lauderdale and Miami, where at each place Camp Headquarters of the ORDER OF HERMAN will be maintained and the tourists distributed in these three places right of easy reach for each other, [illegible] these places night of Dec. 31, Christmas Eve, there will be big banquets and a big ball where all the tourists from our other special trains and earlier arrivals will meet and open up the season. From Christmas to New Year's will be one round of pleasure for all of each of the three places and the welcoming of others upon the returning special trains.

Of course, we have described our big time trip and we invite you to be on it. The more the merrier. But if you cannot arrive at that time, but later there will be six or ten other special trains and each of them will receive a similar treatment in tour. Write us when you can go, and even if earlier. We will try to get together a sufficient number for each a special train. By March 1st the entire camp will learn Miami Sector and travel in train to DeLand Sector, consisting of Orlando, New [illegible] and DeLand, all within easy reach of each other, and [illegible] at DeLand Sector as at Miami there will be all kinds of movies, balls, receptions, musical entertainments, plays, banquets and real making events with free dining between.

On the return trip home the officers of Atlanta, Ga., will hold a reception, ball and banquet, so that will be the only stop on return trip.

The Order of Herman and Its Camp Employment for Everyone

The ORDER OF HERMAN is a National organization of sportsmen, now [illegible] 47,000 members, ($1.00 per year dues) and promotes comradeship in good sports—As described above they will promote fishing upon this pilgrimage. They furnish to our tourist members on this pilgrimage free medical and legal advice and services, picnics, and meeting grounds once a week, lectures, plays and recreations free during the pilgrimage and conventional stations where food, laundry and other necessities and supplies may be [illegible] This pilgrimage and the trains and tours are for members only; every person on these trains must be a member, [illegible] Association—ship is open to only white persons, male or female, no age or other restrictions. Application must be made on organization blanks and $1.00 membership dues must be paid in advance with application. Every member on this pilgrimage will be given a special badge and other identification [illegible] members of [illegible].

The ORDER OF HERMAN at these camps needs all kinds of help, particularly persons to man boats, trips, push and transport fish. The surplus fish that sportsmen catch are donated by them to The ORDER, and as well The ORDER buys at prevailing rate all the fish caught by many members, and also pays members to [illegible] either their catch. We will provide members here with employment, we prefer that members must have three to four days employment each week and aim to so arrange matters. From [illegible] a day is the average compensation—the aim is to provide ordinary sustenance. Nothing more. It is not an attempt to give employment where a big profit may be had for going.

If You Want to Go With Us on This Pilgrimage; Do This—

Send us 25 cents in silver to help pay the printing and postage necessary to send you details, facts, information, about the trips and copy of the By-Laws of the ORDER OF HERMAN and an official application blank or blanks necessary for you, your family and party, and also write us fully, your name, address, age, date and place of birth, citizenship and race, and the same about each of your party going along. Be sure to inform us if any of them are infirm, crippled or sick, and just what they can do if they require employment. Also give us the nearest railroad station to you and when you want to leave and when you will expect to return. Be sure to write plainly. Also write us name of paper you saw this advertisement in, and be sure to date your letter and give the time of the day you wrote it.

DIED.

MRS. BRUCE LICHTY

Mrs. Fannie B. Lichty, wife of Dr. Bruce Lichty, died at her home in Meyersdale, Pa., shortly after midnight Sunday. Death was due to cerebral hemorrhage after a week's illness, most of which time she lay in a coma.

Mrs. Lichty was the daughter of the late Senator Wm. R. Getty, of Grantsville. She was born in that town and grew to womanhood there. Mrs. Lichty was prominent in Meyersdale social circles and was a leader in welfare work in her home community. Besides her husband she is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Leland Becker and Mrs. Hilda Hostetler, Meyersdale, and one granddaughter, Margaret Becker. A sister, Mrs. Ella B. Keller, Grantsville, and a brother, L. E. Keller, Washington, D. C., also survive. Her niece, Mrs. Joseph F. Fahey, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John O. Getty, of Grantsville, is one of Garrett county's public health nurses. Mrs. Becker, who has spent the past two years in Russia with her husband, arrived home unaware of her mother's critical condition until landing, a day or two before her demise, in New York.

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock at the late home of the deceased, Rev. E. B. Black, pastor of Amity Reformed church, of which Mrs. Lichty was a member, officiating. Interment was made in the Meyersdale cemetery.

REV. LESLIE E. GOODWIN

Funeral services for the Rev. Leslie E. Goodwin, former rector of St. Matthew's Parish, Oakland, who died at Sparrow's Point, Baltimore, on Wednesday, where he was rector of an Episcopal church, were conducted at the church on Saturday, with interment in St. George's Society lot in Druid Ridge cemetery, Baltimore.

Mr. Goodwin was rector of the local church several years, being transferred to the rectorship of St. Matthew's church, Sparrow's Point, seventeen years ago. He was British by birth, but was descended from Americans who fought in the Revolution. Flags of both nations were carried at his funeral.

Rev. Goodwin spent a few weeks in Oakland last summer where he was a guest of Baltimore friends.

Maple Sugar Producers To Meet On November 30th

The annual meeting of the Garrett County Maple Products Association will be held at Oakland on Monday, November 30, at 2:30 o'clock in the office of the County Agent, John H. Carter, has been announced.

Plans for the inspection and grading of this year's crop will be discussed at this meeting and a membership campaign will be launched. The progress of the association will be pointed to those attending and the hope has been expressed that Garrett county will be brought to a higher level in the production of maple sugar and maple syrup, thereby making it more profitable to the producers.

Mr. Guy Stanton, of Grantsville, is president of the Association.

An Interesting Fact

EARLY ORGANIZATIONS IN MARYLAND

Many of our present-day institutions, as well as the division of citizens into factions, can be readily traced to the early Colonial periods.

As an instance, it was during the administration of Governor Copley (1692-1693) when an organization of the Forest Rangers, forerunners of our State Police, was developed. These Rangers were stationed at the fort and one-half of the force was required to leave the fort on Monday morning and range the frontier forest from the Patapsco to the Susquehannah until Saturday evening, the other half going forth on the following Monday and spending the week on the trail. Sundays were spent at the fort where a small library was provided, consisting of two Bibles, two books of the "Whole Duty of Man," two books of Catechism and a brief discourse on the "Whole Duty of Man." This was, probably, the beginning of the first circulating library to be established in Maryland.

During the same administration was established the first Coast Guard, the beginnings of our present efficient force which patrols our vast coast lines. In those times this body of men was principally engaged in protecting the whale and fish industries and preventing the lawless seizure of valuable wreckage along the coast and the illegal cutting down of valuable forests.

Passing to the administration of Governor Nicholson (1693-1698) we find that he urged "that a way be found for the building of a free school for the Province and a maintenance for a schoolmaster, an usher and a writing master that can cast accouts." To this request the Lower House responded by contributing towards the building of such a free school the sum of 45,400 pounds of tobacco and suggested that one school be established on the eastern and one on the western shore, and nominated Severn and Oxford as the two places. However, the school was not opened until 1701, when it was called "King William's School. This school was at first supported by both Virginia and Maryland by the imposition of a penny tax on tobacco.

It was during the administration of Nicholson that the first references to banks was made in an entry in the proceedings of the Assembly for September, 1696: "There is in bank for building the church," etc., and another as to using one-half the money in bank for the payment of the public levy, which the Governor thought to be rather high that year.

Also, in 1698, it first appears of record that physicians were called upon to testify as to the physical and mental condition of persons having business with the courts. But there was no long drawn-out testimony of doctors summoned for the plaintiff and defendant. More direct methods were used. For instance, one Robert Mason had received several summonses to appear in court, but failed to obey, claiming that to ride a horse the required distance would be injurious to his health. Physicians were directed to examine the delinquent and report. The examination was made by requiring the said Mason to mount a horse and ride around the town, after which another examination was made, when the board of examiners reported "that he has sustained no damage."

It was as early as 1638 that Father White urged the construction of a hospital in the Province, but it was not until 1698 that one was actually opened for patients at the "Cool Springs of St. Maries." By the way, Father White seems to have been the first ardent prohibitionist in Maryland, as we find that both on the Ark and the Dove and during the first settlement of the Province he contended that the liquor prescribed by the doctor did the patient more harm than good, and that those who abstained from its use, under his urging, fared better than those in charge of the doctor.

A card party will be held Tuesday evening, November 24, for the benefit of the fire department at the Knights of Pythias Hall. The patronage of the public is solicited.

MAN SLAIN BY "JOKING" GIRL AT WILSON STATION

Jacob McRobie, 28, Shot Last Thursday By Girl Who Playfully Pointed Gun at Him

THOUGHT IT WAS EMPTY

Shot in the back when a girl playfully pointed a rifle at him and pulled the trigger of the weapon, Jacob McRobie, 28, son of Wesley McRobie, of Wilson Station, about 12 miles east of Oakland on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, died last Thursday afternoon in the office of Dr. N. I. Broadwater, Oakland, shortly after being taken there by neighbors following the accidental shooting of their friend.

Miss Edna Friend, also of Wilson, who shot the man, was exonerated by Garrett county authorities, following an investigation of the facts surrounding the death of the young man.

Miss Friend is aged 15 years. The couple left the McRobie home at four o'clock Thursday afternoon, planning to engage in target shooting at the Brown Camp, a short distance from Wilson Station. The girl was carrying a .22-calibre repeating rifle.

Miss Friend told the officers that McRobie started to enter the camp and that she jokingly said, "Don't go in there or I'll shoot you," at the same time pointing the weapon. She did not know the gun was loaded, she said, when she pulled the trigger of the weapon.

Following the explosion, McRobie fell, crying out, "My God, you did shoot me!" He then said: "You fixed me, but I know you did not do it on purpose." Several men at the camp witnessed the shotting and heard the girl scream. They ran forward and picked up the wounded man and placing him in a car brought him to Oakland. McRobie died five minutes after being taken into Dr. Broadwater's office. The bullet entered his back and lodged in his right chest. He did not regain consciousness after saying that he knew Miss Friend did not shoot him purposely.

County Coroner W. A. Gonder, Sheriff Haenftling, Deputy Spear and W. W. Dawson, State's Attorney, conducted a thorough investigation following the death of the man and concluded after hearing evidence of the others present at the Brown Camp, that the man came to his death in an accidental manner.

Funeral services were held Sunday from Mt. Zion church.

WASHINGTON'S STOCKADE UNCOVERED AT OLD FORT

Workmen at Ft. Necessity Find Well-Preserved Walls, 177 Years Old, 2 Feet Under Ground

Workmen employed in excavation for the reconstruction of Fort Necessity in the mountains, 10 miles east of Uniontown, uncovered part of the original stockade which Geo. Washington and his army occupied 177 years ago. The well-preserved wood was found about two feet under the surface of the ground, as also were a quantity of bullets, still showing marks of mold and spent balls fired from French and Indian guns.

Five large iron balls, apparently intended for use in swivel guns, with which Washington defended the fort, also were found.

Workmen, who have been employed for several days on the Fort site, expect to unearth skeletons of men buried before General Washington evacuated the fort. Many persons rushed to the mountains when work of the discovery was spread.

In the high schools, Grantsville, 95.2; Kitzmiller, 94.5; Kempton, 93.8; Oakland, 93.1; Friendsville, 92.6; Accident, 90.6. The average percentage of attendance was 94.

Cold Weather Forecast For Thanksgiving Day

Brisk Thanksgiving weather, with probable fixings of snow here and there, is in the making for states east of the Missippii river, as the West's severe cold wave marched along.

The frigid weather continued on the Pacific coast, in the Rocky Mountain region and entrenched in the Mississippi valley states, with a promise that by the Holiday, abnormal high temperature would be routed even along the Atlantic seaboard.

The continuance of Indian summer and unprecedented warm temperatures for the past two weeks or more in this section has caused garden owners to worry about their early spring flowers, but others have rejoiced in the fact, knowing that each warm day now means less winter when it does come.

LUTHERANS TO CELEBRATE WITH SPECIAL SERVICES

Will Mark 25th Anniversary of Building of Present Church

Plans have been completed for the celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the building of the present Lutheran church in Oakland, beginning on Tuesday, December 1.

This celebration also marks the seventy-third anniversary of the building and dedication of the first Lutheran church in Oakland, and the thirty-eighth year of the dedication of the second Lutheran church in Oakland, corner of Third and Alder streets, which was destroyed by fire January 5, 1905.

Four special services will be held preparatory to the special homecoming service on Sunday morning, December 6.

Tuesday will be "Men's Night," in charge of the brotherhood, with Rev. Roy Hashinger, Morgantown, W. Va., the speaker. Wednesday will be "Young People's Night," with Rev. David C. Trimble the speaker.

Thursday will be "Women's Night," with Dr. Lewis Manges, Harrisburg, Pa., the speaker. Dr. Manges is the son of Rev. Edmund Manges, pastor of St. Mark's church for many years.

Friday will be "Community Night" with a sermon by Rev. W. B. Brock. Greetings from the surrounding ministers will also be brought.

A history of the congregation will be given at the homecoming service on Sunday morning, December 6. Letters from former pastors will be read. On Sunday evening Rev. C. A. Shilke will preach a special sermon, "A Look Ahead." The public is invited to these services.

UNINSPECTED AUTOS NOW TOTAL 130,000 IN STATE

Safety Period in Maryland Will End on November Thirtieth

With only a few days of the safety inspection period for automobiles remaining, 130,000 cars still are to be examined, E. Austin Baughman, commissioner of Motor Vehicles, said yesterday.

He requests that all motorists cooperate in avoiding a last-minute congestion.

Reports have been received to date on the inspection of about 200,000 of approximately 330,000 automobiles registered in Maryland, the commissioner stated. Thousands of other machines also have been inspected but the reports have not been received at th office of the Motor Vehicle commissioner.

Motorists Warned

Although the response to the campaign has been gratifying, a number of motorists apparently have failed to take an interest in safety, and the attention of his department will be concentrated on this group in the few days remaining, Mr. Baughman asserted.

He warned that no motorist would be permitted to obtain his 1932 license plates if his machine has not heen inspected in the allotted period, and that no excuses will be accepted for failure to cooperate in the campaign. The safety campaign will end at midnight next Monday.

The seven inspection stations of Oakland have examined approximately 1,500 cars, a check-up has revealed.

Wrecks Car Trying to Evade Officer Currie—Is Fined $133

Trying to evade Officer T. E. Currie along route 37 Sunday afternoon, John P. Brown, of Ripley, W. Va., drove his Essex coupe into the stone wall of the J. T. Mitchell property, about one-half mile north of Oakland, and was arrested on charges of reckless driving under the influence of liquor. Officer Currie had given chase from King's Run but Brown was not inclined to stop.

At a hearing before W. A. Gonder, justice, he was fined $133 on the two charges, and was released Monday from the county jail upon payment of the fine.

Fined for Trespassing

James Baker and Stella Sines, both of Oakland, were each fined $2 and costs before Justice A. S. Teats Tuesday morning, on charges of trespassing in the Fair buildings.

Clarence Swauger, 26, Bear Hill, is being held in the Oakland jail charged with being drunk and disorderly. He was arrested by Constable Ross at the order of his father and brought to Oakland Sunday night. He will be given a hearing Friday morning.

TUBERCULOSIS SEAL SALE WILL OPEN THANKSGIVING

Mrs. C. Milton Sincell Named Chairman for Garrett County

With the mailing of more than 200,000 direct mail appeals to various sections of the State the twenty-fifth annual tuberculosis Christmas Seal Sale of the Maryland Tuberculosis Association will get under way on Thursday, Thanksgiving Day.

Funds obtained from the annual sale of seals in the counties each year are used to help finance the public health work, and in helping to maintain the "Miracle House" at Claiborne, Maryland, for undernourished children, and the state-wide free chest clinics.

William M. Matthews, Managing Director of the Maryland Tuberculosis Association stated that plans had been completed for the drive today. A goal of $90,000 has been set for the State of Maryland. Thirty-five million seals have been received at the State Office in Baltimore.

The first Christmas Seal Sale in the United States was promoted twenty-five years ago, to raise money for a tuberculosis hospital in Delaware.

Christmas Seals also make possible a state-wide health educational program, nursing service, industrial work and medical research.

The Seal Sale Chairman for Garrett county is Mrs. C. Milton Sincell, and her plan of distribution will be similar to that used in past years.

Pomona Grange to Meet at Pleasant Valley Hall

The regular quarterly meeting of Garrett County Pomona Grange has been set for Thursday, December 3, at Pleasant Valley Grange hall. Unlike many previous Pomona all day meetings, this session is confined to an evening meeting beginning at 8 p. m.

The membership of Pomona Grange consists of patrons from Sunnyside, Shady Dell, Pleasant Valley, and Ryan's Glade and a representation is expected from each of these communities.

Program Open To Public

Following a short business meeting the Lecturer's hour program will be open to the public. The program will include numbers by a male quartet under the direction of George Brown of Mt. Lake, numbers by Wayne Wolfe. Miss Sara B. Huff, Morgantown, W. Va., may be present to direct other musical numbers. The speakers will be announced later.

Refreshments will be served.

Regular Scout Court of Honor to Meet Monday Evening

The regular meeting of the Court of Honor of Oakland Troop, No. 1, Boy Scouts of America, will be held on Monday evening, November 30, according to Harland L. Jones, chairman. Scouts who have been passed by the official examiners in their respective subjects will appear before the court for final examination on Monday evening.

Thirteen scouts were present on an overnight hike at their permanent camping quarters on Deep Creek Lake over the week-end. This is the latest date in the year that an overnight has ever been taken by the scouts. Those present were Donald Stemple, Carroll Casteel, Gerald Iman, Robert Browning, Walter Dawson, Robert Altstetter, Charles Davis, Schell Hoye, Geo. Stuck, Robert Utterback, Gene Nordeck, Irvin Broadwater, Kenneth Lawton, the scoutmaster and guest, Joe Bill Ours.

Dr. A. J. Mason In Cumberland Hospital With Broken Leg

In an automobile accident which occurred in Friendsville on Monday, Dr. A. J. Mason, aged physiclan of that place, suffered a fractured right leg and bruises when a car backed into him as he was standing on the street. Dr. Mason was taken to the Memorial Hospital in Cumberland immediately following the mishap where he is under the care of Dr. W. A. Gracie and other members of the staff of that institutlon.

Union Thanksgiving Service To Be In Presbyterian Church

The Union Thanksgiving service will be held in Garrett Memorial Presbyterian church Thursday morning at 10 o'clock.

Rev. C. A. Shilke, pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran church, wil preach the sermon. The offering will go to the needy of the county.

Billiard Parlor Opens At New Location

William Gibson's Billiard parlor reopened on last Saturday evening in its new location in the Treacy building, on Alder street. Its former location was in the Gonder building on Second street.

Mr. Gibson will manage the parlor personally, and has two tables at the disposal of his customers.

LOCH LYNN RESIDENCE IS RAZED BY FIRE SATURDAY

Blaze of Undetermined Origin Destroys Whittaker Home

The summer residence of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Brann, New York City, formerly the Whittaker home in Loch Lynn Heights, was entirely destroyed by fire of undetermined origin last Saturday morning about 6:30 o'clock. The house had not been occupied for about two months and it is thought that incendiarism was the cause of the blaze.

The structure was a two-story, 7-room frame building, and when the fire was discovered the entire interior was a mass of flames.

The Oakland fire department was called and answered within two or three minutes, and confined its efforts toward saving adjacent buildings and preventing the spread of the flames through the nearby forest.

Fire fighters were able to salvage but little of the furniture in the house. The dwelling was insured for $4,00 and the furniture for $1,500, it has been learned.

Mrs. Brann, the owner of the destroyed house, is a daughter of the late Mrs. Whittaker.

HUNTERS ASKED TO GUARD AGAINST FOREST FIRES

State Forester Besley Wants Game Protected for Future Sport

Thanksgiving Day and the rest of the week will see many hunters in field and forest in pursuit of bird or game and in order that there may be more and better hunting, State Forester F. W. Besley, issued a request that all sportsmen use unusual care with fire in the woods in order to protect the future of their sport. According to Mr. Besley, forest fires kill more game than all the hunters combined. Much improved hunting would be available if forest fires could be prevented.

Hunters sometimes forget that forests are usually dangerously dry during the hunting season. Mr. Besley, therefore, warned that every hunter should take a personal interest in seeing that camp fires are watered out or deeply covered with mineral soil; that smokers carefully extinguish pipe, cigarette or match; that hollow trees are not ignited when smoking out animals; and that shotguns scatter no smoking shell-wadding when shooting is done. Wild birds and game depend upon the forest for food and shelter. Forest fires destroy both and kill the game. True sportsmen who are interested in future game are requested to take an active part in supporting the effort of the State Department to prevent forest fires.

Civic Club Meets—Needs More Clothes for Needy

The regular monthly meeting of the Oakland Civic club was held on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. F. E. Rathbun, when discussions were held on further helping the needy of the county this winter.

The committee on this work stressed the acute need of all kinds of clothing, stating that they could be made into quilts, rugs, etc., if useless for wearing apparel, and that many of the clothes for older people could be cut down and made into clothes for boys and girls.

Members of the Civic club have been making over old clothes, patching and darning, etc., and requested more men's overcoats, women's coats, men's suits, hats, dresses, and particularly underwear, so that all the needy of the county would be assured of warm clothing for the winter winds.

Mrs. Samuel Cole, public health nurse, spoke of opening a class in Personal Home Hygiene, under the direction of the Red Cross, sometime after Christmas. The class would be open to everyone.

Miss Lottie Loar made a report of the progress being made on Washington Spring Park.

REV. MIDDAUGH FAVORS PROPOSED PARK PROGRAM

Is One of Many Who Have Made Favorable Comments on Developing Extension Work Here

IS A REAL OPPORTUNITY

Among the many who have commented favorably on the proposed development of Mt. Lake Park as a center for agriculture extension activities for parts of Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Maryland, Rev. I. S. Middaugh, Methodist minister, living at Mt. Lake Park, believes that this is a real opportunity for the Park, and for the people of this tableland area, such as they have never had before.

Rev. Middaugh points out in his article the numerous advantages that rural people could have by combining the extension knowledge of three states, and what it would mean to the community.

"It would mean leadership in developing one of the first great cooperative centers for the cultivation of rural life in America," he begins.

"It would mean a great distributing center for the practical agricultural knowledge assembled through the expert research work of three great university staffs.

"It would mean a place for the working out of the ideas of Adult Education, one of the finest of the late theories of extension teaching. Here groups of farmers might assembl to enjoy the same advantages of study in the latest agricultural practices, as the student at the state college. Dr. T. B. Symons, of College Park, Maryland, is a leader among the extension directors of the nation in this work.

"Here can center the Country Life Conference work, where, under the vast canopy of the Kingdom, we study rural life and its varied interests with a right emphasis. How fortunate that we can draw upon the wide experiences of Mr. Nat T. Frame, Director in West Virginia in this work.

"No state has a stronger program of practical extension work than does Pennsylvania. With their experts under Dr. McDowell working in cooperation what strides might be made in building up the typical agriculture of this great mountain tableland.

"Columbia University has authorized Miss Sara B. Huff to direct practice teaching of community music in some central location giving university credit for her courses. Can we afford to miss such a contribution to the broad program of the Park?

"Let us picture five thousand farm people from the surrounding communities, assembled under the leadership of Miss Huff in the great amphitheatre, each Sunday afternoon for community singing, later to sit for a brief vesper service led by a man of the intellectual and spiritual quality of a Cadman or a Fosdick.

"May we not place in the picture on the one hand the thousands of families who make up the counties of the tableland, with their boys and girls desiring opportunity and expression, the churches and schools looking for leadership. Then on the other hand see the expert guidance available through the staff of three great universities, directing demonstration schools, classes in adult education, country life conferences, pageants, community sings, fairs and jubilees. What manhood and womanhood might go out of this tableland to serve the world, prepared and envisioned thru such leadership centered here.

Pythians Observe Crellin Night

Crellin Night was observed at the regular meeting of Garrett Lodge No. 113, Knights of Pythias, last Friday evening, when Charles W. Ream had charge of the program.

Selections were given by the Crellin band with Harry S. Mickey directing; violin and guitar duet by Marshall Sanders and David Delawder; dialogue of the Two Black Crows, Ray Cogley and "Red" Root.

Mr. Ream delivered the main address of the evening and remarks were also made by Grover Stemple and Rev. C. A. Shilke. Approximately 100 were present. Refreshments were served.

The election of officers will be held on Friday, December 4, it has been announced.

Lesson for November 29

PAUL'S LETTER TO PHILEMON

GOLDEN TEXT—There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither bond nor free, there is neither male nor female: for ye are all one in Christ Jesus.

LESSON TEXT—Philemon.

PRIMARY TOPIC—How to Treat a Servant.

JUNIOR TOPIC—A Servant Becomes a Brother.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—A Slave Made a Brother.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Christ Transforming Social Relationships.

This letter is a private one. Philemon was a member of the church at Colosse. Onesimus, his slave, wronged him, and fled to Rome. At Rome he came under Paul's influence and was converted. Paul sent Onesimus back to Philemon with this letter—one of the most tactful, tender, and beautiful letters ever written, and the first anti-slavery petition ever penned.

I. His Salutation (vv. 1-3).

In salutation he refers to himself as a prisoner and links Philemon to himself as a fellow laborer in the gospel, having as his special aim to touch Philemon's heart. He makes mention of Apphia, Philemon's wife, and Archippus, the son, who had already enlisted as a fellow soldier.

II. Philemon's Reputation (vv. 4-7).

Paul paid a fine tribute to Philemon's character, reminding him that he never prayed without bearing him up before God.

1. His faith and love toward the Lord and all saints (v. 5). It was Paul's hope and desire that Philemon's faith might bear fruit in Jesus Christ. With such an approach, the way was open to Philemon's heart.

2. His ministry to the saints (v. 7) Philemon was most generous in his ministry to the poor saints.

III. Paul's Request (vv. 8-16).

He requests Philemon to receive back Onesimus, the runaway slave, as a brother in Christ. Note the incomparable delicacy and courtesy with which Paul approaches Philemon.

1. He beseeches instead of commands (vv. 8-10). Though conscious of his right to enjoin, he pleads as the prisoner of Jesus Christ for love's sake.

2. He makes his plea on the grounds of grace (vv. 11-14). He admits that Onesimus has been unprofitable, has forfeited all claim upon Philemon, and that on grounds of justice his plea might well be rejected and yet because Onesimus was begotten in his bonds (v. 10), was in a real sense a part of his own suffering nature (v. 12), he ventures to suggest that he should be accepted. Though Onesimus hitherto has been unprofitable to his master, he is now profitable to both Paul and Philemon.

3. Paul desired that Onesimus be received back, not as a slave, but as a brother in Christ (vv. 15, 10). Here is the real fugitive slave law. Paul never attacked slavery, but emphasized principles which destroyed it. Christianity changes the whole face of human society. The wise thing to do is to get men and women regenerated and thus transform society instead of seeking change by revolution. Social wrongs can permanently be removed the creation of a brotherhood which can be realized only by faith in Jesus Christ. Faith in Jesus Christ brings the individual into connection with the source of life. In Paul's request for Onesimus you can hear the pleadings of Christ for sinners. All men have gone astray and have become unprofitable. Though possessing no merit, he has made us profitable. We have been begotten in his bonds. Through his passion, agony of heart, we shall be changed. We can see and hear him now pleading our cause before God's throne for love's sake.

IV. The Basis upon Which Onesimus Is to Be Received (vv. 17-21).

The debt of guilty Onesimus is to be put to the account of Paul, and the merit of Paul is to be put to the account of Onesimus. This is a fine illustration of the atonement of Christ. Whatever wrongs we have committed, debts incurred, all our shortcomings are debited to him. Jesus Christ, on behalf of all mankind, has said to God, "Put that to my account. I have written with my pierced hand. I will repay." Onesimus was taken back, not as a runaway slave, but as a beloved brother in Christ.

V. Paul Requests Lodging (vv. 22-25).

He expected a speedy release from imprisonment and purposed to sojourn with Philemon. In all probability this was realized. What a welcome he must have received! Jesus Christ is saying to everyone of his redeemed ones, "Prepare me a lodging."

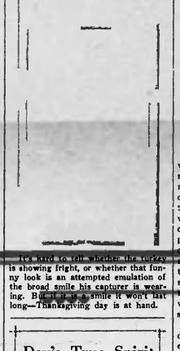
Yesterday, Today

As for the past, let it sleep if it can. "Sleep on now and take your rest," is the gentle voice of Jesus as to the past. "Rise, let us be going, lo he that betrayeth me is at hand," is the next sentence. The past is past, that sleep if it can. But there is a future task right now to be done. Don't sleep over that.

Necessary

Before you can come into communion with him you must come into covenant with him.—Matthew Henry.

ONLY ONE OF THEM HAS RIGHT TO SMILE



It is said of the weather that every cloud has a silver lining, but in this case the lining is showing fright, or whether that funny look is an attempted emulation of the broad smile his capturer is wearing. But it's a smile it won't last long—Thanksgiving day is at hand.

Day's True Spirit

Not Ourselves Alone, Is Thanksgiving Motto.

Grow fat along with me
The best is yet to be,
The last of life for which the first was made;
The ax is in his hand,
Assassination's planned.
Stand pat, get fat, nor be afraid!

Poor vaunt of life, indeed,
Were Turk but made to feed
On corn alone; to seek, to find and feast,
When feasting ends, to bow!
Is this the end of fowl?
Irks care the crop-full bird? No doubt we'll soon be fleeced.

Rejoice we are allowed
To grow and yet be proud
To grace the festal board, be stuffed to burst,
Be turned upon the spit
Till we have browned a bit,
Then eaten up with one fell swoop, that's worst.

So take and eat thy Turk,
Save carcass that may lurk
Amid the gravy's lure; pick clean the bones.
Next day, pray eat us cold,
Then hash us in a mold.
Soup comes at last, thanks be, to hush our moans!

—With Many Apologies to Browning.

Like the turkey and the epicureans, we are prone to eat, drink and be merry, for tomorrow we may die. We must have a particular day appointed in which to give thanks, lest we forget. We take so much for granted, accept all the good things of life without stopping to count our many blessings, or to name them one by one, as we were admonished in Sunday school so long ago.

We enjoy years and years of health, forgetting what a wonderful gift it is until illness lays us low. We accept our friends who strew our path with roses and cheer our way with kindness until one is gone, and we realize how much more we might have been to him. We think we love our children, but when they have all left the nest, how gladly would we have them back that we might show them how much more we could prove our love.

The editor of the Outlook, some years ago, expressed the true spirit of Thanksgiving so effectively that I quote him verbatim: "If the end of society is to produce the largest number of free human spirits, of generous human hearts, of strong human hands, of pure human homes, of noble human lives; if the liberation of serfs, the setting free of those in bondage, the care and reverence for the man as a man, the open door to the boy and girl whose feet are eager to climb, the breathing of the breath of life through a stagnant world, means progress toward the ultimate goal, then let us reverently thank God that we were born in an age and in a country in which it is our supreme good fortune not to be ministered unto but to minister."

"If we are to return thanks," he goes on to say, "not for ourselves alone but for all men; not for work done, but for noble chances to work; not for a finished civilization, but for the greater civilization that may be developed; not for a few choice spirits, but for the opportunity for all men to lift themselves into the light; not for things which make for our own comfort, but for the things which make for the healing of the world; not for the life that has been lived, but for the boundless life that is to be, then let us thank God that he has given us, not things but chance of growth; not comfort but opportunity of service; not ease of spirit but the toils of the unselfish life."—Indianapolis News.

THE condemned bird showed no signs of a breakdown, but rose early and ate a hearty breakfast.

SCOOP'S COLUMN

By Scoop Himself

What's this world coming to, anyway, when Sunday school Bible classes hold games of strip poker?—Well, maybe, if you want to get real technical, it wasn't strip poker, but anyway, the men traded clothes with the women. Well, since you ask it, of course, they wore other clothes to the party and just traded some packages of old clothes that they brought along. And it's probably the only time Julius Littman ever wore a corset and bloomers, and the last time that a lady will wear long, heavy woolen underwear at least on the outside.

Josie Harned, teacher of the class, discarded pills for opera glasses and enjoyed the evening immensely, and since it has leaked out somehow what kind of parties are held in the Parish house, there have been nine applications for the teaching position of the Willing Workers. Mr. Harned is quoted as saying that "I wouldn't give up this position, even if they cut my salary to a paltry $5,000 per year.

What's more the Willing Workers have a band, coached by Miss Elmer Smith, and what they can't play isn't worth playing since their nightly rehearsals in Jud Lore's basement on Second street. While on the subject I might say that if the neighbors don't object too strenuously, they plan to continue this music manufacturing plant. I call it a manufacturing plant because there are notes manufactured there that have never yet been known to man, and probably never will be acknowledged. They produce sounds on their kazoos that aren't even in the music book I got thru the mail on "How to play the piano and astonish your friends."

Well, anyhow, the band was there and they played several selections. Individual musical selections may or may not have been played by Mrs. Bill Butt, Mrs. Margaret Catteel, Mrs. Mealy, Helen Townshend, Margaret Lawton, Mrs. Thane White, Mrs. Sam Aronhalt, Mrs. Happy Harned, Mrs. Frederick Thayer, and Mrs. Dan Smouse, some of the members of this orchestra, and a lot of them claim that they should consider themselves lucky in getting in the orchestra at all, and earning all this publicity.

I was told all about this in confidence. Mayor Stemple related the whole story, but made me promise I wouldn't say anything about him or Mrs. Mayor, so I won't even mention that they attended the party and were right in the midst of the most noisy outbursts.

If it hadn't been for this party, I wouldn't have known what to say this week, because I've had my suitcase packed since last Saturday night, just sitting and counting the hours, and I know that such figures as 96 hours, only 95 hours, now only 94 hours, just 93 hours, here comes 92, etc., wouldn't have been interesting to you.

And since two people told me last week that they always read The Republican and Scoop's column, I can't disappoint the ten or twelve readers that I am now sure that I have, by talking merely of time and the footprints that it leaves on the sands.

I got a rather lengthy note from Mt. Lake about the elimination of the first chief officer of the new municipality, and that flowers had been sent, along with a little crepe, but I can't go too deeply into details without a thorough investigation. Perhaps somebody can enlighten me. But don't worry me with details until after I get back from Chicago.

I have been told six times to stay out of the Loop in Caponytown and that I had better take a rabbit's foot along just for good luck.

When Terrence Tamburini called Doc Yak Yutzy and me in on a mystery case Sunday evening, we both expected to find a couple of bodies along Deep Creek Lake, but it was only a doctor's medicine case that had been thrown from an automobile, strewing scissors, pills, forceps, (Terrence called them bi-ceps) along the highway. Defective (I mean detective) Yutzy was careful of his fingerprints until we found out the next morning that Dr. Harmon's car from Kingwood had been stolen two months ago and that his implements

STATE HEALTH DIRECTOR URGES BUYING OF SEALS

Deaths from Tuberculosis Cut In Half Since Seal Sale Began

Calling attention to the opening of the annual Tuberculosis Seal Sale, and urging every man, woman and child in the State to buy generously of them, Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health, said recently:

"When the sale of the tuberculosis seals was begun in this country twenty-five years ago, tuberculosis was responsible for more deaths and sickness than were attributed to any other single cause. Our records, which correspond closely to those for the rest of the country, show that one death out of about every eight from all causes, was due to what was then called 'consumption.' In 1906, there were 2,610 deaths from tuberculosis in Maryland out of a total of 20,205 deaths from all causes. In 1930, when the population was much greater than it was in 1906, there were 1,619 deaths from pneumonic tuberculosis out of a total of 21,562 from all causes. That means that the deaths from tuberculosis had been cut down to about one in every thirteen from all causes.

"It is probable that no partnerships that have ever been entered into have yielded better returns than those formed between the purchasers of the Christmas Seals and the workers in the fight against tuberculosis, when the annual sale of the Tuberculosis Seals for the support of the warfare against the disease was decided upon.

"Great things have happened since this partnership went into effect. The general death rate from tuberculosis has been cut down more than half; and clinics, dispensaries, and sanatoria for the care of those suffering from the disease have been established in every part of the country. But best of all—and these things have come about largely through the work made possible by the sale of the Tuberculosis Seals—people have learned two lessons. First, that tuberculosis can be prevented by rational living, the use of nourishing food, having plent of fresh air and sunlight, plenty of rest and the right sort of recreation. Second, that those who have contracted the disease have a good chance to have it brought under control and to get back to health, if they go to a doctor or to a clinic, while the disease is in its early stages and follow the advice that is given them.

The Maryland Tuberculosis Association contributes part of the money derived from the sale of the seals toward the support of the clinics held every month throughout the counties, for the examination of persons who show symptoms of the disease or have been in contact with it. The clinics are held under the joint auspices of the State Department of Health and the Tuberculosis Association. Those who or people that may be benefitted from this service and many of them have been started on the road to better health.

This [illegible] the ways by which [illegible] put into the Christmas Seals helps others. You don't have to [illegible] a lot of money to enter into this partnership. Buy shares—the Christmas Seals—at only a penny a [illegible] Beware that you have your support [illegible] them.

Positive Proof of FORD ECONOMY

City of Detroit purchases 137 new Ford cars
Hundreds now in use prove low cost of operation

THESE 137 new Ford cars represent one of the largest deliveries ever made to a municipality at one time.

21 radio-equipped Ford scout cars were traded in on this purchase. They had been operated day and night for two years in heavy traffic and all kinds of weather.

Their individual records ranged from 78,434 miles to 143,723 miles with a grand total of 2,283,097 miles. The operating cost of the 2[illegible] cars was 2.284 cents a mile—less than 2 1/3 cents. This cost included all fuel, oil, tires, repairs and every other item except depreciation and insurance.

Of 577 Ford cars in Detroit City service, the 300 in the Police Department traveled a total of 6,591,937 miles during the past fiscal year, at an average cost of 2.9 cents a mile.

Many claims have been made on operating costs, but here in the carefully kept motor car records of the City of Detroit is positive proof of Ford economy.

In the paragraphs above, it is seen that 21 Ford scout cars averaged less than 2 1/3 cents a mile and 300 Ford cars in all branches of Detroit police work averaged 2.9 cents a mile!

Day and night, twenty-four hours a day, these Ford cars are in operation. Few branches of transportation demand such grueling service. The records show that low fuel and oil consumption is but one of the Ford's many economies. Ford materials, simplicity of design and accuracy in manufacturing provide unusual strength, stamina and freedom from replacements and repairs.

The individual car buyer as well as the purchasing department of a city or a business cannot afford to ignore the proved economy of the Ford car.

Grantsville Fieldball Team is Defeated by Lonaconing Lassies

Grantsville High School fieldball team, Garrett county champions, was defeated by Central High School of Lonaconing at Frostburg on Friday afternoon, 28 to 0. Central High school's team, last year's State champion, set a fast pace which the lassies from Grantsville could not overcome and scored in every period.

The Central girls doubled the score of 1930 when they trimmed Friendsville, Garrett county representatives, 14 to 0. Grantsville was on the defensive throughout almost the entire contest, and only once did it have a chance to break into the scoring column. That was in the third period when one of the Grantsville forwards shot the ball into the net. The two points, however, were disallowed by the referee beeause the player had run with the ball before taking the shot.

get ready for comfortable winter driving with "Standard's" winter oils and greases

Every "Standard" lubrication job is checked and rechecked by means of a special chart for your own make and model of car. Nothing is overlooked or left to chance or memory. Extra care is taken to keep your car thoroughly clean. See for yourself how painstaking we are.

WHY put up with the troubles of cold weather driving? You can make your car practically as easy to operate this winter as it has been all summer long.

Drive in to any "Standard" Service Station or dealer's and ask for "Standard" Winter Lubrication. This service overlooks nothing. It is based on the special needs of each individual make of motor. Thorough draining and flushing of the crankcase. Winter motor oil of the proper consistency. The right oils and greases for every part of your car.

You will find driving pleasanter all winter long. Easier starting. Less strain on your battery. Less need to use the choke. A minimum of carbon accumulation. Less wear on every moving part.

"Standard" Winter Lubrication Service costs little and takes little time—but it means a big saving in expense later on and far easier driving this winter.

GRANTSVILLE

The Parent-Teacher Association of the public school met in the high school building with Mr. H. C. Edwards presiding. After the business meeting the relief plan was discussed by a number present. The committee for the district is W. Day Mullinix, H. C. Edwards, Rev. A. C. Bell, Mrs. Henry Durst and Mrs. Iva Edwards.

A number of donations of food have been received and clothing has been ordered. A storage room has also been prepared at the school in which to place the donations and the committee will investigate the needs of those who are unable to provide for themselves.

Anyone desiring to give who have not yet been visited by the committee, may send their donations to the school in care of any member.

Benefit Card Party

The regular meeting of the fire department was held Thursday evening. It was voted to have a benefit five hundred and bridge card party on Thursday, December 10, at W. O. W. Hall. Five per cent of the proceeds will be given to the Garrett County Relief fund.

Anniversary Dinner

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Gnagey entertained at a wild turkey dinner on Tuesday night in honor of Dr. and Mrs. T. O. Broadwater's seventh anniversary. The guests were Dr. and Mrs. N. R. Davis, Miss Christina Winterberg, Wm. Winterberg, Miss Ruth Conley, Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Bender, Mr. and Mrs. Harley Spoerlein, Enos Folk, William Englehart and J. Warren.

Ladies' Aid Meeting

BITTINGER

This November has been remarkable for the continued mild weather it has brought and which has prevailed thus far. In this village there grows a rose bush which blooms regularly in June and which had a profusion of roses last June and on this 22nd day of November it is bearing roses for the second time this season.

Potatoes are said to be sprouting in the cellars as they do at the spring planting time and birds have been observed carrying feathers and other nest-building material as they do in the spring at nesting time. Many speculations have been heard as to the significance of all this, but there is one thing certain and that is that the greatest number of mild days we enjoy the fewer cold ones will have to be endured.

Last week, the first of the hunting season, brought many hunters to this section from distant places and there was a continual bombardment in the nearby woods the entire week and many tall stories are heard in the corner grocery each evening.

Vernon Wiley, Akron, O., is spending some time with relatives here.

Mrs. Charles H. Wiley, with her two small daughters, Fannie and Olis, went to Baltimore one day last week where the children will undergo a special examination and possible treatment for the lessening of the effects of infantile paralysis, both children having been stricken with the disease some years ago.

Merchant C. E. Ellithorp is confined to his bed by an attack of liver trouble and is under the care of Dr. N. R. Davis, of Grantsville.

Arthur Broadwater and family, of New Germany, were guests at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Perry H. Broadwater, near this village, last Sunday.

Miss Phyllis Morgart, accompanied by her father, W. A. Morgart, and two aunts, of Jennings, were very pleasant callers in this village early last week.

A large number of turkeys were taken from this section last week to supply the Thanksgiving demand in various markets in and out of the State.

Game Warden Richard Browning, of Oakland, was in this village one evening last week for a short time.

Using Left-Over Turkey

After Thanksgiving Day is over and quantities of roast turkey or perhaps just small amounts are left, instead of the proverbial turkey hash, have either turkey mousse or jellied turkey and vegetables. If large slices are left a creole sauce will help to make them appetizing.

Turkey Mousse

One level tablespoonful gelatine, ¼ cup cold water, 1 cup hot turkey stock, 3 egg yolks, ½ teaspoonful salt, ¼ teaspoonful paprika, 1 cup cold roast turkey, ½ cup almonds, 1 cup whipped cream. Soak gelatine in cold water about five minutes. Beat yolks of eggs slightly in top of double boiler. Add salt, paprika and other seasoning, if desired, to egg yolks. Add turkey stock slowly (turkey stock can be made by cooking turkey bones in water) and stir mixture constantly. Cook custard over boiling water and when mixture begins to thicken remove from fire. Add soaked gelatine and stir. Allow custard to cool slightly and then add cold roast turkey which has been cut in fine, small pieces and the almonds which have been also finely cut. Allow mixture to cool and stir many times while cooling. When mixture is cold and Arrange layer of vegetables on jelly, then a layer of sliced turkey, some of the jelly and continue in such order and when starting to congeal pour a thin layer of the jelly in a loaf pan which has been rinsed in cold water. begins to thicken fold in whipped cream. Rinse large mold in cold water and fill with mousse. Place filled mold in refrigerator and chill thoroughly for several hours. To serve, unmold on platter and garnish with lettuce, slices of tomato and stuffed olives.

Jellied Turkey and Vegetables

One level tableshoonful gelatine, ¼ cup cold water, 1½ cups hot turkey stock or soup, ¼ taespoonful salt, 1 cup vegetables (cooked peas, string beans, carrots, etc.), 1 pimento or green pepper, 1 cup cold roast turkey, sliced. Soak gelatine in cold water about 5 minutes and dissolve in hot soup or turkey stock. Add salt and stir thoroughly. Allow mixture to cool until the loaf pan is filled. Place filled loaf pan in refrigerator to chill. When mold is firm serve by unmoulding and arrange lettuce leaves and slices of tomato around loaf as a garnish.

Creoled Turkey (8 Servings)

Sliced left-over turkey, 4 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons hot water, ¼ cup chopped onion, 1 cup chopped mushrooms, salt, 1 teaspoonful minced parsley, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 cup condensed tomato soup, 1 cup water, ¼ cup chopped green pepper. Slice cold roast turkey in as attractive slices as possible. Arrange in a baking dish, sprinkle with 2 tablespoons melted butter and 2 tablespoons hot water. Cover and heat about 15 minutes. Chop the onions and peppers fine and saute in 2 tablespoons melted butter until quite tender. Then add chopped mushrooms and parsley. When thoroughly mixed add flour and stir until smooth. Add tomato soup and water and continue stirring. Add salt if necessary. Serve as a sauce with hot sliced turkey.

Card of Thanks

I desire to return my thanks to the numerous friends for their kindness and sympathetic expressions following the death of my mother. Especially do I thank Rev. A. C. Bell and the Miller Quartet for their services at the funeral.

Messrs. F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent of schools; Norval Speelman, and H. A. Loraditch, members of the Board of Education of Garrett county, spent Monday evening in Frostburg, where they attended the ceremony attending the dedication of the new State Normal Training school, recently opened as the latest addition to the group of buildings now on the campus.

Mrs. Edith Schlossnagle and daughter, Miss Helen Schlossnagle, accompanied Miss Marion Bloss to Cumberland Saturday, all returning to Oakland Sunday except Mrs. Schlossnagle, who remained in the city with her sister, Mrs. Fred. Brown.

Elvin Iman spent from Thursday until Sunday at Westminster, where he visited Howard Rathbun, who is a student in Western Maryland College. Messrs. Rathbun and Iman were dinner guests of Mrs. C. J. Bolgiano in Baltimore on Saturday.

Messrs. Harvey Friend, Friendsville; Henry M. Speicher, Accident, and Harry Boyle, of the Cumberland office of the C. and P. Telephone Company, were here on Saturday where they conferred relative to better telephone service to Accident and Friendsville and intermediate points.

The annual Thank Offering service of the missionary societies of the Lutheran church, will be held in St. Mark's Lutheran church on Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock. A program has been prepared and the service will be in charge of the Women's and Young Women's missionary societies.

While turkeys are apparently very plentiful on the farms of the community surrounding Oakland, the birds were few on the market here Tuesday and yesterday. Prices obtained were around 35 cents for prime full dressed young hens. Baltimore markets indicated a slightly higher price, while in Cumberland dealers advertised prices at 37 and 42 cents for Southern and Eastern Shore grown birds.

In today's Republican the Board of County Commissioners by advertisement, ask for bids for the construction of a road beginning at the municipal dam of Piedmont on Savage River and extending eastward to the steel bridge crossing Savage River a short distance west of Bloomington. Bids will be opened on December 12 at the office of the Commissioners. The road covers a distance of approximately 2¼ miles.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul DeWitt had as guests at their home in the north section of Oakland during the week Mr. and Mrs. Howard Schlossnagle and daughters, of Accident; Mr. and Mrs. D. O. DeWitt, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. DeWitt and daughter, of Hoyes; Mr. and Mrs. Brafford, Mrs. Paul Mitchell and daughter, John Spoerlein, Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Schlossnagle and children and Roy Spoerlein, of Oakland.

Among the teachers in the Oakland High School who will spend the Thanksgiving vacation period at their homes are Mr. and Mrs. Foster Speicher, at Accident; Miss Margaret Stoffle, at Manchester; Miss Catherine Schnebly, Clear Spring; Mrs. Earl C. Willis, Chestertown; Miss Martha Engle, Frostburg; Miss Margaret Kochenderfer, Elkins; Miss Mary Thomas and John Thayer, Grafton; Miss Margaret Hamilton, Lonaconing.

COUNTY AGENT'S COLUMN

J. H. CARTER,
Resident County Agent,

In the past month a number of hogs have been reported to this office as being lame or stiff. This is probably due to lack of minerals which is not included in the ration feed. No swine should be penned up for feed without one of the following mineral feeds available:

Wood ashes, 10 lb; 16% Acid phosphate, 10 lb; salt, 1 lb. Feed in self-feeder.

Air-slacked lime, 2 parts; wood ashes, 2 parts; soft coal, (fine) 2 parts; salt, 1 part—bushels or pounds. Feed in self-feeder.

Fine ground limestone, 40lb; salt, 20 lb; steamed bone meal, 40 lb. Self-feeder.

Do not let water stand on these mixtures to form brine.

Where hogs are already showing signs of lameness, stiffness, etc., 40 lb shoats should receive 1 tablespoon cod liver oil daily. Grown hogs 3 tablespoonsful of the oil. Also good green clover or green alfalfa or ½ pint alfalfa meal to each once a day.

MT. LAKE PARK

At a regular meeting of the Mayor and Town Council Saturday evening, a letter was ordered written to Rev. I. S. Middaugh fully endorsing the movement looking to the establishing of an Extension Service center at the Park, and pledging cooperation.

Material having been ordered, the streets and roads of the Park were ordered repaired and put in condition for the winter, work to begin at once. A committee reported that a survey of the street lights of the Park had been made with the result that a large number of defective bulbs had been discovered which produced very little light. The bulbs will be replaced with new ones at once, according to West Penn officials and would have been renewed some time ago had complaint been made.

Reports having been received that squirrels are being killed in the Park, it was requested that a warning to the parties guilty of the offense be given in this column as the ordinance prohibiting the shooting of the animals was only recently passed. The killing of the squirrels within the Park limits is strictly forbidden and the ordinance in question carries a heavy penalty for its violation. Hereafter offenders will be arrested and, if found guilty, punished by a fine or imprisonment.

Wiley Welling, having resigned as bailiff of the town, George Ilipsley has been appointed to fill the vacancy thus created.

Mr. H. H. Warren, of Baltimore, and Mrs. H. S. Boyle, Jr., of Cumberland, officials of the C. and P. Telephone Company, were business visitors at the Park this week.

Mr. Floyd Utterback is a business visitor in Baltimore.

Mr. and Mrs. John Deveny and Miss Mary Deveny, of Fairmont, were here on Sunday as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Murphy.

Mr. J. S. Frame, Fairmont, spent Sunday in the Park with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Frame.

Mrs. Frank Morgan spent a few hours in Terra Alta on Monday.

The many friends of Mrs. J. A. Enlow will be glad to know that she is improving after several weeks' of serious illness.

Mr. and Mrs. George H. Nelson, of Fairmont, motored to the Park Sunday where they spent the day.

Miss Helen Burch, of Washington, is here as the guest of her mother, Mrs. W. Thompson Burch.

Mrs. Brent Maxwell and Miss Margaret Clark were Park guests last week.

Miss Agnes Smith and Mr. Charles C. Vance, of Fairmont, spent Sunday in the Park, guests of Mrs. Cora Bishop and family.

Thanksgiving Day

Ah! On Thanksgiving day, when from east and from west,
From north and from south, come the pilgrim and guest,
When the gray-haired New Englander sees round his board
The old broken links of affection restored,
When the care-wearied man seeks his mother once more,
And the worn matron smiles where the girl smiled before. . . .
—John Greenleaf Whittier.

Thanksgiving Dinner in 1621 Hardly What Would Be Considered Much of a Special "Spread" Today

A modern, transplanted to Puritan New England, wouldn't give many thanks over Thanksgiving day dinner. He would find it pretty bad fare.

Cranberries were available in 1621, and wild turkey—if the head of the house was a good marksman. There were nut trees in the woods, and wild grapes. But the stock of perishable foodstuffs was meagre. Probably grain was to be had to supplement the small supply of Indian corn, but butter, milk and eggs were almost unheard of in Plymouth 310 years ago. Maybe they had potatoes in 1621, but if they did they came by ship.

A modern expert in nutrition, given a Puritan Thanksgiving dinner to analyze, would have several constipation fits. Dr. Walter H. Eddy points out in Good Housekeeping that he would find few green vegetables, no milk, a high preponderance of proteins and acid ash.

"Wild fruits may have helped to avert scurvy," says Doctor Eddy, "but this disease was always imminent in the winter, and probably much of the so-called winter rheumatisms were due to scorbutic joints."

Pneumonia and what was called consumption wiped out whole families in old New England. Doctor Eddy points out, because the food did not have the proper vitamin content.

"Palatability and quantity were in those days almost the sole guides to dietary adequacy," he says. "But families were large and, in spite of high mortality that would produce a scandal in health circles today, they managed to survive and gradually increase in numbers.

FROM time immemorial, the bringing in of the last sheaves of corn and the cutting of the last of the fruits of the land have been accompanied by feasting and all the outward expressions of joy and happiness. It is a time for reunion of families, for happy greetings, for the renewal of friendships and of general gaiety.

THANKSGIVING day is only our annual time for saying grace at the table of eternal goodness.—James M. Ludlow.

Not All Americans Look on Day of Thanksgiving With the Pessimistic Eyes of Will Carleton

Will Carleton in his verses on "Captain Young's Thanksgiving," says:

Thanksgiving day, I fear,
If one the solemn truth must touch,
Is celebrated, not so much
To thank the Lord for blessings o'er
As for the sake of getting more.

It is the "feastive" day on which Little Willie, on nearing the end of a bountiful meal, will sigh, "I've pretty near reached my bust measure." And dad will again wonder why Thanksgiving day doesn't follow Christmas so he can be thankful that both purse-bending days are over. It is also the season in which dogs and cats beat a tattoo on drumsticks with their teeth.

Truly, a man is old when he begins to fear mince pie. What this world needs is for some one to devise a plan whereby the bone of contention can be utilized like the Thanksgiving turkey for making hash and soup. But 'twas ever thus—these big Thanksgiving meals. Indeed, some 140 years ago the Thanksgiving menu of which George Washington partook at Mount Vernon consisted of:

Conceit of Fresh Fruit
Oyster Soup
(Mrs. John Marshall's recipe—black eye peas and Virginia ham knuckles added.)
Roast turkey stuffed with wild rice, pulverized boiled chestnuts, artichokes, truffles, chicken livers and toasted bread crumbs, flavored with rosemary, sage and mother of thyme, larded with Virginia ham fat and basted with Madeira wine; served with bogberry sauce, fresh cauliflower and candied sweet potatoes.
Old Virginia mince pie, served in flames.
New Orleans old French market coffee.

Mmm! Those were the good old days! But, observes the Providence Bulletin:

The special blessings for the sake of which children and some adult persons celebrate Thanksgiving day are transitory at best. They center round the dinner table, "groaning with good things." But even if Will Carleton thinks that most of us regard such matters as these more seriously than the finer and nobler teachings of the day, surely many of us grace the occasion with the spirit of gratitude for our "blessings," and endeavor to spread this spirit by providing for the comfort and happiness of some less fortunate household than ours at this one festival of the year.

It is a familiar law of nature that the more we give the more we have. This may not be true of material possessions, but it is certainly true of the things of the spirit. If we increase the sum total of others' happiness we increase our own.

Anyhow, here's hoping you get the long end of the wish bone!—Pathfinder Magazine.

Meeting of the Ladies' Aid

The Ladies' Aid of St. Paul's Lutheran church was entertained by Mrs. Robert Alexander on Thursday night. Following a short business meeting the social program, in charge of Mrs. George Lohr and Mrs. Homer Lohr, was carried out. There were 24 members and guests present. Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess. The December meeting of the society will be held at the home of Mrs. H. E. Liston.

School Notes

The schools will close for Thanksgiving vacation on Wednesday afternoon and will remain closed until the following Monday morning.

A program was presented in the assembly Wednesday afternoon in charge of Prof. Scrogum's pupils.

Report cards for the first term were issued to students on Friday. Some were very good; others not so good. The attendance in both the high and elementary schools shows marked improvement.

Relief Program

A free will relief program was presented in the auditorium of the school building on Saturday night. Rev. A. D. Scrogum, chairman of the local committee, ably outlined the work to be done in this community. Rev. H. H. Fichenscher, of the Cove, then spoke on the value and necessity of relief work. Music was furnished by the Fresh Orchestra from New Germany, and the Oakland String Band. The meeting was well attended and all the churches are cooperating in helping to make the work a success. The storehouses will be located at the stores of N. M. Humberson and J. L. Englehart. Anyone having any clothing or supplies can leave them at either of the above-named places where they are assured they will be distributed properly.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

Christine Ackerman vs. Charles W. Ackerman.

No. 3044 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a divorce a vinculo matrimonii by the plaintiff from the defendant.

The bill states:

1. That on April 19, 1923, she was married to a certain Charles W. Ackerman, of Fayette county, Pennsylvania, with whom she lived as his wife until April 23, 1925, and again from April, 1928, to July 4, 1928, during which time they resided at the home of your oratrix in Garrett county, Maryland.

2. That, though the conduct of your oratrix towards her husband, the said Charles W. Ackerman, has always been kind, affectionate and above reproach, the said Charles W. Ackerman has, without any just cause or reason, abandoned and deserted her, and has declared his intention to live with her no longer, and such abandonment has continued uninterruptedly for at least three years and is deliberate and final, and the separation of the parties beyond any reasonable expectation of reconciliation.

3. That on the 3rd day of December, 1929, a decree of divorce a mensa et thoro was granted to your oratrix by this Honorable Court as against the said Charles W. Ackerman, the same being No. 2904 Equity in this Court, since which time your oratrix has neither seen nor heard directly from the said defendant.

4. That your oratrix and the said defendant, Charles W. Ackerman, have had no children born to them from said marriage.

5. That your oratrix resides in the State of Maryland and the defendant is a non-resident of the State of Maryland, whose present place of residence is unknown to your oratrix, but whose last known address was Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

The bill then prays for a divorce a vinculo matrimonii of the plaintiff from the defendant, for general relief and for an order of publication.

IT IS THEREUPON, This 11th day of November, 1931, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, in Equity, that the plaintiff by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Garrett County, Maryland, once in each of four successive weeks before the 11th day of December, 1931, giving notice to the said absent defendant of the object and substance of this bill, warning him to appear in this Court, in person or by solicitor, on or before the 28th day of December, 1931, to show cause, if any he has, why a decree should not be passed as prayed.

Made Day National

Persistent Woman Editor United the Nation in Giving Thanks.

The impression seems to prevail in some quarters that the women of the United States never accomplished anything worth while before they were given the right to vote. Talk of that character is a million miles from the truth. The women of America have always been doing fine, big, worthwhile things, H. O. Bishop writes in the National Republic.

At this particular season of the year it is appropriate to tell about the woman who, after twenty years of patient effort, succeeded in having an annual Thanksgiving celebration in this country observed on the same day by all of the people.

The name of this woman was Mrs. Sarah Josepha Hale. Few women, either before or since, have accomplished more big things for the betterment of men and women. Probably few persons of the present generation have ever heard of this gifted woman. She was born at Newport, N. H., October 24, 1788, and died in Philadelphia, April 30, 1879. She was not a college woman, but was taught by her mother. In 1813, at the age of twenty-five, she married a lawyer, David Hale, a brother of Salma Hale, historian and at one time a member of congress from New Hampshire. Nine years later she was left a widow with five children. She was a genuine, old-fashioned American woman, and did not clamor for governmental or individual aid. She was quite content to go to work. In 1828 she became editor of the Ladies' Magazine, which had recently been started in Boston. She successfully edited this publication until 1837, when it was merged with Godey's Ladies' Book. She continued with the latter publication until 1877.

Much Work Well Done.

Editing a magazine is usually considered a pretty big job in itself. Mrs. Hale, however, seemed to find time for many other things. She organized the Seaman's Aid society in Boston, which is the parent of similar organizations now existing in most ports. The completion of the Bunker Hill monument was also partly due to the efforts of this little woman. She persuaded the women of New England to raise $50,000 for that purpose.

The plan of educating women for medical and missionary service in foreign lands was inaugurated by Mrs. Hale. She devoted a number of years to this effort, finally succeeding through the organization of the Ladies' Medical Missionary society of Philadelphia, and the Woman's Union Missionary Society for Heathen Lands, in New York.

Throughout her editorial work Mrs. Hale urged the practical advancement of women, advocating their employment as teachers and the establishment of seminaries for their higher education.

Thanksgiving in 1777.

It was in the early forties that Mrs. Hale began her campaign for making Thanksgiving a national holiday and its celebration on the same day all over the country. It was then the custom for different localities to observe the occasion on whatever day happened to strike their fancy.

Following the surrender of Burgoyne at Saratoga in 1777, the Continental congress had appointed a committee to recommend joint thanksgiving for "the signal success lately obtained over the enemies of the United States."

In 1778 Thanksgiving was set for December 30, most of the states concurring in a uniform date, but there were other Thanksgivings in May, June and December as the various states saw fit to order them.

It was not until January, 1795, that Washington was authorized by congress to proclaim a national Thanksgiving, which he did for February 19.

For twenty years Mrs. Hale wrote editorials in her magazine, and personal letters to governors and Presidents, in behalf of a national Thanksgiving day. Her efforts and patience were rewarded in 1863, when Abraham Lincoln saw the wisdom of her suggestions and decided to adopt the plan. From that day to this Thanksgiving has been celebrated by the entire nation the last Thursday of November.

After the 1795 day of Thanksgiving in February, the festival was skipped for twenty years. In 1815, when peace with Great Britain followed the War of 1812, congress resolved that "a joint committee of both houses wait upon the President of the United States and request that he recommend a day of Thanksgiving to be observed by the people of the United States with religious solemnity and the offering of devout acknowledgments to God for his mercies and in prayer to him for the continuance of his blessings."

Long Lapse After 1815.

The day fixed for observance was April 13, 1815, but thereafter Thanksgiving as a national celebration fell by the wayside, not to be revived until Mrs. Hale's campaign moved President Lincoln to act in 1863.

Mrs. Hale's persistent efforts had won favor for the idea in most states by the time the Civil war had arrived. Some states already had begun the observance of a full Thanksgiving day nearly ten years before the national day in November was set aside. New York was one of these, and her representatives in congress tried repeatedly to induce that body to name a day. In 1863 there were actually two Thanksgiving days, the northern states having observed one in August for the victory at Gettysburg.

Following the assassination of Lincoln, Mrs. Hale feared the holiday might be allowed to drop. She urged the necessity of keeping the national fall festival as a "Thanks day for all good things given us by the Heavenly Father." Mrs. Hale wrote to ministers all over the country, urging them to help.

Mrs. Sarah Josepha Hale.

The First Congregational church of Washington responded to Mrs. Hale's plea, and sent a delegation to President Andrew Johnson requesting him to issue a Thanksgiving proclamation. He accepted and the Presidents since have followed his example without being petitioned, the states issuing separate proclamations in keeping with the national edict.

Mrs. Hale wrote many books and poems. The most famous of her poems were "Mary's Lamb," "The Light of Home" and "It Snows." Perhaps the best known of her works is "Woman's Record, or Sketches of All Distinguished Women From the Creation to the Present Day," first published in 1853, and enlarged in 1869. She went on writing verses and jingles for children, articles and novels for grown persons and editing her magazine until shortly before her death in 1879, at which time she was ninety-one years old.

GIVE THANKS FOR "GOODLY TURKEY"

HOW well I remember that old Thanksgiving dinner! Father at one end and mother at the other end, the children between and wondering if father ever will get done carving the turkey.

The day before at school, we had learned that Greece was south of Turkey, but on the table we found that Turkey was bounded by grease. The brown surface waited for the fork to plunge astride the breastbone, and with knife sharpened on the jambs of the fireplace, lay bare the folds of white meat.

Give to the disposed to be sentimental, the heart. Give to the one disposed to music the drumstick. Give to the one disposed to theological discussion the "parson's nose."

Then the pies! For the most part a lost art. What mince pies! in which you had all confidence, fashioned from all rich ingredients, instead of miscellaneous leavings which are only short of glorified hash! Not mince pies with profound mysteries of origin! But mother made them, and laid the lower crust and the upper crust, with here and there a puncture by the fork to let you look through the light and flaky surface into the substance beneath.

—T. DeWitt Talmage, D. D.

THANKS is one of the things we forget. We take our blessings as a matter of course. We seldom say a word about them—although we kick like steers when things don't go right. So let's stop complaining long enough to say "Thank You."—Grit.

Thanksgiving

Let us pause a moment in our daily deliberations and give thanks for the many blessings we have received. Thankful for our health, our good friends, the rewards for honest toil, and the community and nation whose prosperity is our ever-present concern. Let us be thankful of the right to be alive, no matter how hard the road of life may be; and it will help us to know that the sunshine always comes after the storm and the rainbow of prosperity is just ahead.—"Eny" Smith.

MAN ACCIDENTALLY KILLS SELF HUNTING TURKEYS

Gun of Edward Gilpin, Swanton Native, Is Discharged As He Climbs Over Fallen Tree

DIES LATER IN HOSPITAL

Edward M. Gilpin, 54 years old, of Cumberland, formerly of Swanton, this county, accidentally shot himself while climbing over a fallen tree in the woods along a road seven miles east of Cumberland Tuesday afternoon. He was a son of the late E. Scott Gilpin, of Swanton, whose death occurred a little more than a year ago.

The charge from the shot-gun carried by the victim of the shooting struck him in the stomach and he died at six o'clock in Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, thirty minutes after being admitted to the institution.

Accompanied by Edward Rhodes, he went hunting for wild turkeys and rabbits in the woods. Rhodes said he was about one hundred yards away from Gilpin when he heard a shot and heard his companion cry out. He hurried to his friend, he said, and found him lying beside the fallen tree with his shot-gun a short distance away. Gilpin was still conscious and told Rhodes that the gun was discharged as he climbed over the obstruction.

Rhodes left the wounded man and started for aid. He enccuntered two other hunters and asked them to telephone for an ambulance while he returned to his friend.

The mishap victim was employed by the Cement Products Company at Cumberland and formerly worked for the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Co. He was a member of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen and of the Odd Fellows.

Besides his widow, Mrs. Emma W. Gilpin, he is survived by a foster son, Robert R. Gilpin; two daughters, Mrs. Okey Gilpin and Mrs. Susan F. Foltz, Cumberland; two sisters, Mrs. Susan Beckman, Swanton, and Mrs. Pearl Boyer, Berlin, Pa.; and four brothers, J. C. Gilpin, Keyser, W. Va.; R. R. Gilpin, Greer, W. Va.; Earl Gilpin, Masontown, W. Va. ,and Harry Gilpin, Cumberland.

SEASON FOR FOREST FIRES IS OVER FOR THIS YEAR

State Forester Says Commendable Record Was Established

Rain, sleet and snow flurries in December ended the fall forest fire season for Maryland and lookout towers were closed throughout the State at the direction of State Forester F. W. Besley. The 18 lookout watchmen terminated a two-months' vigilance. Thirteen special fire guards also suspended activity. Mr. Besley said that under normal conditions fire danger will not again seriously threaten Maryland forests until about the middle of March, at which time the emergency forces will again be placed on duty.

According to Mr. Besley, the 1931 fall forest fire season has not been severe, due in large measure to normal rain fall during the summer and heavy fogs with generally humid conditions during the fire season. Hunters and campers proved the most frequent cause of fires. Mr. Besley stated that several outbreaks of incendiarism occurred in different sections of the State, resulting in threatening conflagrations. Fires were maliciously set repeatedly near Abingdon, Harford county; Guilford, Howard county, and near Vindex, Garrett county.

The State Forester observed that forest wardens have been particularly responsive this fall, and have held nearly all fires to small size. Few fires burned over 50 acres and 90 per cent of the fires were less than 10 acres in size.

Although statistical records are not yet complete, Mr. Besley feels that not over 1,000 acres were damaged through fall fires. This is an unusually low figure, as the average fall acreage burned for the five years previous to 1930 was over 2,500 acres, according to records of the State Department of Forestry.

Trap Run School Attendance

The following boys and girls of Trap Run school had perfect attendance for the month of November:

Perry Uphold, Jack VanSickle, Ruth Friend, Fay Uphold, Marie DeWitt, Dolly DeWitt, Leona DeWitt, Lucille Uphold, Harry VanSickle. Miss Verna B. Savage is principal of the school.

OVER FIFTEEN DEER ARE EXHIBITED BY HUNTERS

Today is Last Day of Deer Season—Many Scour Woods

With today remaining of the open deer season, the success or failure of the 200 or 300 hunters of the elusive animal could not be determined with any degree of accuracy but it is fairly certain that more than fifteen had been bagged in all sections of the county. Some of the hunters are undecided as to their own success, because in several parties, more than one shot was fired at the same buck, at the same time, with only one mark to show for their efforts. This happened in the case of James Treacy and Webster Ravenscroft, who brought down a buck between them.

Reports of narrow escapes for the bucks have been brought back to Oakland, but thus far only the following have been successful in bringing down a prize: John O'Haver, Ben Harvey, Walter Wittig and companion, Frank Browning, Alvin Friend, Alvin Smith, Harry Tusing, Earl Thayer, Ralph Pritts, Bill Harvey, Harry Sollars, John Miller, and a Mr. Lewis, of Swallow Falls.

The deer brought down by Ralph Pritts, Swanton, weighed 172 pounds, dressed, and had 10 prongs. Another large one was that of Earl Thayer.

Most of the hunters scoured the thick woods on both banks of the Youghiogheny river, north and west of Muddy Creek, Sang Run, and the mountains in the vicinity of Grantsville and Swanton, and Snaggy Mountain.

ONLY EIGHTEEN SHOPPING DAYS UNTIL CHRISTMAS

Stores Being Stocked with Goods and Decorated For Holidays

With but eighteen shopping days remaining until Christmas, citizens of Garrett county have already begun their holiday buying and local merchants report that all signs point to a fairly good business between now and midnight, December 24.

Already most of the stores have re-received their Christmas merchandise and are displaying it prominently. Within a few days windows will be trimmed with pine trees, artificial snow and mistletoe, and the towns of the county will take on a holiday atmosphere.

Mild weather up until the past week has held back the usual winter business, it was said, but this is expected to pick up immediately, with general conditions to remain brisk until after the first of the year.

Practically everything in Christmas goods may be purchased in Oakland this year, hence don't send your cash out of town. Several stores will have a large line of toys and novelties and other Christmas items.

Several local merchants have given expression to the belief that more useful presents will be given this year than ever before, pointing out that people are more careful with their money than has been the case for a number of years.

25TH ANNIVERSARY IS CONTINUED IN ST. MARK'S

Women to be In Charge Tonight —Rev. W. P. Cline to Speak

Saint Mark's Lutheran church will continue with the celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the building of the present edifice with a service tonight in charge of the women's oaganizations. Dr. W. P. Cline, pastor of the Fairmont Lutheran church, will be the speaker.

Friday evening will be community night and Rev. W. B. Brock, of the Preshyterian church, will speak. Pastors of other churches of the community will bring greetings.

Sunday morning will be homecoming for the members and friends of the church, when a history of the congregation will be presented. The anniversary will be closed on Sunday evening with a sermon by Pastor C. A. Shilke.

Rev. Roy Hashinger, Morgantown, W. Va., was the speaker on Tuesday evening when the Brotherhood had charge of the service. On Wednesday evening the young people had charge with Rev. Frank B. Herzel, of Westernport, as the speaker. The Nightingales were present and sang special numbers.

Christmas Savings Checks Received by Depositors

Christmas savings checks to the amount of more than $16,000 were mailed Monday evening, November 30, and received by 250 or more depositorstors of the First National Bank and the Garrett National Bank Tuesday morning.

This additional amount of funds, coming as it does at this time, will be a great boon, not only to local merchants, but to other citizens as well.

The two local banks have announced the opening of their new 1932 Christmas Savings clubs and anticipate a record membership especially from those who negelected to be members of this year's clubs.

Accounts may be opened by paying so much each week, from 25 cents to $5.00. Accounts may be started at any time, the cashiers of both of the local banks, Mr. G. A. Fraley, of the Garrett National, and Mr. Delbert C. Davis, of the First National Bank, stated yesterday.

Pythian Sisters Nominate Officers

The following officers to be voted for by members of the Pythian Sisters were nominated at the meeting of the organization held Monday evening, Nomber 30: Mrs. Helen Criss, guard; Mrs. Inez Kildow, protector; Jane Mason, mistress of R. and C.; Mrs. Minnie Sisk, mistress of finance; Miss Theresa Welling manager; Mabel Teats, excellent junior; Mrs. Edna Whorton, excellent senior; Mrs. Mae Lec Mann, most excellent chief; Mary Hinebaugh, trustee; Miss Elizabeth Leary, representative; Mrs. Clara B. Stuck, alternate; Mrs. Grace Riley, press correspondent. The election will be held on Monday evening, December 7, at which time all members are urged to be present.

HEALTH OFFICER REPORTS ON DIPHTHERIA CASES

Dr. Geo. E. Clarke Warns Parents To Take Children With Sore Throats to Physician

LISTS NOVEMBER DISEASES

Although only one case of diphtheria has been reported in this county, Dr. George E. Clarke, Health Officer, warns the parents of all children to watch them carefully and at the first sign of sore throat take them to the family physician for an examination.

Several cases of diphtheria have been found in adjoining states, and unless the residents of Garrett county are especially careful this will spread to our own community, he said.

"Your family physician can protect your children against diphtheria at a minimum cost. Don't wait for the Health Officer to give toxoid in the schools, but take your school children and younger children to your family physician now for immunization," he emphasized.

"Many cases of diphtheria are mild and unsuspected. These can be diagnosed by a physician through the use of the State Laboratory at Cumberland. Don't wait for your children to get diphtheria, but have them protected early to guard against this disease which causes death to so many of the young children.

"Over five hundred children have been immunized by the Health Officer during his school examinations. This constitutes only about one-third of the school population which he has visited. The other two-thirds are subject to diphtheria, but can be protected by the family physician."

The Health Officer listed the following diseases which were reported during the month of November for Garrett county:

Gonorrhea, 2; typhoid, 2; syphilis, 5; scarlet fever, 3; chicken pox, 1; measles, 2; lobar pneumonia, 2; whooping cough, 23; impetigo, 6; tuberculosis, 1; diphtheria, 1.

The Health Officer reports that Mrs. Sarah Warner has resigned her position in the health office, effective December, and this position has been filled by Miss Mary Speicher, of Accident.

All arrange to buy Christmas Seals for helping those afflicted with tuberculosis.

AUTOMOBILE INSPECTION CONSIDERED SUCCESSFUL

Majority of Maryland Cars Have Been Tested in Past Month

Automobiles without inspection stickers are being stopped by the police and the drivers ordered to have inspection made within twenty-four hours since the conclusion of the save-a-life campaign, which closed on Monday. If the owner or driver of the car fails to comply with the order, the car will be ordered from the roads and the license tags for 1932 will not be issued.

Commissioner E. Austin Baughman, discussing the campaign, said that the great majority of machines have been tested.

"Everyone should be interested in the safety of our streets and highways," Commissioner Baughman said, "and we are going to concentrate our efforts on the few who care nothing about their own safety or the safety of others."

The campaign has been successful to date, the Commissioner said, in having some 43,000 machines with faulty brakes put in safe condition. More than 10,580 steering mechanisms have been adjusted and approximately 63,992 lights have been corrected.

Knights to Elect Officers

The semi-annual election of officers will be held on Friday evening, December 4, at the regular meeting of Garrett Lodge, No. 113, Knights of Pythias, at which time all officers of the lodge will be elected and representatives and alternates named for attendance at the sessions of the Grand Lodge of Maryland.

Friday evening will also be known as Past Chancellors' Night, when officers of the Grand Lodge will be voted for by the Past Chancellors of the local lodge.

On Friday evening, December 11, members of the Knights of Pythias lodges from Friendsville and Terra Alta will be guests of the local organization.

MT. LAKE COUNCIL FAVORS PARK DEVELOPMENT PLAN

Sends Letter to Director of Extension For Maryland

At a meeting of the Mayor and Council of Mountain Lake Park, held recently, the proposed plan to develop the Park as a center for Agricultural Extension activities for parts of West Virginia, Pennsylvania and Maryland, was given unqualified endorsement by the official body.

In a letter to Dr. T. B. Simons, extension director, University of Maryland, the Council said in part:

The proposed plan to make Mountain Lake Park the center of Agricultural Extension work for the nearby counties in Maryland, West Virginia and Pennsylvania, meets with our most hearty approval and we hereby extend our full cooperation in this project. The typical program outlined for extension work is so diversified as to meet with the approval of all. The benefits to be derived are beyond measure.

No definite action has been taken by any State except West Virginia, through its extension director, who has pledged $3,000 to $5,000 to promote a program at the Park.

BLOOMINGTON MINER IS KILLED BY FALL OF ROCK

Second Fatality in Ross Mine In the Past Two Weeks

James Edward Wilson, 53 years old, was killed Friday night in the Bloomington mine of the R. J. Ross Coal Company, near Bloomington, when he was caught beneath a fall of rock. Hillary McKenzie, who was working near Wilson, was not injured. Wilson's death was the second fatality in the Ross mine during the past two weeks.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Orie Wilson; two children, Hayden and Osborne; five bothers, Florian, William, Russell, John and Harry Wilson, and by four sisters, Mrs. Bessie Wilson, Elkins; Mrs. Elizabeth Kelly, Mrs. Charles Welch and Mrs. Maud Robertson, all of Westernport.

Holiday Bazar to be Held After Christmas by St. Peter's Church

At a recent meeting held by members of the congregation of St. Peter's Catholic church, it was decided to hold the annual bazar and to endeavor to make it the big event of the holiday season.

Committees have been selected to handle various parts of the program which will include a big turkey dinner on Tuesday, December 29, followed by a card party, bingo game and various other attractions on Wednesday, December 30, at the school hall on Oak street.

On Thursday, December 31, the scene of activities will shift to the new skating rink in Naylor's hall, Third street, where a New Year's Eve dance will be held. An invitation was accepted by the Legion drum corps to attend in uniform, with their instruments, and members of other corps will also be present. Selections will be rendered during intermission and a grand assembly will take place at the close of the old year and the beginning of the new.

The hall will be decorated for the occasion and a committee of ladies will serve refreshments. The floor will be reconditioned and a first class orchestra will furnish the music. There will be no admission charge to members of the drum corps in uniform with their instruments.

Fire Company Elects Officers

Election of officers for the ensuing year was held at the regular meeting of the Oakland Volunteer Fire department last night, and resulted in the selection of Ralph T. Thayer as president.

Other officers elected include: A. G. Gortner, vice-president; Leo Helbig, secretary; A. T. Shaw, treasurer; George Kerins, chief; Emroy Bolden, assistant chief; Grover C. Stemple, second assistant chief; C. M. Sincell, captain.

Walter W. Dawson, L. M. Fraley, Fred C. Peddicord were named as members of the Standing committee.

During the regular business session it was voted that the department show its appreciation to the ladies who sponsored the recent card party and to thank the public for its patronage, through the newspapers. More than $80 will be cleared, it was announced.

RELIEF COMMITTEE MAKES REPORT; RECEIVES $90.25

Numerous Donations of Food and Clothing Have Also Been Received By Committee

31 HAVE BEEN ASSISTED

A report of the relief committee for part of Districts Nos. 7 and 14, made by Mrs. Sarah Naylor, secretary, shows that $90.25 in cash and numerous donations of food and of clothing have been received by the committee, and that supplies have been distributed to thirty-one persons.

The cash received came from the following sources: Thanksgiving Day service held in the Presbyterian church, $36.25; Maryland Theatre, proceeds from benefit picture, $50.10; Monday Night bridge club, $3.00; J. Wm. Whorton, $1.00.

Donations received are two bushels potatoes, 2 bushels apples and more to follow, A. G. Cullers; lady's dress, nightgown, 2 pairs children's stockings, 2 woolen suits for boys, 1 boy's cap, 1 shawl, Mrs. Alma Hansen, Oakland; 2 sacks flour, 5 lbs. bacon, 5 lbs. sugar, 1 lb. lard, 1 doz. cans peas, corn and other vegetable, 1-2 gallon preserves, 1 gallon syrup and 2 pairs men's shoes, Mrs. A. D. Naylor; 1 coat from Mrs. James Fazzalari.

A number of applications for relief have come in in addition to the 31 already supplied, Mrs. Naylor states in her report. Most of the applicants need clothing, shoes and edibles.

Proper investigation is made of individual applicants to ascertain if he or she is worthy of help.

Relief committees are located in the various districts of the county, and those desiring to have a part in this relief work should send their contributions to the committee nearest them. Those in Districts Nos. 7 and 14 wanting to contribute money can make the checks payable to Mrs. O. T. Treacy, treasurer. Goods may be left at the building, corner of Liberty and Wilson streets, or at the A. D. Naylor and Company store on Liberty street.

Members of the committee include Rev. D. C. Trimble, C. B. Sines, Mrs. Paul Naylor, Mrs. Frank Rathbun, Mrs. Owen Treacy, Mrs. Frazee and Mr. A. D. Naylor.

H. S. DRAMATIC CLUB TO PRESENT THREE-ACT PLAY

Will Be Given In Oakland High Auditorium On December 11

The Alley Daffodil, a three-act comedy, is to be presented by the Oakland High school dramatic club on Friday evening, December 11, in the High school auditorium.

The play is a youthful story full of action and intriguing happenings. The plot deals with a young lady whose surroundings have been sordid and unpleasant. The plans she makes to overcome these adverse conditions are cleverly laid. Her contact with people of wealth brings to us the leading man, a scion of wealth and luxury, who plays a large role in making matters more complicated.

The cast is composed of the following: Betty Broadwater, Margaret Tillet, Norma Welling, Edith Smith, Virginia Fraley, Wayne Fitzwater, Carl Ray, Carroll Casteel, Helen Schlossnagel, Reginald Ford, Joseph Welch. Miss Margaret Kochenderfer is directing the rehearsals.

Legionaires To Hold Pig Roast

That the State officers of the American Legion and members of the local legion post would be entertained at a pig roast, was decided at the special meeting of the members on Monday, November 30. The pig roast is to be held at the Manhattan hotel on Tuesday evening, December 8, beginning at 6:30 o'clock.

State officers who will be entertained are Robert H. Archer, department commander; A. L. McGee, department adjutant; John R. Tenney, vice-commander; George Henderson, past department commander; and possibly others.

Investigating Seed Loans

James M. Latimer, Government field agent, is in Garrett county looking after the interests of the Government in connection with the farm seed loans which were made last year to several farmers of the county. He is meeting the men at the office of John H. Carter, county agent, today.

Lesson for December 6

ROME AND BEYOND

GOLDEN TEXT—I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith.

LESSON TEXT—II Timothy 4:6-18.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Paul Finishes His Work.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Missionary Work Goes On.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Unto the Ends of the Earth.

I. Paul's View of Death (v. 6).

This he sets forth under two metaphors:

1. An offering (v. 6). "I am ready to be offered." This figure, meaning a drink offering, or libation, shows that Paul was looking forward to a violent death. The shedding of his blood was to be an offering poured out on the sacred altar as an act of worship. Death can only be an offering to God when the life has been wholly yielded to the doing of God's will.

2. A departure (v. 6). "The time of my departure is at hand." The same idea is expressed in Phil. 1:23. "Departure" is a nautical term which signifies the loosing of a ship from its moorings in order to enter upon its voyage. It is not the end of the voyage, but its beginning. It indicates that the vessel is ontward bound. The anchor is being lifted, and the sails are being spread for the homeland. The same idea is expressed in Luke 9:31, where the theme of conversation on the Mount of Transfiguration is said to be the departure or exodus which Christ should accomplish at Jerusalem. What the exodus meant to Israel, and more, death means to the Christian.

II. Paul's Backward Glance at Life (v. 7).

God has a definite purpose for each life. Life should be so spent that at its close one may look back with a definite consciousness that the divine purpose has been accomplished. This backward look is presented in three figures:

1. "I have fought a good fight." The figure here is that of a soldier. The Christian life is a warfare. Conflicts, dangers, and temptations must be met.

2. "I have finished my conrse." The figure here is that of an athlete who sets out to win a race. The Christian life is a race to be run.

3. "I have kept the faith." The figure is that of a hnsbandman to whom had been entrusted a treasure. This treasure was the Christian faith. In a peculiar way Paul was made steward of the Christian faith. He was conscious of having been faithful to the trust committed to him.

III. Paul's Forward Look to the Future (v. 8).

This is a beautiful picture of the calm at the end of a period of faithful service. Knowing that death was awaiting him, there was no dark cloud.

1. He saw before him a life with God. Etcrnal fellowship with God is a prize greatly to be desired.

2. A prize was laid up for him—a crown of righteousness. This reward will be given at the coming of the Lord to all who love his appearing.

IV. Paul's Associates (vv. 9-12).

1. Demas, the deserter (v 10). Demas has become immortalized as one who was religious, but because of its attractions went after the world. The love of the world caused him to turn his back upon principle, friendship, honor, and duty.

2. Luke, the faithful (v. 11). What a comfort it must have been to have with him this one faithful soul. Perhaps he was the best fitted of all to minister unto Paul. Luke was faithful in shipwreck, imprisonment, in journeying by land and sea.

3. Mark, the restored runaway (v. 11). Mark had gone back but was restored. This is a beautiful picture and most comforting. Though we have failed, we can redeem ourselves and become trustworthy. Everyone who has taken to heart his failure should be given another chance.

V. Personal Matters (vv. 13-18).

1. Bring the cloak, books, and parchments (v. 13). In the jail the cloak would be needed for his comfort. The books and parchments would be required for his study and writing.

2. Wronged by Alexander, the coppersmith (vv. 14, 15). We have no way of determining just when this deed was committed.

3. Defended by the Lord though forsaken by man (vv. 16-18). Paul in his last trying hours was like his Lord—left alone. He says, "All men forsook me. It was said of Christ that all forsook him and fled. Paul manifested a like spirit. "I pray God that it may not be laid to their charge."

The Spiritual Christian

Normally, the spiritual Christian will be occupied with effective service for his Lord. This is not a rule. We need only to know that we are yielded and ready to do whatever he may choose. To "rest in the Lord" is one of the essential victories in a spiritual life. "Come ye apart and rest awhile." We are just as spiritual when resting, playing, sleeping, or incapacitated, if it his will for us, as we are when serving.—Christian Cynosure.

SCOOP'S COLUMN

By Scoop Himself

If I had been able to use a bicycle, boat and an old-fashioned horse and buggy on Monday, I could have used all the modes of travel on my return from the "Windy City" (Chicago), and if this column is a little windier than usual this week don't blame it on President Hoover or the depression, like everything else, but blame it on the fact that I was up in the air on Monday and maybe haven't come down to earth yet.

Anyway, fifteen or so years from now when I relate how I started from Chicago in an airplane and couldn't get from Cleveland to Pittsburgh, due to cancellation of reservation on account of weather conditions prevailing, everyone will wonder what manner of ramshackle old buckboard planes they used in those times.

Not being very familiar with the upper strata, I never realized that riding in a plance could be as bumpy as a motor boat on Deep Creek Lake when the waves were waving. I just couldn't seem to get used to those brief zips that brought my floating rib clear up to my esophagus and windpipe. I went "boop" every time the wind went "zoop." I asked a seasoned veteran of the air in the seat beside me what to do and he told me to relax, but after an unusually heavy zoo-o-o-op, when I saw him frantically grabbing for the seat in front of him, I decided I knew about as much along that line as he did.

But the zo-o-o-op-ing wind brought us in about an hour ahead of schedule, only to find at Cleveland that the Pennsylvania air lines had decided to lay in for the day because the plane carried no umbrellas.

Reverting back to the railroad, I arrived in Pittsburgh three and one-half hours late to find Terrence Tamburini and "Doc Yak" Yutzy disappointed because they had not been able to see me step forth on Bettis Field, Pittsburgh. They had the camera set and their hats ready to throw into the air, with the salutation, "Hail, the flying Dutchman!" but to no avail.

Met Miss Lola Belle Green, a former Oaklander, in Chicago, and was astonished to learn that she reads Scoop's column, both inside and outside, every week.

Also met Mrs. Scoop in Chicago where she is attending the National 4-H Congress. She also reads this column—when not too busy.

A letter comes from John Smith, of Oakland, with some good poetry. I don't know whether he has a Pocahontas to help him or not, but anyway, here are the poems, written, he says, because the deer season is in.

May his tribe increase:
A hundred years ago today,
When neither you nor I were here,
Man put powder in his gun
And went out to hunt the deer.
But things are different now-adays—
They have a different plan—
The dear puts powder on her face
And goes out to hunt the man.

AND THIS

When the punk is on the pumpkin
And the ache is in the corn,
And the cabman drives the cabbage
From the patch at early morn;
When the kidney beans were kidding
The string beans for a string,
A cow slipped on a cowslip
And strained her milk, poor thing!

D. Boon Draws a Bead

Drug store gossip about the deer season is to the effect that the one that Web Ravenscroft and Jim Treacy brought in had halter marks about its head, indicating that it had been tied up all summer in expectation of the open season; that the one Bill Browning carted in looked like a veal calf and had a bell attached about its neck; and that the one John O'Haver brought down was already down on its knees praying when the fatal shot was fired.

Jim Kerins and "Butsy" Hart almost got one. They had just entered the woods when they met four men carrying their pet buck out. Jim says they had removed his private tag from the antler of the animal before shooting it.

Of course, now, if Scoop should happen to get a nice juicy deer steak he would be glad to retract any statement he might have made in reference to the hunters.

KEEP YOUR COUGH, GERMS AND SNEEZES TO YOURSELF

Get Rid of a Cold as Soon as You Can, But Consider Others

"If you find yourself developing a cold, take the best possible care of yourself. Get rid of it as soon as you can, but have some thought for the other fellow, too. Keep your cough, your sneezes and your germs to yourself. Don't broadcast them. 'If you have to cough or sneeze, do it into your handkerchief, please.' Wait until you are well to shake hands. Show your friendliness in other ways." This is the advice of Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health, to victims of the ever-present and so-called "common" cold.

"We talk about catching a cold," Dr. Riley continued, "but usually the cold catches us. It usually finds us when our powers of resistance are lowered; the germs enter and take possession. Each person who develops a 'cold' becomes a carrier of the disease, temporarily at least. While in that state, he is a menace to all who come in contact with him. A sort of endless chain is established that is hard to break.

"What we call a 'cold' is brought about by organisms so minute that they cannot be seen even by the most powerful microscope. These organisms are found in the secretions from the nose and throat of those who are suffering from a cold. When they cough or sneeze the germs are sprayed out into the air, or into the face of persons nearby.

"Some of the infective material is also left on the hands every time the victim of a cold touches his mouth or nose, and the germs are carried to everything the sufferer touches. On that account, handshaking is one of the things that should be omitted by the person who has a cold. Another way by which the person who is suffering from a cold can help to protect others is by washing his hands frequently and thoroughly, with plenty of soap and water.

"The person who has a cold needs rest, quiet, a very light diet, the advice of his own doctor, and proper care. The quickest way to get rid of a cold, and the best way to prevent other people from getting it, is to go to bed, send for your doctor, and stay in bed until the symptoms have disappeared and your doctor tells you that you can go back to work or to school."

Positive Proof of FORD ECONOMY

City of Detroit purchases 137 new Ford cars
Hundreds now in use prove low cost of operation

THESE 137 new Ford cars represent one of the largest deliveries ever made to a municipality at one time.

21 radio-equipped Ford scout cars were traded in on this purchase. They had heen operated day and night for two years in heavy traffic and all kinds of weather.

Their individual records ranged from 78,434 miles to 143,723 miles with a grand total of 2,283,097 miles. The operating cost of the 2[illegible] cars was 2.284 cents a mile — less than 2 1/3 cents. This cost included all fuel, oil, tires, repairs and every other item except depreciation and insurance.

Of 577 Ford cars in Detroit City service, the 300 in the Police Department traveled a total of 6,591,937 miles during the past fiscal year, at an average cost of 2.9 cents a mile.

Many claims have been made on operating costs, but here in the carefully kept motor car records of the City of Detroit is positive proof of Ford economy.

In the paragraphs above, it is seen that 21 Ford scout cars averaged less than 2 1/3 cents a mile and 300 Ford cars in all branches of Detroit police work averaged 2.9 cents a mile!

Day and night, twenty-four hours a day, these Ford cars are in operation. Few branches of transportation demand such grueling service. The records show that low fuel and oil consumption is but one of the Ford's many economies. Ford materials, simplicity of design and accuracy in manufacturing provide unusual strength, stamina and freedom from replacements and repairs.

The individual car buyer as well as the purchasing department of a city or a business cannot afford to ignore the proved economy of the Ford car.

GRANTSVILLE, - MARYLAND

WASHINGTON'S FAREWELL TO HIS FELLOW OFFICERS

General Washington's last meeting with his officers took place in the back parlor of Black Sam Fraunces' Tavern, 148 years ago this December 4.

On this day, we are told by the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission, George Washington called together for the last time the officers of the Revolutionary Army, then stationed in New York City. These were the men with whom for eight years he had counseled and fought and starved in the War of Independence. It was not necessary to say farewell.

All realized the significance of tho summons from their chief. And when, shortly after noon, General Washington entered the room they knew he had come to give them their last "orders." A month previously he had said goodbye to his soldiers and subalterns, had sent most of them back to their fall plowing. But now he must take his leave of these, his veteran brother officers, who had shared with him in measure the heavy burden of command.

The tavern they were meeting in had associations of itself. In the days before men began to gather in knots on street corners and to stop their buggies at cross roads to talk of "inalienable rights" and "taxation without representation," this tavern had had for a device on its sign the head of Queen Charlotte, and was known in New York as "Queen's Head Tavern."

But when Samuel Fraunces, steward, began to invite the murmurers in the streets into his back parlor to continue their talk of liberty, the name was changed to "Fraunces' Tavern." Later when the Revolution broke out in earnest and "Black Sam" Fraunces was active on the Colonial side the place became more and more a resort for "Rebels."

This historic old house still stands at the corner of Broad and Pearl streets, and is visited annually by thousands of tourists.

The room where Washington and his officers assembled, known as the "Long Room," ten days before had been the scene of an elaborate dinner in Washington's honor celebrating the evacuation of New York by the British. Candles had then blazed from the chandeliers, bands had played, toasts had been given and tributes paid amid loud applause.

But this December noon the chamber was undecorated. The only sound was the clank of swords as the officers came to attention at the entrance of their Commander. In all the years of campaigning they had never seen Washington as visibly moved as he was at that moment.

Without any formal preliminaries he began to speak. "With a heart full of love and gratitude I now take leave of you. I most devouely wish that your latter days may be as prosperous as your former have been glorious and honorable." And with these simple words he turned to General Knox, who happened to be standing at his side, and embraced him.

"Gentlemen," he then addressed the other officers, "I cannot come to each of you to take my leave, but I shall be obliged if each of you will come and take me by the hand."

They gathered around him then to shake his hand in a long, firm clasp. There was little said on either side. It is this scene that painters have depicted so often- Washington surrounded by his officers in full dress uniform, many of them almost overcome by emotion. It was the end of an association of eight years, years of starvation, calumny, misunderstandings, as well as of triumphant accomplishments.

The boat was waiting for him at the water front, ready to take him to the Jersey shore on the first lap of his journey to Annapolis to present to the Continental Congress his resignation as Commander in Chief of the Continental forces. When the final farewells had been exchanged the officers accompanied their chief to the harbor, making an aisle through the cheering and sobbing troops drawn up to present arms for the last time to their commander.

Washington stepped into the boat, followed by General Von Steuben, who was to make the journey with him. Turning then, as the boat pulled off, he lifted his hat in a last gesture of farewell to the gentlemen who had served him so well.

get your Car ready for Winter now

"STANDARD" SERVICE CHECKS ALL POINTS

WINTER is hard on automobiles. It means extra wear on your battery. Extra crankcase dilution from too much "choke." Extra wear on gears and every other moving part. Occasionally real repair bills—and a real reconditioning job when spring comes around.

"Standard" Winter Lubrication Service is designed to save you this expense.

Drive into any "Standard" Station or dealer's. Ask to have him put your car in shape for winter driving. Your crankcase will be thoroughly drained, flushed and refilled with the proper winter consistency of motor oil. Every part of your car will be systematically gone over and supplied with the right oils and greases.

It doesn't take long. It costs very little. But it will repay you many times over—in easier driving, in fewer repair bills, in the better condition of your car.

Real winter weather is just around the corner. Have your car put in shape now.

Every "Standard" lubrication job is checked and rechecked by means of a special chart for your own make and model of car. Nothing is overlooked. Extra care is taken to keep your car thoroughly clean.

UNEMPLOYMENT RELIEF

Famous personalities, including President Herbert Hoover, Calvin Coolidge, Col. Lindbergh, Gen. Pershing, Mary Pickford, etc., have joined in issuing appeals to the American people to contribute generously to the cause of unemployment relief. The money for this purpose is needed at once.

The cold weather is upon us, and it means untold suffering for poor people who cannot afford fuel. The charity societies report many who are actually hungry, many who are wearing summer clothing as the chill of the winter comes on.

People in comfortable circumstances should realize that their good fortune is largely due to chance. Many others who meant as well as they did, who tried just as hard to make good, have failed to do so for no fault of their own. It seems only fair that all these people who have made an earnest effort in life should be helped over the present emergency.

When people fail to contrihute to such suffering, the reason is not usually that they are unsympathetic. It is that they are so busy rushing hither and thither that they have given no thought to the needs of their fellow citizens. They should abandon this neglectful attitude and ask how they would feel if they had no food, no fuel, no clothing, no money to buy anything with, if their children were getting sick from lack of nourishment. People who give generously find a greater happiness in the act than those who cling to every dollar and made that dollar their god.

There are reasons of self interest, for being generous in offering relief to the unemployed. If large numbers of worthy people suffer this winter, social discontent will increase, excuses will be given for attacks on our form of government, and the spirit of bolshevism will gain adherents. If the American people want to check these tendencies toward upheaval and destruction, they must see to it that their less fortunate folks are saved from suffering.

PREVENTABLE WASTE

Down in Texas, to get away from the growing expense of local government, it is proposed for one thing, to reduce the number of counties in that State from 254 to 50 by consolidation. The plan is the same as that now being put into effect in Georgia, where duplication of county set-ups are being gradually eliminated at a saving of many millions of dollars to the taxpayer.

Coming closer home it will be found that the 55 sheriffs of West Virginia have an average income greater than that paid to the governor of the State, all of which comes directly out of the public purse.

Emphasizing the present archaic limits of county divisions, the executives of eleven national organizations dealing with public finance, meeting in Washington, recommended their abolishment and readjustment as one of the first steps in governmental costs reduction. It must be apparent on even a casual study that the overlappings and duplications, designed for the horse-and-buggy era, are ridieulous in the present progressive day of the automobile, telephone, radio and airplane. Such useless and preventable cost in West Virginia and almost every other state is indefensible, and only an indifferent public that allows the politicians to have their own wasteful way, permits it to continue.

Reduction of public expenditure has become a most urgent necessity. All possible methods of lighening the tax burden are of first importance to both business and the individual citizen.

ANYWAY IT IS NOT OUR BATTLE

The one thing more certain than almost any other thing is that about 999 out of every 1,000 Americans believe the United States has no business to interfere actively in any way between Japan and China in the present controversy except to use its good offices to maintain the peace between the beligerents. The one man in the thousand who may think otherwise is the adventurer who may wish to get into the scrap, or perhaps he is one of those who believes that a jolly little war will restore prosperity to business in America.

In the first place few Americans actually know the rights and the wrongs of the ease. We are sympathetic with China, perhaps, as we are always sympathetic with the under dog, and we are inclined to believe Japan is imperialistic and we dislike imperialism, but sometimes the under dog deserves to be the underdog and sometimes an imperialistic policy on the part of a nation is necessary for its own preservation.

After all, China has made a pretty bad mess of her own national life. Her people have spent most of the last 20 or 30 years fighting one another. That does not mean that Japan should take advantage of this situation to crush China, of course, but the feeble position of the various Chinese governments has been so well understood by the great powers that for many years they have attempted by the invocation of their so-called extra-territorial rights to dominate her national government.

We are informed that China is rising to a new conception of integrated nationalism and that is hopeful if true, but she has not, as yet, demonstrated her ability to govern herself. Still she has the right to misgovern herself if she cannot do otherwise.

But be that as it may, the other powers naturally resent any attempt on the part of Japan to gain dominance of China. The white races know instinctively that if the yellow races were to be allied under the leadership of Japan, the supposed racial superiority of the whites would be endangered. Supposing that through the alchemy of war or by any other means, Japan with her 60,000,000 should unite with China's 400,000,000 people, such union would constitute a serious menace to the white races of the world.

These are things that are in the background of world politics just now. They are not discussed by the diplomats—will not be discussed by them; just whispered.

But so far as the United States is concerned this conflict is between two Asiatic powers and that is all. Our interests are not directly involved and short of some actual attack upon us, cannot well be involved. If President Hoover can reconcile the belligerents, that is well and all his countrymen will approve, but we will place ourselves in peril by adopting any course that could be construed as meddlesome. This is a conflict between two nations of a race, not between races. And our nation except for the dollars its citizens may have invested in China or Japan, has no immediate concern in the outcome of the present difficulty, except that all regret the fact that the nations are at war.

The League of Nations, in which so happily the United States is without membersip, is empowered to invoke a boycott or even to use its armed forces against a nation that it considers to be the aggressor in a war, but this country is not bound by any such agreement, and, it may be safely said, certain of the powers that are members of the League would find it convenient not to use the boycott and armed forces in this situation if the United States were to sit apart.

The United States has big problems of its own to solve and has not as yet arrived at their solution. Our part in the war in the Orient should be limited to doing everything we can to induce the belligerents to lay down their arms; but if they insist upon fighting, then it is not our battle.

A BARGAIN

When Mr. Hoover suggested that Germany quit paying France and France quit paying America, the French generously accepted half of the proposition.

IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

An order signed by Judge Hugh L. Bond, of the United States Circuit Court at Baltimore, was served on the Mayor and Council of Oakland prohibiting them from enforcing the ordinance which limited the speed of trains within the town limits to six miles an hour. The order was to remain in force pending an application for a preliminary injunction which had been made by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company which had grown out of the arrest a short time before of the engineer of a mail train for operating the train at a speed greater than that provided in the ordinance. At the time of the engineer's arrest the train was considerably delayed while a hearing was accorded him by the police justice.

Announcement was made that the Knights of Pythias lodge members would give a grand ball in the Glades Hotel on New Year's eve.

Mr. Charles Newman, son of Dr. and Mrs. I. D. Newman, Oakland, and Miss Hattie White, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William White, of near Oakland, were married at the home of the bride, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. G. W. Kepler, M. E. minister of Oakland.

A wind storm on Monday unroofed several large business houses in the town of Frostburg and blew down two store buildings.

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company placed in service on trains Nos. 1 and 2, passing through Oakland, Royal Blue Line cars which were illuminated by gas and with other improvements were considered the finest cars in the country. On the outside of the coaches were painted the State seal of Maryland.

The wedding of Mr. Edward M. Spedden, of Oakland, and Miss Mona Tillson, Deer Park, was solemnized at the Tillson home. A number of Oakland people attended the ceremony.

The hot houses at the Weber farm were damaged to the extent of more than $100 when a hail storm struck that section Monday morning. The wind was terrific and the residence of James Friend, located two miles from Deer Park, was blown down.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

A number of men, young and old, residing in and near Bittinger, went to the east side of Meadow Mountain where they spent several hours chopping wood for Hannah Speicher, an aged woman, who lived alone in a little cabin by the roadside.

A number of business men of Oakland interested in the First National Bank were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Sollars at their home near Oakland. A turkey dinner was served the guests who were Fred. A. Thayer, R. E. Sliger, N. U. Bond, C. E. Ellithorp and D. M. Dixon.

Paul B. Beachy, 5 miles south of Grantsville, produced a radish on his farm which weighed 32 pounds, including the top.

The Garrett County Telephone Co. and the C. & P. Telephone Co. were at odds in the Lonaconing vicinity because of the fact that the Lonaconing municipal authorities permitted the local company to attach their wires on electric light poles in that town.

An Interesting Fact

ENRICHED AT THE PUBLIC EXPENSE

The history of each age seems to strengthen the conviction that greed and avariciousness go side by side in development and prosperity. These traits are not confined to any one period or any class. Even when appointed to positions of confidence and trust there are those who are not averse to helping themselves to public funds without proper authority.

From the time "when the memory of man runneth not to the contrary" there has been conflict between those to whom has been delegated the authority as "watch dogs of the treasury" and those seeking to enrich themselves at the public expense. Such, indeed, was the condition when Maryland was governed by royal authority.

Matthew Page Andrews states it as a fact "which every school boy knows or at least has had the opportunity to learn" that the royal governors of the American colonies had difficulty in collecting their salaries from the Colonists. The beginning of these difficulties arose during the administration of Governor Copley (1692-1693).

Sir Thomas Lawrence had accompanied the first royal governor as Secretary for the Colony and seems to have been given to understand that he was to receive the same salary as that paid to the Secretary of Lord Baltimore under the Proprietary administrations. But the spirit of economy in the expenditure of public monies, or the mounting cost of government, caused the Assembly to reduce the salaries of the public servants. This was not to the liking of Sir Thomas, and he proceeded to "balance his budget" by making up the deficiency in his salary by instituting the practice of offering appointment to office of those who would divide their salaries with him. This reprehensible practice is in vogue in some sections of the country at the present time. He also increased the revenue of his family by dismissing a number of clerks and substituting his own son and others of his personal friends and adherents. Thus nepotism was added to the ills of the Colonists.

This latter practice comes in for a great deal of adverse criticism in present-day governmental employment, both State and National. When these practices became public, Lawrence was charged with the sale of offices and with bribery and corruption which resulted in his arrest and imprisonment.

Subsequently he was released from his confinement by the Assembly, not, however, for the reason that he was deemed innocent, but for the reason that it was deemed he was being unlawfully held and that he was entitled to the benefit of a writ of habeas corpus.

OLD CUMBERLAND ROAD BEING REBUILT BY STATE

Pioneer Outlet From Cumberland Touches Braddock Route

The old Cumberland Road, often called the Braddock Trail road, from Dingle Circle to the National Highway at the Six-Mile House, west of Cumberland, is being improved by the Cumberland Contracting Company for the State Roads Commission.

Concrete shoulders are being put down and the road is to be relocated in several places, widened and the sharp curves taken out over Haystack Mountain. Several ravines will be drained and filled from excavations in the hillside. The wires of the utilities companies, electric and telephone, are being removed from the roadside and carried on new poles directly across the mountain.

At the Six-Mile House intersection with the National Highway west, a traffic circle with concrete radius is being put in. Near Allegany Grove, where the Camp Ground road and the Haunted House lane intersects with the Braddock Road, another traffic circle will be made.

The Cumberland Foad was the original outlet from Cumberland westward, following in some places and through the gap in Haystack Mountain used by the military road put down by General Braddock in 1775. Part of the old road and the original base, built with river cobbles and put down by the British military engineers, can be seen on the Haunted House lane.

The Haunted House lane derives its name from an old legend. There was a murder a hundred years ago in the vicinity of the Camp Ground and it was always told that the log house was visited by the ghost of a beautiful woman crying for aid. She was said to have been struck with a riding crop and knocked from her horse by her male escort while a member of a gay fox hunting party from Cumberland.

The house abandoned for many, many years, sat off from the road and was shunned by the superstitious. Chicken and cattle thieves, not fearing ghosts, made it their headquarters at night, and during a drunken fight, a lamp was upset and the log house went up in smoke.

GRANTSVILLE

Lutherans Are Happy

Members of the local Lutheran church are rejoicing greatly that the remaining debt of several hundred dollars on the church contracted about four years ago when a basement and social room was added and the refinishing of the auditorium, which was ten thousand dollars, was cleared and the mortgage notes burned on Friday night after celebrating the 75th anniversary of the church in this town. The affair was one in which all joined heartily.

Annual Christmas Party

The annual Christmas party of the Woman's Community Club was held at the home of Mrs. Hayward Broadwater on Wednesday afternoon of this week and which proved to be a very delightful affair.

Fieldball Team Entertained

Mrs. F. W. Baker and daughter entertained at a turkey dinner on Tuesday evening the Grantsville fieldball team and their coach, Mrs. Spoerlein. Mr. Spoerlein was also a guest.

Relief Benefit

Rehearsals are progressing for a series of evening entertainments to be given by the Grantsville Choral and Dramatic Association for the benefit of the relief fund. The first one will be on Wednesday, December 9, at 8:15 o'clock in the Lutheran social hall. with a program of two one-act plays, a group of choruses by the Choral Club and baritone solos by Mr. A. J. Miller. Incidental piano music will be played by Miss Mabel Younkln.

Miss Delta Gantt entertained the members of the Lutheran Missionary Society in the social room of the church on Tuesday evening. A very interesting meeting was led by Miss Mary Miller, the topic being "Alaska."

MORE THAN 100 TREES IN THE STATE ARE UNUSUAL

University Agricultural Department Mentions Rare Examples

Maryland is beginning to be recognized as a famous State as well as the land of oysters.

Nearly everyone in the State is familiar with such famous trees as the Wye Oak of Queen Anne's county and the Treaty Tulip on St. John's College campus, at Annapolis.

Few, however, know there are at least 118 other unusual trees in the State, twelve of them considered rare examples of their species.

In a repoort by the University of Maryland agricultural department, several of these outstanding trees were discussed.

A European ash is near Hickory, Harford county, which measures 10 feet around the base and is 74 feet high. Another splendid tree, a copper beach, is located near Aiken. It is 80 feet high and measures 10 feet 8 inches around the base.

Garrett county claims one of the finest yellow birches in the State, the specimen measuring 75 feet high, with a circumference of 7½ feet. It is at Gortner, five miles south of Oakland.

Talbot county has five outstanding trees, one a red cedar at Easton, with a spread of 43 feet, a height of 52 feet and a circumference of 11½ feet. Another is a shagbark hickory, measuring 90 feet in height, at Easton. The others are a 39-foot magnolia, at Tunis Mills; a holly 53 feet high, near Easton, and a Japanese walnut 77 feet high near Kirkham.

There is an exceptionally large English elm on the A. H. Abbott farm in Worcester county, which measures 83 feet in height and has a circumference of 25 feet and a spruce pine, at Waldorf, which measures 90 feet in height.

96% OF MARYLAND PEOPLE RESIDE NEAR HARD ROADS

Ninety-six per cent of Maryland's population today resides within two miles of hard-surfaced roads, Harry D. Wiliar, Jr. chief engineer of the State Roads Commission, has just revealed.

In 1910 this State had but 400 miles of hard-surfaced roads, while now the system is composed of 3,500 miles. There were but 4,500 automobiles in Maryland in 1910, however, compared with 332,000 in 1931.

"In 1908 the then staggering sum of $5,000,000 was authorized by the legislature for a road building program," Mr. Williard said. "The total cost of construction and maintenance for the period from 1910 to 1931 amounts approximately to $112,000,000. For the year 1930 alone the sum of $16,000,000 was disbursed for roads and bridges.

Now 80 per cent of the land area of the State lies within two miles of some State road.

In 1908 a road system was laid out so that each county seat would be connected with every other county seat. This has been accomplished and every town having a population of 600 or more is connected with every other town of a similar size by a modern hard-surfaced road."

THIRTY-FOUR MARRIAGE LICENSES ARE GRANTED

Four Applicants Failed to Receive Papers; 6 Don't Publish

Marriage licenses issued at the office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court in Oakland for the final week in November totalled thirty-four, while the application of four couples were refused on the ground that the applicants were under the age prescribed.

Six licenses issued were marked "don't publish." The total number for the entire year thus far is 1,244, or 42 more than for the corresponding period in 1927, when the all-time record was established.

Only 57 licenses are needed for the month of December to surpass this all-tim erecord of 1,300. For the eleven-month period last year 1,172 licenses were issued, or 72 less than for this year.

William Franklin Metz, 20 (parents' consent), farmer, and Hazel Winifred Bittinger, 18, both of near Grantsville, Md.

Melvin Urice, 22, laborer, and Arvilla Ward, 19, both of Keyser, W. Va.

Lewis Gabel, 21, farmer, and Leota Helen Reed, 18, both of St. Clairsville, Ohio.

Minimum Essentials for Good Health

One and one-half pints milk daily for children; 1 pint for adults. One vegetable daily (leafy, if possible) besides potatoes; 1 raw vegetable, fresh fruit, canned tomatoes or sauerkraut; cereal daily, whole grain cereal or bread twice a week; fat, butter or cream daily; meat or meat substitutes daily (as eggs, cheese, fish or beans); 4 to 8 glasses of water.

Vegetable Casserole

An excellent meat substitute. Slice and toast ½ loaf of bread. Put it through the grinder and add ½ lb. chopped nuts, 1 cup chopped celery, 2 cups chopped tomatoes, ¼ cup chopped onions, 3 tablespoons melted butter, 2 well-beaten eggs, salt and pepper to season. Bake slowly for one hour and serve with tomato sauce.

Carrot Loaf

Two cups ground raw carrot, 2 cups bread crumbs, 2-3 cup chopped nuts, 3 eggs, 2 cups strained tomatoes, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 2 teaspoons minced onion. Mix the ingredients in the order given. Shape the mixture into a loaf and put into a well oiled baking pan. Steam the loaf for one hour and then brown it in the oven. Serve with cream sauce. Use as a meat substitute.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By FRANK P. LITSCHERT

As the session of Congress approaches, it becomes more and more evident that the national legislators this winter will spend most of their time wrestling with problems of economy and of revenue. For the fiscal year grows older it is clear that there will be a sizeable deficit at the end of the government's official twelve month period.

A few months ago it was the commonly accepted opinion that this new Congress because of its almost equal division would "run away with itself," so to speak. It was predicted that all sorts of unsound legislation, ranging from ideas of government operation, huge appropriations for unemployment relief, to the dole, would be proposed, and possibly forced thru Congress. But now there has been a change of public opinion, to an extent at least. It is not to be denied that bills calling for paternalistic legislation will be introduced, but those in touch with the situation are now more of the opinion that most of this legislation will die in its infancy.

There are several reasons. In the first place, President Hoover and the leaders of his administration in Congress will stand squarely opposed to unsound legislation of any sort, just as they have stood opposed to such legislation since Mr. Hoover's administration was inaugurated. And again the general public, which includes the voters, is coming to realize that we have been going through a serious depression and that we will not recover fully from it until economy takes the place of extravagance in governmental expenditures as well as in private budgets. It is just as absurd to demand that the government embark in all sorts of wild extravagances during critical times as it would be to demand that the ordinary citizen throw away his money and incur new debts in an effort to restore normal times. Everyone who has studied the questions knows that it cannot be done that way, and that the government will have to balance its budget in order to meet conditions as they are.

Then again, it is now considered likely that there will be tax revision during the coming session of Congress. It is now generally agreed that the depression is a major one and that the government cannot go on borrowing money and anticipating the future while rolling up huge deficits each quarter. The only remedy at hand, therefore, is an upward revision of taxes, or the imposition of new kinds of taxes. Now taxation is not a popular subject, either with legislators nor the taxpayers themselves. Nobody likes to see taxes raised. And during a period when Congress is under the painful necessity of raising taxes to take care of present and past expenditures, it is not going to be a popular pastime to try to create new ways of spending money and new deficits which in the future will have to be made up with higher taxation.

Therefore, because of the President's stand, because of the general realization of the real governmental financial condition, and because of the public's tax consciousness at this time, schemes for appropriating huge sums of money for more or less illusionary ways of "curing the depression" are not going to be as popular as they bade fair to be a year ago. The average legislator keeps his ear to the ground and senses the change in public opinion about as quickly as anyone. And public opinion being what it is today, the aforesaid legislator is going to be a little more careful about the way he votes for legislation which will have a tendency to create new deficits.

Certainly there was never a time in the history of the country which called for more careful, conservative legislation on economic matters than the present. If we are to restore prosperity—and everyone believes that it will be restored sooner or later—we will have to get down to "brass tacks" nationally as well as individually. Nothing would restore confidence quicker in the United States than the return of Uncle Sam to a balanced budget.

BITTINGER

James P. Wiley, Civil War Soldier.

James P. Wiley, who spent his entire life in this district until some four years ago, when he removed to Somerfield, Pa., died at his residence in Somerfield last Saturday evening at ten o'clock. The deceased was one of the few remaining survivors of the Civil War veterans and was about 84 years of age and was the last surviving son of Holmes Wiley, the pioneer hunter of this community and was a contemporary of Meshack Browning.

Mr. Wiley is survived by his widow and a number of sons and daughters, among them being Grant, Ralph, Milton, Harvey and Edward, all of this county. The surviving daughters are Mrs. Simon Resh, Mrs. Levi Resh, of near Jennings; Mrs. Alfred Graves, of Frostburg; Mrs. Joseph Keefe, of Clinchburg, Va., and Mrs. Chaddie Hager, of Somerfield, Pa. The funeral of Mr. Wiley was held at Grantsville on Tuesday afternoon.

Light Snow Fall

A light snow fell in this neighborhood on the night following Thanksgiving and remained on the ground until Saturday evening, when the fields and roadways again assumed their accustomed brown color.

Taken To Hospital

Lloyd F. Brenneman of this village, was taken to Cumberland last Friday where he underwent a slight operation at the Allegany Hospital in that city, and at this time is reported as being rapidly recovering.

Wedding Announced

The marriage of Miss Martha Beachy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Silas C. Beachy, of near Bittinger, and Mr. Robert L. Emory, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Emory, of this village, which occurred at the Lutheran parsonage in Oakland several weeks ago, has been announced. The young couple, esteemed for their excellent qualities, were surprised and entertained by an old fashioned serenading party last Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Emory's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Beachy, at which time the announcement of the marriage was made.

Thank Offering Service

The special thank offering service held in the local Lutheran church on Thanksgiving evening by the women of the Missionary Society, was a splendid financial success, the offering amounting to more than fifty dollars, the money thus raised to be devoted to home and foreign missions.

Personal Mention

Roy Hetrick and family, of Salisbury, Pa., spent Sunday with relatives near here.

Merchant C. E. Ellithorp, of this village, has sufficiently recovered from his recent illness to be able to go about again.

Messrs. John Hetrick, of Accident, and Adam Hetrick, of Morgantown, West Va., visited their brother, Melchoir Hetrick, at his home here one day last week.

STAGE COACH AND CANAL BOAT U. S. CELEBRITIES

Every American school boy has read the story of the boyhood of President James A. Garfield and his struggles with a canal boat. Comparatively few people, however, are aware of the fact that the career of Jeremiah Rusk a boyhood friend of the martyred President, closely paralleled his career, although Jerry Rusk was associated with a stage coach instead of a canal boat. In an interesting story on the career of Jeremiah Rusk in the current issue of the National Republic, Dr. Horace Ellis says in part:

"Eighty-five years ago, under singular circumstances, a friendship was born between two northern Ohio youths which continued to the end of their useful lives. One of the twain was James A. Garfield, who at that time was riding a canal-boat mule along the tow-path of a section of the Erie Canal; the other was Jeremiah M. Rusk, Garfield's senior by a year, who drove a team of four well-fed, spirited horses which drew the stagecoach, an old vehicle of the Concord type, over the highway between Zanesville and Newark. Their work threw them together almost daily. At the first, their salutations were merely friendly waving of the hands; but as their acquaintance ripened, from the stagecoach came the neighborly greeting of 'Hello, Jimmie,' which was invariably met from the tow-path with an equally friendly return of 'Hello, Jere.' This cordiality continued for months. In 1853 the comradeship was broken off for a time, as Jere moved to Wisconsin, bidding his friend on the tow-path a pathetic farewell. Between the careers of these two youths a remarkable parallelism succeeded. Each was born in a log cabin on the farm; each was at an early age left fatherless; each served in the general assembly of his state; each rose to the rank of brigade general in the Civil War; each entered Congress at the close of the war, and on that November day in 1880 when the tow-path rider became President of the United States, the stage driver became governor of his adopted state of Wisconsin.

"A few months before he reached the age of nineteen, Rusk married Mary Martin, the daughter of one of the most respected residents of that section of Ohio. Because of his father's death, which had occurred when Rusk was sixteen years of age, the entire management of his mother's farm fell upon him. He continued, after his marriage, both as manager of the farm and as driver of the stagecoach, succeeding at both occupations. In 1853, with his wife and two infant children in a covered wagon, Mr. Rusk removed to Bad Axe county, Wisconsin, settling near the Viroqua, a few miles west of the Wisconsin River Dells. Resolutely applying himself to the solution of all problems incident to the operation of his new farm, employing the knowledge he had acquired in his native Morgan county, Ohio, agriculhural experience, this twenty-three year old stalwart saw success rewarding his efforts. In addition to his farm duties, he took on the responsibility of operating a tavern, his farm furnishing the hotel table with choicest dairy products, poultry products, beef and pork and vegetables of every variety. For the substantial convenience of the travelling public he established a stagecoach line betwcen Sparta and Prairie du Chien, he himself a second time in life becoming a stage driver. Both of these ned adventures proved eminently profitable."

STOP NIGHT COUGHING

Night coughing is almost always caused by an irritated, inflamed throat; so is almost all coughing. Ordinary cough syrups do not reach these conditions, but Thoxine, a prescription exclusively for throat troubles, does. It relieves the irritation and the cough stops within 15 minutes. And Thoxine goes further, too. It eliminates the internal cause which many times develops into serious illness.

A swallow of Thoxine before retiring absolutely prevents night coughing and insures a good night's sleep. It gives the same speedy relief for sore throat, too. It contains no chloroform or other harmful drugs and children like it. Relief is guaranteed within 15 minutes or money back. 35c, 60c, and $1.00 bottles. Sold by Gonder's Drug Store and all other good drug stores.—Advertisement 42,48

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

Christine Ackerman vs. Charles W. Ackerman.
No. 3044 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a divorce a vinculo matrimonii by the plaintiff from the defendant.

The bill states:

1. That on April 19, 1923, she was married to a certain Charles W. Ackerman, of Fayette county, Pennsylvania, with whom she lived as his wife until April 23, 1925, and again from April, 1928, to July 4, 1928, during which time they resided at the home of your oratrix in Garrett county, Maryland.

2. That, though the conduct of your oratrix towards her husband, the said Charles W. Ackerman, has always been kind, affectionate and above reproach, the said Charles W. Ackerman has, without any just cause or reason, abandoned and deserted her, and has declared his intention to live with her no longer, and such abandonment has continued uninterruptedly for at least three years and is deliberate and final, and the separation of the parties beyond any reasonable expectation of reconciliation.

3. That on the 3rd day of December, 1929, a decree of divorce a mensa et thoro was granted to your oratrix by this Honorable Court as against the said Charles W. Ackerman, the same being No. 2904 Equity in this Court, since which time your oratrix has neither seen nor heard directly from the said defendant.

4. That your oratrix and the said defendant, Charles W. Ackerman, have had no children born to them from said marriage.

5. That your oratrix resides in the State of Maryland and the defendant is a non-resident of the State of Maryland, whose present place of residence is unknown to your oratrix, but whose last known address was Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

The bill then prays for a divorce a vinculo matrimonii of the plaintiff from the defendant, for general relief and for an order of publication.

IT IS THEREUPON, This 11th day of November, 1931, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, in Equity, that the plaintiff by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Garrett County, Maryland, once in each of four successive weeks before the 11th day of December, 1931, giving notice to the said absent defendant of the object and substance of this bill, warning him to appear in this Court, in person or by solicitor, on or before the 28th day of December, 1931, to show cause, if any he has, why a decree should not be passed as prayed. E. Z. TOWER, Clerk.

GARRETT CO. STUDENTS AREACTIVE AT FROSTBURG

Twenty From This County Enrolled at Normal This Year

Garrett county is well represented at the State Normal School at Frostburg, and a number of her students have achieved signal honors in college activities.

Oakland High School—Mildred Stemple, who graduated in 1930, has been elected vice-president of the 4-H club. She was on the program at the annual banquet of the 4-H Trail, which was attended by one hundrer and thirty-five members and guests on November 21 in Cumberland. Helen Sollars, who graduated the same year, has been made a member of the Frontline staff. Both Miss Stemple and Miss Sollars are seniors at Frostburg. Virginia Gilbert, also of the class of 1930, has been chosen pianist for the Y. W. C. A. She is a member of the junior class which will complete its work in 1933 with the distinction of being the first three-year class.

Friendsville High School—Helen Statler, of the class of 1931, has been elected secretary of the freshman class, and Bruce Jenkins, of the class of 1930, has been chosen chairman of Freshman Hi.

Accident High School—Mary Callis, who graduated in 1930, has been made a member of the Frontline staff.

Grantsville High School—Daisy Shumaker, who graduated in 1930, has been elected secretary of the Alpha Tau Club. She was one of a group from the club who made an excursion recently to Old Fort Frederick, Antictam Battlefield and Harper's Ferry. Zola Folkfi of the class of 1930, was ticket manager for the Y. W. C. A. variety matinee held in the school auditorium on November 19. Clyde Dahlgren, a freshman at Frostburg, took part recently in a play given by the Alpha Tau Club. He, too, was one of the group from the club who visited Old Fort Frederick. Esther Opel, also a freshman, has already won a place for herself in athletics and has been chosen on the first freshman soccer team.

The following students from Garrett county who are attending the State Normal School at Frostburg, will arrive today to spend the vacation period of Thanksgiving at their homes: Gertrude Bernard, Willa Harvey, Helen Sollars, Mildred Stemple, Virginia Paulie, Mary Jane Porter, Ethel Stier, Oakland; Mary Callis, Bertha Klotz, Isabel Glotfelty, Accident; Nina Friend, Bruce Jenkins, Helen Statler, and Clyde Dahlgren, Friendsville; Daisy Shumaker, Jennie Durst, Edith Opel, and Esther Opel, Grantsville. Fern Folk, who graduated from Grantsville High School, will go to her home in Fort Hill, Pa., and Virginia Gilbert, a graduate of Oakland High School, to Buekhannon, West Va.

MT. LAKE PARK

In these depressing times it takes some nerve to start even a small new enterprise. We, therefore, were surprised and somewhat mystified to hear the buzz and hum of what we first thought was a passing plane. Upon investigation we found that Mr. H. V. Leighton had installed one unit of a planing mill in a part of the Weeks and Weeks warehouse in Loch Lynn Heights. Mr. Leighton can turn out molding, flooring and siding. The mill is going at full blast and its noise and hum is music to the ear. A few enterprising men over the county can start the ball rolling up hill.

Many members of the famous—or should we say "in"—Ananias Club have taken to the mountains after deer. We have no doubt that Thomp Lipscomb, Ben Harvey, the Sweitzers, Wiley Welling, Lester Yutzy, Fred Fleming and Jim Painter will have a water-proof alibi for not bringing home the venison. The committee on truth and veracity will carefully check all reports.

Mr. and Mrs. MacClellan Clayton are having a delightful time in California, according to letters received by friends in the Park. Well, so far as weather is concerned, California doesn't have a thing on Garrett county—that is, to the present date.

Miss Virginia Weeks, a student in Bowling Green, Ky., and Miss Elizabeth Gibson, of Baltimore, spent the week-end here with their parents.

Miss Edith Ream, Charlotte Hall, and Elmus Ream, Orange, N. J., accompanied by Prof. Albert Harris and Mr. Paul Bennett, of Washington, D. C., motored here for the holiday and spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. John W. Ream.

On November 23 a daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Lee B. Sanders at Lewistown, Pa. The mother is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Welling.

Master David Morgan, son of Mr. and Mrs. John O. Morgan, is ill at the home of his parents.

Mr. James Knight, of Fairmont, was the guest of friends here last week.

On Wednesday evening, December 9, Oak Lodge, I. O. O. F., will have an election of officers and celebrate Past Grands night.

Mrs. R. L. Cunningham and son L. M. Cunningham motored here from Fairmont Tuesday and spent the day with friends.

Mr. A. D. Fike has been under the weather for the past several days.

Mrs. Kathryn McDonald, Miss Julia McMullan and Mrs. Ida Phoebus, of Cumberland, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Frame one day last week.

Miss Eva Welling, Mr. Franklin C. Cook and Mrs. Charles Taylor, all of Cumberland, were Thanksgiving visitors and guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wiley W. Welling.

Mr. and Mrs. Hershel Nine, Morgantown, were week-end guests of Miss Helen Sehooley.

MARRIED

Beachy—Custer—Miss Berniee May Custer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ervin Custer, of near Swanton, and Mr. John Cornelius Beachy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Silas C. Beachy, of the Bittinger section of Garrett county, were married at the Lutheran parsonage in Oakland on Saturday evening, November 28, by the Rev. Charles A. Shilke. The ring ceremony was used.

Red Cross Workers

Misses Gladys Hetrick, Hildegarde Miller and Ola King are assisting Nina B. Peck, chairman of the American Red Cross for the Accident district. Quite a number of members have been secured but a report is not complete.

Victor's Class Meets

The Victor's Class of St. Paul's Sunday school was entertained by Mrs. Jonas Margroff and Nina Peck at the home of Mrs. Margroff last Wednesday night. Thanksgiving games and contests were the diversion of the evening and Glenn Keller, Stanley Margroff and Lawrence Hetrick were successful in winning prizes in the various contests. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Margroff. The class will meet at the home of Paul Miller in December.

Record of Attendance

There are 52 pupils in the room taught by Miss Dora Sehlossnagle in Accident Grammar school. During all last week the pupils all had perfect attendance except one who was absent one day on account of illness in the home. As a token of appreciation, Miss Schlossnagle presented each pupil with a small gift.

Operetta Will Be Presented

The pupils of the Accident Grammar school, under the direction of Miss Ruth Conley, are practicing for an operetta which will he presented December 22.

Personal Mention

Mr. and Mrs. J. Arthur Speieher, of Hagerstown, and Miss Nelle Speieher, Laurel, returned to their respective homes after having spent the Thanksgiving vacation at the home of their mother, Mrs. Allie Speieher.

STATE LEGION OFFICERS ENTERTAINED ON TUESDAY

Local Legion Post Host at Dinner—Robert H. Archer, State Commander, Chief Speaker

ABOUT EIGHTY ATTEND

Robert H. Archer, State Commander American Legion, was the principal speaker at a dinner served at the Manhattan hotel Tuesday night when Proctor Kilow Post No. 71, was host to the State Legion officers, including the State Commander, A. L. McGee, department adjutant; and John R. Tenncy, vice-commander, of Hagerstown.

Approximately eighty Legionaires of the county were present at the dinner, which was the outcome of the presentation of a "porker" by a member of the local post some few days ago, and which was roasted by Henry Lauer, proprietor of the Oakland Bakery.

Neil C. Fraley, local attorney, was toastmaster, and his program included in addition to addresses by the three state officers, a song fest preceding the dinner and later remarks by Joseph M. Gonder and C. Milton Sincell, captains of the membership drive teams, and also by past commander Delbert Davis, who reviewed the history of the local Post and spoke of the present activities of the local organization, as well as plans for the near future which are expected to be carried out by the membership.

Mr. Archer pointed out in his address that the two main objectives of the State and National organizations of the American Legion were, first, to procure assistance from the government for widows and orphans of deceased World War veterans, and second, to prevail upon the State and Nation for more and better hospitalization facilities for World War veterans. He stated that in Maryland there is now a waiting list of more than 450 veterans seeking admission into hospitals, and that in many cases the need for hospitalization is urgent.

Mr. McGee confined his remarks to the work the State organization had carried on for the benefit of the veterans and their dependents, and pointed out the value of the organization to the ex-service man, while Mr. Tenney reversed the order and showed decisively the reasons why every ex-service man should avail himself of the opportunity to become a member of the American Legion, and lend every effort for the strengthening of that organization.

Plans Made For Conference with Extension Directors

At a meeting of members of a committee interested in the development of Mt. Lake Park as a center for agricultural extension activities of Maryland, West Virginia and Pennsylvania, held last night, preparations were made for a conference with Dr. T. B. Symons, director of extension work in Maryland, in the near future. Dr. Nat T. Frame, director of extension work, University of West Virginia, will be present at the meeting, and a number of citizens of the county, representing the different towns. W. C. McDowell, extension director for Pennsylvania, will also be invited to attend.

The meeting is to decide definitely whether or not Mt. Lake Park will become a recreational center such as Jackson's Mill, W. Va., or Oglebay Park, near Wheeling, for the tableland territory of parts of West Virginia, Maryland and Pennsylvania.

The cooperation of all active organizations and individual citizens is being asked in this movement. Mr. Frank E. Baker, representing the Board of Foreign Missions of the M. E. church, will also be present to give his permission for use of the Park buildings for all meetings.

40-Gallon Still Discovered; Wm. C. Welch Being Held

Confiscation of a 40-gallon still, one gallon of alleged whiskey, and several barrels of mash was effected on Tuesday by Prohibition Agents William R. Harvey and Leon Poore, on the property of William C. Welch, Gortner.

Welch appeared before Justice W. A. Gonder yesterday and waived a hearing posting a bond of $500 for his appearance at the March Term of the Circuit Court.

Fire Department Answers Two Out-of-Town Calls Monday

The Oakland Volunteer Fire Department answered two out of town calls during the week, one to extinguish a blaze in the home of C. Wright, Deer Park, and the other to subdue a forest fire near Mt. Lake Park.

Fire was discovered in the flue of the Wright home, on the Altamont road east of Deer Park, on Monday, which spread to the roof, but the blaze had been put out before the local department arrived.

What for a time threatened to be a disastrous woods fire raged for two hours near the lake at the Park, on Tuesday night. The efforts of the members of the department, combined with a slight drizzle of rain, soon stopped the blaze. Approximately 20 acres were burned. The origin of the fire is not known.

Flue Fire Extinguished

The Oakland Volunteer Fire department was called out about 9 o'clock Monday morning to extinguish a flue fire in the chimney of the home of Joseph Wolfe, Oak street.

No damage resulted from the blaze.

ANNUAL BAND CONCERT TO BE HELD DECEMBER 27

Fifth Entertainment to be Given at Theatre Following Worship

The fifth annual concert of the Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band will be given in the Maryland Theatre on Sunday evening, December 27, at 8:30 o'clock, Russell Brown, director, announced a day or two ago.

The entertainment will be held immediately after the evening services in the various Oakland churches. The band will render a number of classical music, including marches, overtures, waltzes, etc., under the direction of Mr. Brown. Mr. Bernard I. Gonder, manager, is donating the use of the theatre and no admission will be charged.

Each year since the organization of the band in 1927, an annual concert has been given so that the improvement in playing may be observed by the public during the preceding twelve months.

The band is now composed of the following members: R. H. Brown, director; Irvin Broadwater, Elvin Iman, Hugh Teets, Jack Treacy, Logan Weber, Joseph Sollars, John McIntire, Laural Whipkey, Richard Davis, William Glotfelty and L. Weeks, cornets; S. H. Jackson, George Kerins, Bond Weber, L. Ramsey, Howard Naylor, Austin McRobie, clarinets; Maurice Treacy, William Boardman, piccolos; Kenneth Lawton, Jack Weber, P. Fazzalaria, J. Billy Yutzy, melophones.

Four Ohio Youths Charged With Theft of Auto; Arrested By State Officer Thomas Currie

Charged with stealing an automobile in Dayton, Ohio, four youths were arrested last Thursday night on the road between Grantsville and Oakland, and were arraigned in Cumberland on Friday before United States Commissioner Thomas J. Anderson and were lodged in the Allegany County Jail in default of $1,000 bond each, pending a further hearing.

The youths gave their names as Herbert L. Southcly, 19; Paul E. Seipple, 16; Stanley B. Stedan, 16, and Albert D. Dillabon, 17. A hunter reported that the boys attempted to take gasoline from his car which was parked alongside the road. Corporal Thomas E. Currie, of the State Police, stationed at Oakland, arrested the four youths and took them to Cumberland.

The boys said they were on their way east to obtain employment and contended that the car was owned by a relative of one of the group. Officers said that the car was reported as missing in Dayton.

The youths face a charge of violating the Dyer Act, a Federal law prohibiting the transportation of a stolen car from one state to another.

POSTMASTER URGES EARLY CHRISTMAS MAILING HERE

Parcels For Far West Should Be Mailed by December 12, To Insure Delivery In Time

SCHEDULE IS SUGGESTED

Christmas packages intended for the Pacific Coast States should be mailed from Oakland or other points in Garrett county not later than Saturday, December 12, to insure their delivery before December 25, Postmaster Webster Ravenscroft announced here today in giving his annual "mail early" advice to the public.

"Wrap all parcels carefully and securely, write address plainly and on one side of package only," he admonished. "If written on both sides and the parton of the forwarding office has the package insured, or a special delivery stamp placed upon it, the record is made on only one side of the package, and if in a hurry, as is always the case around Christmas time, the dispatcher may notice only the side having the plain address upon it. This warning has come from the general office in Washington."

With approximately four times as much mail to be handled during the month of December as for the average month of the year, it is hoped that Garrett countians will do their mailing early, Dr. Ravenscroft said. No extra help will be employed by the local office except the substitute letter carrier. The postmaster also urges everyone to buy stamps early this year to avoid any "waits" in line at the stamp window near Christmas time when everybody is in a hurry and the usual last hour rush is on.

To insure delivery before Christmas the postmaster suggests the following schedule for the mailing of packages to distant points:

December 12, Pacific Coast States, Montana, Wyoming, Nevada, Utah, Arizona and New Mexico.

December 15—All states west of the Mississippi not mentioned above, and Florida.

December 16—All Southern states, New England states, Illinois, Wisconsin, Michigan, Indiana and Kentucky.

December 18—Ohio, New York, Delaware and New Jersey.

December 19—West Virginia, Pennsylvania and Maryland, outside of Garrett county.

December 22—City of Oakland and Garrett county towns.

Christmas Is Holiday

All work will be suspended in all postoffices on December 25, except special delivery service and the regular holiday collection and dispatches of first class mail. There will be no city delivery or rural delivery on Christmas day.

OAKLAND H.S. DRAMATISTS TO GIVE THREE-ACT PLAY

"The Alley Daffodil" To Be Presented Friday Evening

Friday evening a record attendance is expected to see the new three-act comedy, "The Alley Daffodil," which will be presented in the Oakland High School auditorium, beginning at 8:15.

While listed as a comedy, there is present in the lines just enough humor to present in a pleasing way the high moral touch of the play, Miss Margaret Kochenderfer, director, has said.

George Roberts has been one of those fortunate persons who have been responsible for an invention. His was a fool-proof mouse trap. Before this streak of luck, however, they were residents of Flynn Alley, an extremely poor section of the city. In their new found financial freedom they make a trip to Europe to get polished up for American society.

Therefore upon the appearance of Cherry Ragan, a former Flynn Alley friend, they pretend not to know her because her hose didn't even match. Cherry Ragan then steps into the guise of Adeline Stone, Mr. Roberts partner in the mouse trap business and causes many complex situations to arise.

Carroll Casteel, playing the part of Rumpus, a colored servant, and Helen Schlossnagle, a colored maid, present their share of the comedy of the play.

Admission will be 35 cents for the adults and 15 cents for children.

Three numbers from the senior girls Glee Club will be given between the second and third acts of the play.

Clarence Swauger, who was found guilty of assaulting his father, was sentenced the latter part of last week to six months in the Maryland House of Correction by Justice W. A. Gonder. He will begin serving his term within a few days.

RELIEF COMMITTEE WILL DISCUSS CREATING JOBS

Regular Bi-Monthly Meeting To Be Held Next Wednesday Evening; Supper To Be Served

PROGRAM BEING PREPARED

A discussion on finding work for the men and women of the county who are able to work and willing to work, but who at present cannot find anything to do, will be one of the principal features of the bi-monthly meeting of the Garrett County Central Relief Committee, at Oakland High School next Wednesday evening, December 16, at 6:00 o'clock.

Invitations are being sent to the Mayors of incorporated towns of the county, the Senator and former Senators of the county, members of the House of Delegates, presidents of Rotary and Civic clubs, School Board and other organizations, the county agent and a number of citizens to take part in this meeting and offer practical suggestions for developing jobs for the needy.

Miss Katharine T. Kirwan, a member of the Children's Aid Society of Baltimore, who is promoting the social welfare work in the county with the assistance of the central relief committee and all district committees, is preparing a program to be presented on that evening.

"Unless we strive to keep alive the sense of self-reliance and self-respect in the people we help, we will do them an injury which will eventually weaken the fibre of the citizenship of Garrett county," Miss Kirwan said.

Reports regarding the relief given in each district will be given by the district chairmen and will cover statistics on the number of families aided for the first time and for more than once in the matter of both food and clothing, the contributions of money, food and clothing received in each district, and the further help needed there.

Supper will be served in the school annex of the high school, the students of the home economics department and their instructors preparing the meal. The charge will be fifty cents per plate.

OAKLAND COUNCIL FAVORS PARK DEVELOPMENT PLAN

Will Forward Resolutions to that Effect—Regular Meeting Held

Endorsement of the proposal to develop Mountain Lake Park as a center for Agricultural Extension activities and the appointment of a committee to inspect the property adjacent to the Oakland Grammar School building as to its dangerous condition were the two most important actions of the Oakland Mayor and Town Council at the regular monthly meeting of that body held Monday evening in the City Council chamber.

The Park plan was not only heartily endorsed, but resolutions are to be drawn up embracing the sentiment of the Mayor and Council toward this movement and sent to Dr. T. B. Symons, Director of Extension, University of Maryland. The Mayor and Council of Mountain Lake Park also endorsed the project at a recent meeting.

Complaints Concerning Property

George Kerins and J. Wm. Whorton, members of Council, were appointed as a committee to inspect the property adjacent to the Oakland Grammar School and to report the seriousness as a menace to the welfare of the public. Some action will then be taken by Council, it was haid.

As numerous complaints have been made in recent months concerning the condition of the building, Council, under authority of one of the town ordinances will inspect it, and if found to be in a dangerous condition or as a fire menace will serve notice on the owner either to have it placed in a safe condition or to board it up completely.

A number of complaints were made to Council at its Monday meeting about the quarterly water bills. Meters will be inspected where complaints have been made.

The passing of the monthly bills, amounting to approximately $900, occupied the remainder of the session.

The next regular meeting of Council will be held on January 4, 1932.

Give to the jobless and needy.

Christmas Toys To Be Collected and Repaired by Scouts

Collection of toys by members of the local scout troop which was to have taken place on Saturday, December, 5, will be made on Saturday, December 12, George H. Hanst, scoutmaster, announced.

The toys will be repaired if necessary by the scouts and will be given out on Christmas eve to children of the neighborhood. Any family having toys which are no longer used by their children, or which are partly broken, should notify a member of the troop or the scoutmaster, and they will be collected on Saturday.

The toy packages will either be included in the clothing and food boxes, which will probably be sent out by the various relief committees during the Christmas season, or will be sent separately.

WOULD-BE ROBBER KILLED NEAR MT. STORM MONDAY

Athens, Pa., Man Had Attacked Clyde Winters, Service Station Operator, With Hammer

SHOOTS IN SELF-DEFENSE

Clyde Winters, of Bayard, W. Va., in charge of the filling station at Abram's Creek, on Route 50, three miles east of Mount Storm, shot and killed Douglas Washburn, of Athens, Pa., in self-defense about 9:30 o'clock on Monday evening.

Winters stated that Washburn had stopped at the filling station for the expressed purpose of having the oil changed in his Buick roadster and asked that the work be done. As Winters was pouring in the second quart of oil, he stated, the man struck him on the side of his head with a hammer. As the blow only dazed him, Washburn struck again, and Winters then fired with his revolver, the bullet penetrating Washburn's forehead and killing him instantly. As Washburn fell Winters stated that he was reaching for a gun which he had concealed in his pocket.

Sheriff J. A. Kimble, of Grant county, West Va., was notified. An inquest was held and the jury exhonerated Winters, holding that he had acted in self-defense.

The body of Washburn was taken to Kitzmiller and prepared for burial by Undertaker Otho Sharpless, who communicated with relatives of the dead man at Athens. They arrived at Kitzmiller yesterday afternoon.

The man was well dressed, about 26 years old, of splendid appearance but without money, his identity being established by a check and bank book found upon him.

May Form Independent Quint From ex-High School Stars

With several ex-high school basketball stars remaining in Oakland this winter, an attempt will be made to form an independent team which will schedule home and away from home games with nearby towns such as Kingwood, Terra Alta, Morgantown, Lonaconing, Frostburg and possibly others.

The first practice session was held on Tuesday evening. Those on the squad include Kenneth Graves, Richard Glotfelty, Joseph Sollars, James Nally, James Nordeck, Edwin Elias, George Hanst, Robert Stanton, John Thayer, Henry McComas and Robert Hoffman.

No games have been scheduled yet.

Thirty-eight Attend Meeting of Yough Community Boosters

The regular meeting of the Yough Community Boosters was held in the Selbysport school house December 2, with thirty-eight people present.

Mr. N. R. Selby gave the address. His remarks were mostly directed to young farming people. Some discussion of farm problems followed, but most of the remainder of the evening was given to entertainment. The music was rendered by Messrs. William Turney, William Ward and Luther Harmon.

Two reels of pictures were shown, one on "The Fundamentals of Good Concrete," and one on "Increasing Farm Profits by Saving Manure."

The next meeting will be held on Wednesday evening, January 6, at which time all interested persons are invited to attend.

PITTSBURGH POLITICIAN BEING HELD IN CUSTODY

Is Charged with Marrying Maryland Widow at Oakland When He Already Had a Wife

HAS PRELIMINARY TRIAL

Charged with marrying a Maryland widow and using her life's savings to further his campaign for director of the poor in the recent primary election in Allegheny county, Pennsylvania, while he had a wife living in Pittsburgh, Edgar F. Cornelius, 44, a city employe of Pittsburgh, was committed to jail in that city on Friday, December 4, on a charge of bigamy. Garrett county authorities brought Cornelius to the Oakland jail on Saturday.

At a preliminary hearing before Justice W. A. Gonder on Tuesday afternoon, Cornelius waived a hearing and is being held in default of $1,000 bond for his appearance at the March Term of the Circuit Court. In default of bond he was recommitted to the Garrett County Jail.

Cornelius is known as a politician and was arrested at the Pittsburgh City Home at Mayview where he had been employed as an attendant since his political defeat. He was taken on a furgitive from justice warrant issued in Pittsburgh upon information filed by a wronged widow, who had been searching for Cornelius who deserted her after a three days' honeymoon.

The complainant is Mrs. Marie Gank, 43, blonde and determined. She informed authorities that on August 10 she met Cornelius while he was on a vacation in Oakland. From the very first meeting she says Cornelius made fast and desperate love to her. He represented that he would be elected to a high office in Allegheny county, Pa., and on the strength of that they were married.

The records in the office of the Garrett County Clerk of the Circuit Court show that on August 10 a marriage license was granted to Edward F. Cornelius, 45, salesman, who gave his address as San Antonio, Texas, and Marie Gank, 54, Keyser, W. Va. He claimed to be a widower, dating back to December 11, 1913, while Mrs. Gank became a widow on March 11, 1928.

A few days after the marriage, she declares, her new husband borrowed $300 from her and went to Pittsburgh. He promised to return, according to Mrs. Gank, after the election and pay back the borrowed money. Mrs. Gank says she did not see Cornelius again until after his arrest and detention at detective headquarters in Pittsburgh, nor had she had any message from him.

Becoming suspicious, Mrs. Gank performed a little sleuthing on her own hook and learned that Cornelius had a wife living and that he was employed by the City of Pittsburgh. She swore out a bigamy warrant and took it to Pittsburgh on Friday. Cornelius was arrested while at work and was taken to detective headquarters where Mrs. Gank identified him. Cornelius was philosophical in facing the widow and said: "I guess I pulled a boner."

"Yes, you did that, all right; but what about my money and my future?" said Mrs. Gank.

Oakland To Have Community Christmas Tree

Through the efforts of the Rotary Club, the West Penn Company and the Oakland firemen, Oakland will again have a community Christmas tree, it has been announced.

The tree will be provided and raised by members of the fire department; will be decorated by the Monongahela West Penn Public Service Company, and the Rotary Club will furnish the Christmas treat on the afternoon before Christmas. A more definite announcement of this treat will be made next Thursday, according to Mr. E. R. Jones, president of the Rotary Club.

GRANTSVILLE LUTHERAN CHURCH HAS CELEBRATION

Week's Services Mark 75th Anniversary of Founding of the Church in Old Trail's Town

ALL DEBTS ARE NOW PAID

The five-day program celebrating the 75th anniversary of the Lutheran church at Grantsville culminated last Friday night with the burning of the mortgage on the church property, leaving the congregation entirely free of debt and with a beautiful and commodious house of worship worth, together with the large lot on which it stands, at least $25,000.

The celebration began on Monday evening, designated as "High School Night," when teachers and pupils of the Grantsville High School took part in the program.

Tuesday night was "Historical Night," when the history of the local church was reviewed. The program on this night began with a pageant under the direction of Misses Holmes and Wallace, depicting the history of the progress of Christianity with special reference to the Lutheran Church from the time of Martin Luther to the present. Those taking part were all suitably costumed and presented it in a very beautiful and artistic manner. The various parts were taken by the young people of the church and teachers and pupils of the Grantsville High School.

George W. Diefenbach read a history of the congregation, which was organized in 1856 by the late Rev. Matthew F. Pfahler, who was the first pastor. The first church building, a frame structure, was dedicated in 1859, on the site of the present edifice, on a lot donated by Adam Shultz, a pioneer citizen, stone mason, farmer and tavern-keeper of Grantsville. The present brick structure was dedicated under the pastorate of the late Dr. L. P. Young in 1913. About seven years ago the ground under the edifice was excavated and a sub-story was added to the church at a cost of more than $10,000, including the furnishings, etc. The basement is used for Sunday school and social purposes.

Miss Emma Estelle Pfahler, Meyersdale, a great-granddaughter of Rev. Matthew Pfahler, the founder of the church, gave a reading, and was followed by her father, R. D. Pfahler, a grandson of the founder, who gave some reminiscences about the venerable "Father" Pfahler, who was often referred to by that title on account of his godliness.

A class of little girls in the quaint costumes worn by little girls of 60 years ago, appeared on the rostrum to represent the children of the first Sunday school held in the old brown church erected by Father Pfahler. The little girls sang several Sunday school songs of the long ago.

Some of the older members of the congregation and former Sunday school scholars were called upon for reminiscences of the olden times, among them Publisher W. S. Livengood of the Meyersdale Republican, and his newspaper brother, P. L. Livengood, of Salisbury, who as young boys attended Sunday school in the old church from 1867 to 1874.

William Winterberg and other old-time members of the church and Sunday school also gave reminiscences. A granddaughter of Hon. Thomas Henry Bittinger, who was superintendent of the Sunday school for many years, read some extracts from the minute book kept by her grandfather during his long incumbency.

Wednesday night was "Missionary Night," when the annual Thank Offering service was held. Thursday night was "Community Night," when appropriate services were held in commemoration of the benefit the Lutheran church has been to the Grantsville community.

On Friday night the pastor, Rev. S. D. Sigler, gave a talk on the past and future of the congregation.

At this service the money necessary to pay off the few hundred dollars of the mortgage on the church property was raised and the mortgage was burned.—Meyersdale Republican.

BITTINGER

The Deer Hunting Season

Many men, young and old, with and without rheumatism, each carrying a gun of some description, some new, some old, some modern and some antiquated; pumpkin balls, minnie-balls and anything less than a cannon-ball, infested the mountains in this neighborhood three full days last week, the limit of the open season for the killing of deer.

The first day brought the report that Ralph Pritts, of Meadow Mountain, had shot a fine five-prong buck. The second day, towards evening, John Beachy drove into this village with two fine bucks piled upon the rumble-seat of his car and in his train came a half score of hilarious hunters. One of the animals had been killed by Herbert Tasker, of near Deer Park, and the other was accredited to Randall Beachy of this village.

The one deer had been first shot by L. Green, watchman in the Meadow Mountain observation tower. Mr. Green was in the tower when he saw the deer passing near the tower and having a shot gun loaded with pumpkin balls by his side, he opened fire, hitting the animal twice in the back, but the deer ran off and after going a short distance encountered a group of hunters, all of whom opened fire. Seventeen shots were fired at it in rapid succession, and when at last it was brought down it was found that five shots had taken effect, but no one was able to determine beyond doubt who fired the fatal shot. The animal was brought to the Oliver Beachy residence near Bittinger and the carcass divided among the members of the hunting party.

Later the same day it was reported that Francis Bittinger, of the east side of Meadow Mountain, had succeeded in bringing down another buck later in the evening. The third day was without reward and the hunters returned home and laid away their artillery until the next open season rolls around.

Mrs. Jonas Bittinger of this village, celebrated her seventy-third anniversary last Sunday when she was hostess and entertained a number of relatives during the day.

Mrs. Charles Wiley and daughter Fanny returned from Baltimore last Thursday evening, having left the second daughter, Olis, in that city for treatment at one of the city hospitals.

Charles J. Seehler and family, of St. Paul, Pa., spent Sunday with relatives in this village.

Constable J. L. Ross, of Jennings, was a pleasant caller in this village one day last week.

Miss Phyllis Morgart, of Jennings, was in Bittinger last Sunday morning for a few minutes.

STATE HEALTH LABS OF MARYLAND IMPORTANT

Recent Reports Show 10,757 Examinations Were Made in Month

"Few people realize that through the central and branch bacteriological laboratories of the State Department of Health, we have a network of diagnostic laboratories that are at the service of every physician in the counties, are readily accessible to every part of the State and are in operation day and night and every day in the year," Dr. R. H. Riley, director of the Department said recently, in outlining the activities of the Bureau of Bacteriology.

"Some idea of the character and volume of the work that is done by the laboratories can be gathered," he continued, "by glancing at some of the recent reports. For instance, 10,757 examinations were made in October of the current year in comparison with 9,784 in October of last year, an increase of nearly a thousand tests for this one month alone. The total number of examinations made in the bacteriological laboratories last year was 82,909, one-fifth of which—16,784—were concerned with water, milk or other foods. The remaining 66,161 tests were made to aid in the diagnosis of communicable or other diseases.

"During the last two months, the laboratories have devoted a great deal of time to diphtheria. More than 2,000 tests have been made of cultures from the throats of persons—many of them young children—showing symptoms of the disease, or who have been in contact with it, or who are believed to be carriers of it. Typhoid fever, undulent fever, tularemia or rabbit fever, typhus, dysintery, tuberculosis and the venereal diseases were included in the other communicable diseases for which specimens of blood, of sputum, or other specimens were examined and reported upon last month.

"Physicians who seek laboratory aid in the diagnosis of communicable diseases send or take the material for examination to the central laboratory or the nearest branch laboratory. As soon as the examination is completed the physician is notified by telephone or by mail, of the findings. A copy of the report is sent at the same time to the local health officer."

There are about 850 registered physicians in the counties, Dr. Riley said, and a large proportion of them avail themselves of the laboratory service. Containers for specimens, with instructions for their use, are furnished to physicians, free of charge, by the State Department of Health. They are obtainable either from the central laboratory or the headquarters of the Department in Baltimore City; from the county health officers; the branch laboratories and the supply stations scattered throughout the counties. The stations are usually in centrally located pharmacies and physicians interested can get the address of the nearest station from the county health officer. The branch laboratories are at Hurlock on the Eastern Shore, and at Cumberland, Hagerstown, Frederick and Rockville on the Western Shore.

MORE WORK FOR JOBLESS

People as a general rule, especially the man-power of the county and nation, want to help themselves whenever possiblc. All they ask is that they be given a job and allowed to work for what they get.

The "hunger marchers," who, though hungry and cold, were able to raise $1,900 to pay the truck drivers; who, though hungry and cold, turned up their noses at food and shelter offered them in the different cities through which they passed; who would not allow themselves to be segregated at night, although there were women and Negroes among them, are greatly in the minority, and are nothing more nor less than Communists.

They are the ones who would refuse a job, even if it were offered to them, and there are a few such in Garrett county, but only a small few.

Most of the unemployed want work and the interest that the employed of the county are showing is culminating in a mceting next Wednesday evening when a discussion will be held on finding work for the men and women of the county who want it.

Charles Ream, chairman of the Central Relief Committee, states: "It is a dangerous practice to help people without giving them an opportunity to help themselves," and the attempt to solve this problem will be made next week.

Relief work made up of donations of money, food and clothing is a wonderful thing and worthy of support, but relief work made up of finding jobs for those who want to earn their way, is far more worthy of support.

DIED.

IRA LANTZ

Ira Lantz died at his home near Brookside, W. Va., December 3, aged 26 years and 4 months. Death was due to pneumonia. He was ill ten days. Rev. Daniel Spade, of Eglon, W. Va., conducted funeral services at Carmel church, near Aurora, W. Va., on Saturday, December 5, with interment in the church cemetery.

He was the only son of Charles W. and Cora Shaffer Lantz, who survive him with three sisters, Mrs. Elmer Shaffer, Crellin; Misses Nada and Myrtle Lantz, at home. Those attending the funeral from Akron, O., were his grandmother, Mrs. Hannah Shaffer; his aunt, Mrs. Stella Campbelle, and her two sons, Onie and James.

JOHN EDWARD BERNARD

John Edward Bernard died very suddenly at the home of Wade Bernard, on Meadow Mountain, with whom he made his home, on December 1, 1931, aged 85 years, 2 months and 8 days. He is survived by one son, one daughter, eight grandchildren and thirteen great-grandchildren. The funeral services were conducted on Thursday morning, December 3, at the North Glade church, Rev. C. W. Fraker officiating, with interment in the Fitzwater cemetery.

LUTHERANS' ANNIVERSARY SERVICES ARE CONCLUDED

Celebration of Building of Present Church in 1906 Is Marked By Special Meetings

CHURCH HISTORY TRACED

The concluding services in the 25th anniversary celebration of the building of the present St. Mark's Lutheran church in Oakland were held on Sunday morning and Sunday evening, the morning hour being given over to historical accounts and the reading of congratulatory letters from former pastors, and at the evening service Rev. C. A. Shilke delivered an address, his subject being "A look back, but a greater look ahead."

Mr. Benj. H. Sincell, one of the members of the church for the past fifty years, traced the history of the congregation from the time of the organization of the first Sunday school on April 1, 1829, which was a union Sunday school, formed by Isaac McCarty, a Methodist; Stephen Merrill, a Dunkard, and George Loar, a Lutheran, and which was conducted in a log house located on the Loar farm now owned and occupied by Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Bittinger, just south of Oakland.

The first Lutheran church in Oakland was erected at the corner of Fifth and Green streets in 1857. It was a frame structure and served as the church until 1893, when a new brick veneer church was erected at the corner of Third and Alder streets occupying the site upon which is now the McIntire building. Fire on January 5, 1905, just five days after the last dollar of indebtedness had been paid on the structure, destroyed it. The fire originated in the Pritchard building, adjoining, which was also destroyed.

For a year following Lutheran services were conducted in the Presbyterian church. The cornerstone of the present Lutheran church was laid on June 24, 1906, by Rev. Edmund Manges, assisted by the Rev. J. B. Workman, then pastor of St. Paul's M. E. church in Oakland, and the building was dedicated on December 20, 1906.

After the conclusion of the historical sketch by Mr. Sincell a show of hands revealed that there were eight members in the congregation who had been members of the church when the original structure was being occupied. These were Mrs. T. C. Hinebaugh, Misses Bertie Cleveland, Elizabeth Leary, Fannie Johnson, Mr. M. R. Hamill, Mr. T. C. Hinebaugh, Mr. H. C. Sincell and B. H. Sincell.

Nineteen were present who had been members when the second church was being occupied.

Mr. John Ault, who was the architect and builder of the church which was destroyed by fire, gave a few reminiscences, and greetings from a number of former pastors were read by George H. Hanst, secretary of the Church Council.

At the evening service the anthem, "God so loved the world," from Stainer's Crucifixion, which was directed by Dr. John G. Robinson at the dedication of the church twenty-five years ago, was again led by him.

Services were also held throughout the preceding week beginning on Tuesday evening, December 1, with Brotherhood night, when Rev. Roy Hashinger, Morgantown, was the speaker. Wednesday night was in charge of the young people with Rev. Frank Herzel, Westernport, as the speaker.

Rev. W. P. Cline, D.D., Fairmont, W. Va., was the speaker for Thursday evening, which was Woman's Night, and Rev. Walter B. Brock, of the local Presbyterian church, gave the address on Friday night, which was Community Night.

India Lace and Chinese Needle-Work Sale

Representing the mission work in India and in China, Mrs. Benj. H. Sincell has for sale at her residence in Oakland, doilies, centerpieces, lace by the yard and other attractive pieces, while at the home of Mrs. S. B. Falkenstine, Mountain Lake Park, may be purchased Chinese linen table runners, pillow slips, etc., all suitable for Christmas gifts. The entire proceeds of the sales of these materials go to the mission funds of the two countries represented.—42-3t.

K. OF P.'S ELECT S. BOND CHANCELLOR COMMANDER

Other Officers Named at Regular Meeting Friday Evening

Stanley Bond was elected Chancellor Commander of Garrett Lodge, No. 113, Knights of Pythias, for the ensuing term, at an election conducted by members of the organization Friday evening. Other officers chosen were as follows:

Stanley Stahl, vice chancellor; L. R. Mason, prelate; Playford Ramsey, master at arms; D. W. Walter, master of finance; Walter Hardesty, keeper of records and seal; Gladstone Morris, inner guard; C. F. White, outer guard; A. G. Gortner, master of exchequer; George Fulk, master of work; E. G. Naylor, trustee.

George Fulk and Olin Hardesty were chosen as representatives to the Grand Lodge which meets in Baltimore, with D. W. Walter and S. O. Wiley, as alternates.

Tomorrow evening members of the lodges from Terra Alta and Friendsville will be guests of the local lodge. Entertainment for the visitors will inclued a concert by the Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band of Oakland. There will be refreshments and all the members are urged to be present.

SCOOP'S COLUMN

By Scoop Himself

Only two deer stories have come to the ears of Scoop this week—one concerning Bill Glotfelty, who hunts and fishes and at odd moments conducts the Quality Lunch Room on Second street, and the other about Charlie A. Ashby, emperor of Deer Park town.

Bill, the story goes, chose to climb a tree early in the morning in order to lie in wait at a vantage point for his prey. The wind was blowing and at this season of the year all know its breath was none too warm. After swaying among the branches for only a few minutes he spied a doe, and this whetted his appetite for the sight of a buck, which never came. Meanwhile the wind kept blowing until late in the afternoon, when Bill discovered that if a whole herd of bucks came along he wouldn't be able to pull the trigger. He managed to fall out of the tree, however, but it seemed ages before a fire was started, marking the beginning of the "big thaw."

Over near Deer Park, Charlie Ashby was named as lookout man while four scouts, Bruce Lohr, Carl Lohr, Tom Lohr and Abe King, went on a round-up of deer meat. They frightened one to within sixty yards of the lookout, who, the scouts claim, stood calmly by as the deer scampered down a ravine and thus preserved its freedom, not to mention is life.

"If it hadn't been for his gray hairs, I'd have shot him," Charlie alibied. "One must have respect for old age and a gray head, even in these modern days."

It's getting the tough breaks, according to Tom Lohr, when after sitting on a stump the large part of the day and going away disgusted, Harry Sollars comes along, sits on the same stump and bags a large buck within half an hour.

Hunters around Oakland report that some dogs were heard chasing deer. Besides being an offense against the law, it is poor sportsmanship, they say. And they ought to know.

It is safe to say, however, that the following picture, snapped by Col. Bell, will cover the majority of the cases where there were alibis, the Ananias Club of Mountain Lake Park included.

Omitting a figure in any amount makes quite a difference as may be seen in the November 26 issue of The Republican where it stated that the Brann house at Loch Lynn, which burned, was insured for $4,00, instead of for $4,000. This might make a difference to the Branns, but nought was lost by us.

Oh, Consistency

It drives me to tears to say anything about the paper across the way, but to secure a lovely portair enlargement for $1.35, along with a subscription to their paper for $1.50, makes their said paper worth just 15 cents per year, according to their issue last Thursday.

What I term being consistent is to have an editorial urging the public to buy at home and then to offer a photo enlargement from an out-of-town concert.

But then, maybe I shouldn't mention a little thing like that.

The pig roast at the Manhattan Tuesday night by the Legionaires has been held, and further than that we can't say for sure. A check-up at the drug stores showed that bromo-seltzer sales were on the increase Wednesday morning. But this may be merely a coincidence.

* * *

Send these house-to-house beggars to the relief committee and don't let them pull the wool over your eyes any longer. The majority of the house-to house workers are afraid to go to the proper sources because their cases are not worthy ones. Give to those who are worthy through the relief committee.

* * *

Last minute suggestions on the Skating pond in the Washington Spring park, are that Rev. Trimble take it up to Shirer's or Naylor's and have a tin bottom put in it, so it will hold water. Other suggestions may be sent to this office, and a lot of real serious suggestions would be appreciated.

MT. LAKE PARK

Virginia Ann Martin

Sad, indeed, was the death of little Virginia Ann Martin, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Martin, last week. Apparently in normal health—laughing, playing—suddenly the Grim Reaper gathered the tender bud into his arms, and as silently as the falling of an autumn leaf bore her to that "Beautiful Isle of Nowhere", whence her spirit came. Virginia Ann was born June 8, 1928. Died December 3, 1931. Her mother, father and two sisters, Bettie and Barbara, survive to mourn their loss.

The funeral services were held from the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Martin, in Loch Lynn, Saturday afternoon at two o'clock. Rev. I. S. Middaugh and Rev. S. A. Jessee officiated. The pallbearers were composed of the mother's Sunday school class and consisted of Kermit Jessee, Gilbert Moomaw, Delbert Bittinger and Dick Hardesty. The flower girls were from Bettie's class.

Garrett Camp No. 44, W. O. W., held its annual election of officers last Tuesday night, which resulted as follows:

C. C., L. W. Moomaw; adv. lieut., I. E. Turney; banker, W. E. Landon, Jr.; clerk, J. W. Ream; watchman, O. W. Bittinger; escort, Earl Sterling; sentry, Cecil Sisk; auditor, Clyde Calhoun; dist. deputy, Darwin Martin.

Plans were also made for an entertainment and banquet for members of the order and their families, to be held sometime during the coming holidays, the exact date for which was not fixed.

While we appreciate the fact that the town council must look well to the finances of the village and cut the cloth according, at the same time there is one especially dark road which we hope they will investigate. We mean the road leading from the bowling alley past Mr. and Mrs. Camden's residence to the lake. Taking off the light at the junction of the roads at the corner of the hotel property makes the road dangerous and hard to negotiate after night. Perhaps a light in a neighborhood not now used, might be taken off and substituted without additional cost. We are sure the lighting committee has the best interest of the Park at heart. The better the winter conditions can be made, the more likely it is that cottagers will stay late in the season.

Joe Callis, Charles P. Martin, R. E. Bittinger and B. L. Martin, motored to Westernport where they attended a rally of the Grand Lodge, I. O. O. F., Wednesday evening. The Iniatory and First Degrees were conferred on a class.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ream are visiting their daughter, Mrs. P. F. Gortner, at Mazon, Ill. Their visit will be extended until after Christmas.

There will be preaching in the U. B. church next Sunday evening at 7:30 by the pastor, Rev. S. A. Jessee.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ford have moved from Crellin to Loch Lynn. They are occupying the Elsie cottage on Roanoke Avenue.

Sam Teets, well known in the Park, who lives on the Nicola estate at Deep Creek Lake, bagged a fine 7-pronged buck weighing 145 pounds. Some friends here enjoyed fine venison steaks.

Mr. J. E. Kesner, employed at Cumberland, spent the week-end with his family in Loch Lynn.

Mr. C. B. Spiker has moved into the Hutchinson house on the east side of Loch Lynn.

The Ladies Bible class of the U. B. church held their monthly class meeting in the Aid Hall Wednesday evening. The regular business session was combined with a short program. Refreshments were served by Mrs. C. E. Hutchinson and Mrs. J. E. Callis.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. Fleming have closed their cottage and returned to their home in Fairmont.

Miss Rachel Weems has gone to Baltimore for the winter months.

The town council will have justified its existance, if any justification is necessary, if it can work out the proposed plan of installing fire plugs at various points in the Park. The ever threatening danger of fire will be lessened, which will be reflected in a probable reduction of insurance rates. Houses destroyed by fire in the Park are seldom, if ever, rebuilt. This lessens the tax revenue to that extent.

Mr. Frank E. Baker is a business visitor in the Park.

ACCIDENT

Young People's Meeting

The young people of Zion Lutheran church met Friday night in the social room of the church. Refreshments were served by Misses Margaret and Rosalie Fratz. Quite a number were present.

School Notes

During the month of November the attendance in both the high and grammar schools has been higher than at any time in the past two years. November attendance in the high school reached an average of 94.56 and in the grammar school the average was above 96.

The teachers of the elementary schools of Accident, Friendsville and Grantsville held a meeting in Accident on Wednesday afternoon for tabulation and tests in the grades. Miss Bannatyne had charge of the meeting and was assisted by Miss Hamill, another of the supervisors.

The students of the high school had been divided into two groups, the blues and the reds, for the purpose of collecting school dues. It was decided that the losing team should entertain the winning team at the close of the contest and the reds were the winners. They were entertained by the blues at a "Kid's party" last Thursday night. Games were played and a parade of the "kids" was held. Refreshments were served.

An operetta, "Christmas with the Old Woman who Lived in a Shoe," will be presented by the students of the grammar school on the evening of December 22.

Missionary Society Meeting

Mrs. Smith Friend was hostess at the missionary society meeting of St. Paul's Lutheran church last Thursday evening. Mrs. E. H. Ault led the meeting. At the close Mrs. Rudolph Beckman (formerly Miss Margaret Friend) was tendered a miscellaneous shower and received a number of useful gifts. There were 24 members and guests present. Refreshments were served.

CRELLIN YOUTH IS GIVEN FOUR YEARS FOR ASSAULT

Coy Dalton Pleads Guilty To Attacking William Bell, Aged 50

Coy Dalton, of near Crellin, indicted at the December Term of Court at Kingwood, West Va., on a charge of assaulting William Bell, 50, a miner, also of near Crellin, this county, on the morning of September 15, was brought up in the Preston County court at Kingwood on Thursday.

Before the jury was drawn to serve in the case James T. Dailey, attorney for Dalton, asked permission to change a former plea of "not guilty" to that of "guilty," and Judge A. G. Hughes immediately pronounced a sentence of four years in the State penitentiary at Moundsville, West Virginia.

Bell and Dalton were employed at the Stanley Coal Company's mine, which is just across the State line in Preston county. The men had had some differences, according to officers who investigated the case, and Dalton is said to have told some of the neighbors he would "get him" (Bell) later.

So, according to the officers, when Bell started to his work on the morning of September 15 Dalton came up behind him and struck him on the head with a club about two feet in length. Bell was rendered unconscious as a result of the blow and for more than a month it was thought that he would not recover.

Immediately following the attack on Bell by Dalton officials of the mining company notified the State authorities at Kingwood who went to the mine and waited outside the workings for Dalton to come outside when they placed him under arrest and took him to Kingwood.

LEWIS FAZENBAKER FLEES PRISON FARM; RECAPTURED

Taken Into Custody While at Brunswick Waiting For Train

Officers at the state prison farm at Roxbury, Washington county, Sunday told of the escape from the farm on Saturday morning of Lewis Fazenbaker, 27, and of his capture nine hours later by civilians at Weaverton, a junction point on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad.

Fazenbaker, who was sent to the state penitentiary from Garrett county for four years, on a charge of larceny and receiving stolen goods, had been at the prison farm for a month.

Saturday morning, he was assigned to a plow detail of four men, working under the supervision of an unarmed instructor. The prisoner drove his horses under the brow of a hill, tied them to a tree and fled across a field, disappearing off the reservation.

Warden Hal T. Kearns, who at one time was chaplain of the state penitentiary sent out an alarm, calling together groups of citizens from Boonsboro and other communities. A description of the escaped man, who was wearing overalls, was given out.

Fazenbaker was found near the tracks of the railroad and the persons who took him declared he was seeking a freight train out of the county. He was returned to Hagerstown by the men and placed in jail.

Fazenbaker was the second man to escape from the prison so far. The other dashed away several weeks ago, during an evening fire in the house where he was quartered and has never been captured.

(2) MILITARY LOT NO. 2986, the coal under which was reserved in a deed from John P. Hubbard and wife to George H. Uphold, dated November 2, 1891, and recorded in Liber No. 19, folio 140, Garrett County Land Records. The coal hereby intended to be sold is said to contain one hundred acres, more or less, and it will be sold to satisfy and pay the State and County taxes due and in arrears thereon for the years 1928, 1929, and 1930, as assessed on the Assessment Books of Garrett County in the name of John P. Hubbard.

No. 12.—All those pieces or parcels of land, situated in Election District No. 10, Garrett County, Maryland, described as (1) 12,640 square feet of land in the town of Deer Park; and (2) a lot on Church Street, in said town of Deer Park, containing two-fifths of an acre, more or less; these being the first and third parcels of land conveyed by Frank A. Smouse, Trustee, to Franklin H. Clary, by deed dated April 6, 1922, and recorded in Liber No. 82, folio 478, Land Records of Garrett County. One or both of said pieces of land will be sold to satisfy and pay the State and County taxes due and in arrears thereon for the years 1929 and 1930, as assessed on the Asssessment Books of Garrett County in the name of Franklin H. Clary.

No. 13.—All those pieces or parcels of land situate, lying and being in Election District No. 8, Garrett County, the first consisting of about 62 acres, more or less, and being the same land which was conveyed to Benjamin W. Harvey by John O. Harvey and wife by deed dated March 16, 1905, and recorded in Liber No. 49, folio 203, Land Records of Garrett County; and the second being a part of the tract of land called "BRINLEY," containing 160 acres, more or less, and being the same land which was conveyed to the said Benjamin W. Harvey by William T. Carson et al., by deed dated August 18, 1910, and recorded in Liber No. 61, folio 185, Garrett County Land Records, excepting and reserving from this last described piece of land all the minerals thereunder. One or both of said tracts of land will be sold to satisfy and pay the State and County taxes due and in arrears thereon for the years 1928, 1929, and 1930, as assessed on the Assessment Books of Garrett County in the name of B. ORDER OF PUBLICATION

Christine Ackerman vs. Charles W. Ackerman.

No. 3044 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a divorce a vinculo matrimonii by the plaintiff from the defendant.

The bill states:

1. That on April 19, 1923, she was married to a certain Charles W. Ackerman, of Fayette county, Pennsylvania, with whom she lived as his wife until April 23, 1925, and again from April, 1928, to July 4, 1928, during which time they resided at the home of your oratrix in Garrett county, Maryland.

2. That, though the conduct of your oratrix towards her husband, the said Charles W. Ackerman, has always been kind, affectionate and above reproach, the said Charles W. Ackerman has, without any just cause or reason, abandoned and deserted her, and has declared his intention to live with her no longer, and such abandonment has continued uninterruptedly for at least three years and is deliberate and final, and the separation of the parties beyond any reasonable expectation of reconciliation.

3. That on the 3rd day of December, 1929, a decree of divorce a mensa et thoro was granted to your oratrix by this Honorable Court as against the said Charles W. Ackerman, the same being No. 2904 Equity in this Court, since which time your oratrix has neither seen nor heard directly from the said defendant.

4. That your oratrix and the said defendant, Charles W. Ackerman, have had no children born to them from said marriage.

5. That your oratrix resides in the State of Maryland and the defendant is a non-resident of the State of Maryland, whose present place of residence is unknown to your oratrix, but whose last known address was Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

The bill then prays for a divorce a vinculo matrimonii of the plaintiff from the defendant, for general relief and for an order of publication.

IT IS THEREUPON, This 11th day of November, 1931, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, in Equity, that the plaintiff by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Garrett County, Maryland, once in each of four successive weeks before the 11th day of December, 1931, giving notice to the said absent defendant of the object and substance of this bill, warning him to appear in this Court, in person or by solicitor, on or before the 28th day of December, 1931, to show cause, if any he has, why a decree should not be passed as prayed. SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Member of Faculty, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

Lesson for December 13

JOHN'S VISION ON PATMOS

GOLDEN TEXT—And when I saw him, I fell at his feet as dead. And he laid his right hand upon me, saying unto me, Fear not; I am the first and the last: I am he that liveth, and was dead; and, behold, I am alivs for evermore, Amen; and have the keys of hell and of death.

LESSON TEXT—Revelation 1:1-20.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The Heavenly Home.

JUNIOR TOPIC—John's Vision of Heaven.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—John Sees the Ever-living Christ.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Glorified Saviour.

We should be glad that the lesson committee has given us another lesson from the Book of Revelation, which contains Christ's last message to man.

I. The Preface (1:1-3).

1. The title of the book (v. 1). The Revelation (unveiling) of Jesus Christ. The revelation of Jesus Christ refers to his personal appearing in glory to judge the world and to establish his kingdom. The word "apocalypse," translated "revelation," signifies according to New Testament usage the unveiling of a person (II Thess. 1:6-10; I Pet. 1:7). The theme of the book is Christ's second coming, his personal, visible appearance in glory (vv. 1, 7, 10).

2. To whom made known (vv. 1, 2). To his servant John—"To show unto his servants things which must shortly come to pass."

3. A benediction to those who read, hear, and keep the sayings of the book (v. 3). It must be possible to understand these sayings, or the promise is meaningless.

II. The Salutation (vv. 4-8).

1. To whom (v. 4). The seven churches then existing in Asia Minor. Seven, the number of completeness, suggests a symbolism of the Church throughout her course.

2. From whom (v. 4).

a. From him which was, and is, and is to come.

b. From the seven spirits which are before the throne—the Holy Spirit in his seven-fold plenitude as set forth in Isaiah 11:2, also in the Gospel of John.

c. From Jesus Christ (vv. 5-7). While presenting Christ as the gracious Redeemer, John's prophetic eye caught the vision of the Coming One in glory, exclaiming, "Behold he cometh" (v. 7), the Alpha and Omega (v. 8).

III. The Vision of Glory (vv. 9-18).

1. The seven golden lamp stands (v. 12). These candlesticks are the churches (v. 20), thus presented because they are the light holders in this world's darkness.

2. The Son of man in the midst of the candlesticks (vv. 13-18). Christ in the midst of the churches indicates that they give forth light only when Christ is the central figure.

a. "Clothed with a garment down to the foot" (v. 13). This is a royal as well as a priestly robe (Isa. 22:21), and signifies his right to judge and to rule, as well as to offer sacrifice.

b. His head and hair white as wool (v. 14, cf. Dan. 7:19, 20). This has a twofold significance—purity and eternity.

c. Eyes as a flame of fire (v. 14). This suggests his infallible knowledge.

d. Feet like burnished brass (v. 15). This indicates that he comes as Judge and King, with irresistible power.

e. His voice as the sound of many waters (v. 15). His voice of judgment will be outside of man's control. All excuses will be swept aside by his resistless word.

f. Seven stars in his right hand (v. 16). According to verse twenty, stars mean the messengers of the churches, perhaps pastors or representatives sent forth to comfort John in his lonely exile. The minister lies in the right hand of Jesus Christ, hears his message, and speaks it out.

g. Out of his mouth was a sharp two-edged sword (v. 16). Observe that this is a mouth sword. "The word that I have spoken, the same shall judge him" (John 12:48). "The word of God is sharper than any two-edged sword" (Heb. 4:12). The two edges indicate its double action, condemning the evil and approving the good and excellent.

h. His countenance was as the sun shining in his strength (v. 16). The effect of sunshine is healthful and joyous to some things, while it is death dealing to others. The sunshine of God's love cheers some while it hardens others. The manifestation of the glorified king will be hailed with delight by those who love him, and will create dismay in those who do not love him.

LETTERS TO SANTA CLAUS.

Oakland, December 6, 1931.

Dear Santa:—I am a little girl 8 years old. I have been a very good little girl this year. I would like for you to bring me a table and chair set, a doll which can walk and talk, a baby crib, a pair of roller skates and a set of points. And, dear Santa, I would also like to have a set of dishes and silverware. So please don't forget me and my sisters and brothers; also bring plenty of candy, nuts and oranges. Your little friend,

MARGARET ADAMS.

Oakland, December 6, 1931.

Dearest Santa:—I am your little friend, five years old, and I have been a very good little boy this whole month thinking of you. Will you please bring me a toy dump truck, a scooter, sled and a new suit. Do you think that is too much for a good little boy, Santa? Please do not forget the other poor little boys and girls who will not have a very nice Christmas, even if you do take them something very nice. Oh, yes; Santa, I would also like a toy train and don't forget candy, nuts, oranges and other good things. I'll be waiting for you, Santa, with a nice, sweet kiss.

Always your little boy,

JIMMIE TUNEY ADAMS.

THROAT SORE? DON'T GARGLE

It is no longer necessary to gargle and choke and take chances with patent medicines for sore throat. You can now get quicker and better relief with Thoxine, a prescription exclusively for throat troubles. Its special action relieves the throat soreness with the very first swallow. Its internal action removes the cause which otherwise might develop into a serious illness.

Most coughs, especially night coughs, are caused by an irritated throat. Thoxine will stop this kind of cough at once. Safe—children like it. Remember Thoxine will relieve sore throat or coughs within 15 minutes or your money back. 35c, 60c, $1.00 bottles. Sold by Gonder's Drug Store, Oakland, and all other good drug stores.—Advertisement 43, 49.

Whitetail Of The Garrett County Variety

RICHARD S. BROWNING DICK SINES
—Courtesy Baltimore Sunday Sun

By PETER C. CHAMBLISS,
State Editor of the Baltimore Sun

"Thar's deer in them thar mountains!" The speaker was one Dick Sines, trapper, huntsman and guide, native born and reared in the mountains of Western Maryland, to whom the dim trails of the mountainous ridges of Garrett county are as familiar as Baltimore and Charles streets are to Baltimoreans.

And Dick was right. He knows his mountains and he knows his deer, and the fleet-footed runners of the forests that have been brought out of the Garrett county fastnesses during the short but hectic deer season of three days proved it beyond dispute.

And the best proof in the world that "thar's deer in them thar mountain" are those that we helped to bring out, saw, heard were brought out, saw brought out and helped drag out, during Garrett county's three-day open season.

The complete list of deer casualties in Garrett have not been listed as yet, but here are some of the successful hunters who bagged legal bucks: Richard S. Browning, District Game Warden of Garrett county, and Dick Sines; Harry Bowser, Somerfield, Pa.; J. W. Norris, Frostburg; W. W. Wittig, Frostburg; R. A. Lewis, Oakland; D. H. Thomas, Friendsville; Lawrence VanSickle, Friendsville; Rance Skidmore, Frostburg; Joseph Bowser, Salisbury, Pa.; Hobart Lough, Flintstone; Walter Wisseman, Grantsville, and J. Alvin Friend, Sang Run.

Garrett's three-day deer season intrigued us for a try at a real native Maryland deer, and so it was with William H. Emory, Jr., who felt the lure of the mountains, we set out for Oakland, to be the guests of Richard S. Browning, district deputy game warden, and more royal host we never expect to see.

Dick Browning, game protector, former prospector, hunter of big game in the great Northwest territory and one-time police officer of Baltimore, comes by his love of the chase and the woods naturally. He is the grandson of one of the State's most noted Nimrods—Meshack Browning—whose life was spent in hunting deer, bear, wildcats and other denizens of the forest in the very hills in which Dick hunted. Piney Creek and Muddy Branch and the Yough river, which we gazed upon for the first time, were lifetime landmarks to him.

Meshack Browning's hunting experiences were compiled into a volume "Forty-four Years of the Life of a Hunter," which is today a classic for those who go into the hills of Garrett for their game.

In due course we arrived at Oakland on Monday afternoon and, after one of these dinners at the home of one of Dick Browning's cousins which will long remain a pleasant memory, a glimpse at hide of the "daddy bear" of 'em all that was killed last winter in the same ridges over which we expected to hunt, we set out for the home of Samuel J. Thomas, deputy game warden, at Friendsville, 20 miles or more outside of Oakland and a place that turned out to be everything that the name implies. Though we arrived at Friendsville long after Mr. Thomas had gone to bed, our welcome was hearty and soon we were in bed with hopes high for buck on the opening day.

Up before daylight with a good "plaster of Mother Thomas' buckwheats and sausage sticking to our ribs," we sallied forth on the opening day long before the sun peeped over the ridges. A drive of a mile and a half up the mountain side and we parked the cars, and the first streak of day found us in the woods. Bill Emory was parked on a likely "stand" about two miles back in the mountains overlooking a deer crossing, while Dick Browning and I started scouting through the ridges hoping to meet a buck with a regular spread of antlers.

But a five-hour trek netted us nothing but plenty of "signs" of deer and the whine of a bullet which whistled somewhere near us. Back to Bill Emory we found he had worn quite a path himself trying to keep warm while waiting for a buck that didn't appear. We built a fire, warmed ourselves and then late in the afternoon started back with a lot of aching bones but no buck.

Wednesday, the second day of the season, found us again in the mountains bright and early, but this time our ranks increased by the addition of Dick Sines, deer hunter and trapper, than whom no better exists in that section of the woods. Sines, low of stature, but powerful, and on his advice Bill and I took a stand on a rocky promontory overlooking a two-way trail that led through a valley between the hills. The two Dicks—Browning and Sines—started off for another stand on an adjacent ridge, and it was but a scant hour that we heard three shots in rapid succession. Several hours later, while we were still hoping for that buck to heave into sight, Dick Browning returned with the information that the three shots—two of his and one of Sines—had cut short the existence of "just a little deer" that was harly worth carrying out.

The "little deer" proved to be a 200-pound buck, with a 30-inch spread of antlers on which there were 10 points. Two bullet holes, three inches apart and just behind the left shoulder, proved that the two Dicks were not such bad marksmen.

They had just stopped for a bit of lunch high on a rock when a shot in the mountains started the buck in their direction. Theirs finished the business.

The buck couldn't have been killed in a worse place. It was on the wrong side of Piney Run, hemmed in by mountains, four miles from where we had parked the cars, and it was then 4 P. M. The dragging of that buck through the dense underbrush, dragging it by main force up a mountain side for three-quarters of a mile, was some job. It was nightfall when we got it to the top of the ridge and there we had to leave it while we beat it for the cars. A small flashlight that grew dimmer and dimmer was all that stood between us and night in the mountains and the temperature was not exactly summerlike..

For six hours we stumbled through the dim trails, got lost in a rocky swamp, but finally we made it.

Our last day was no more productive than the others, but back in Garrett we're going next year to get that 10-point buck we missed this season.

REPORT OF GAME WARDEN SHOWS 25 DEER KILLED

Law Requires Report Must Be Made to Officer Within 24 Hours

A complete list of those killing deer in Garrett county during the open season, December 1 to 3, inclusive, has been announced by R. S. Browning, game warden, and shows that a total of twenty-five were successful in bringing down a buck.

Some of those reported last week as having killed a deer turned out to be nothing more than reports, according to Mr. Browning, as the State Game Warden must be notified of the killing of an animal within twenty-four hours.

The names of those who were successful in the hunt and who reported their kill to Mr. Browning included John O'Haver, Hutton; Paul Welch, Gortner; Alvin Smith, Harry Sollars, Herbert Tasker, Bradford Harvey and Frank DeWitt, Deer Park; Ralph Pritts and Francis Bittinger, Swanton; Samuel Teets and Jacob Dixon, McHenry; Randall Beachy, Bittinger; J. W. Norris and W. W. Wittig, Frostburg; J. Alvin Friend, Sang Run; Lawrence Uphold and David Thomas, Friendsville; William Harvey, Kitzmiller; Richard Lewis, Richard S. Browning and Richard Sines, Earl B. Thayer, Webster Ravenscroft, J. Frank Browning, Artemus Sines and Marshall Friend, all of Oakland.

This number is approximately the same as the total deer killed last year, according to Mr. Browning. A check-up shows that they are not being killed faster than they multiply, although it was asserted that the deer in Garrett county would be exterminated if the season was opened for many days in succession each year.

G. J. Altstetter was elected president of St. Mark's Brotherhood at the regular meeting on Tuesday evening. Other officers included Wellington Yutzy, vice-president; George Hanst, secretary; and Alva Gortner, treasurer.

Questions concerning Christmas were distributed and discussed by those present. President T. C. Bittinger presided. Edward P. Kahl, S. M. Butt, and Prof. E. S. Smith will have charge of the next meeting on January 18.

Slight Fire Extinguished

Fire of undetermined origin, in the cleaning room adjoining the Nu Way Laundry, Tuesday afternoon about 2:30 o'clock, was quickly extinguished before any damage was done.

The Oakland Volunteer firemen were called but their assistance was not needed. W. A. Johnson, proprietor, was at a loss to determine the cause unless it could have been an explosion due to static. No one was in the room, and no fire was nearby.

"MADE WORK" DISCUSSED BY RELIEF ORGANIZATION

Meeting Held Last Night at High School; Nothing To Be Given Away Without Work

MUST FIND JOBS TO DO

That no food or clothing would be given away by the Central or District committees without requiring a payment of some kind in return, was unanimously decided at a meeting of the Central Committee and invited guests held last night in the high school annex. This was decided so that the self-reliance and self- respect of the people helped could be maintained, and not weaken the fibre of the citizenship of the county.

The payment of those needing relief was not necessarily to be in money, but in a certain amount of work done in order to meet their obligation.

"In this way," Miss Katharine Kirwan, head of relief work, stated "Those willing to work will be glad of the chance to earn their donations, while the chronic charity seekers will have to get busy and help themselves."

The problem of finding work for those in dire need was emphasized at the meeting, and in order that the number of unemployed might be ascertained, it was asked that the mayors of incorporated towns, and the heads of district committees take a census showing the total out of work, what kind of work wanted, how many children in the family, or how many dependents, etc.

The pay for "made work" was to be decided by each local committee, depending on the nature of it, and the amount coming to the worker was to be given out in food and clothing.

It was advised that any organization having Christmas baskets with no particular families in view, turn them over to the Central Committee.

In the absence of Charles Ream, chairman, Walter Dawson acted in this capacity. Reports of families helped were made by district chairmen from Grantsville, Friendsville, Kitzmiller, Oakland, Mt. Lake Park, Crellin, and written reports were received from other chairmen.

The meeting was held at 6:30 and dinner was served by the home economics department of the high school under the supervision of Misses Eva Falkenstein and Lucy Trickett. About 35 were present.

Garrett County Students Active at Frostburg Normal

Two students from Garrett county completed their work at the State Normal School at Frostburg and received their diplomas on December 4, the graduates being Miss Madeline Tranum, of Kitzmiller, and Miss Madeline Hilleary, of Gorman.

Mary Virginia Gilbert, who graduated from Oakland High School in 1930, has been chosen manager of a newly organized class in specialty dancing.

As part of the program of physical education, the freshmen students engage in organized recreation three hours a week. The fall sport was soccer, and three teams were selected at the close of the season. Mary Jane Porter, of Oakland; Esther Opel and Jennie Durst, of Grantsville, and Helen Statler, of Friendsville, were selected for the first team.

Basketball practice has started, and the following students are trying out for the Varsity team: Helen Statler, Mary Jane Porter and Zola Folk. Miss Folk, who graduated from Grantsville High School in 1930, has been elected basketball manager.

Stolen Auto Recovered

State police recovered a Chevrolet coupe belonging to Carl Swires, Mt. Lake Park, that had been stolen in Frostburg Saturday evening. The machine was found abandoned in an alley in the rear of Race's Hotel. No one was arrested in connection with the alleged theft.

BOOKLET ON SUPERVISORY WORK HERE IS PUBLISHED

State Educators Print Booklet Written by Miss Skidmore

A 70-page booklet showing a cross section of supervisory work in Garrett county, has just been published by the State Department of Education and is being distributed this week to every teacher in the county, according to F. E. Rathbun, County Superintendent.

The booklet is a report of the activities engaged in for one month, March 15, 1931, to April 15, 1931, in the Kitzmiller elementary school unit, and was written by Miss Flossie R. Skidmore, supervising teacher.

The material was prepared in response to a request from Superintendent Rathbun that each of the supervisors of the county submit a discussion of the problems and activities which engaged her attention during the period extending from March 15 to April 15, 1931, as forming a representative cross section of the year's work. It was included as a supplement to the annual report sent to the State Department and was considered such a worthy contribution by Albert S. Cook, State Superintendent of Schools, that it was made in booklet form to be distributed. The U. S. office of Education at Washington, by request. received one hundred copies of the bulletin, which were used in the conference for supervisors of schools of the South held in Montgomery, Ala., held on December 15 and 16.

Photographs of pupils at work in the Mason, Sunnyside, Kempton and Vindex schools are included in the booklet and subjects are discussed under the following headings: Survey of teaching staff; study of probable non-promotions; activities concerned with improvement of reading; activities concerned with improvement of the social studies, art materials and experiences; the enjoyment and appreciation of poetry; miscellaneous activities.

FOREST FIRES OF 1931 COST $16,199 TO PRESENT TIME

State and Individual Counties Pay Costs of Fire Control

Forest fires in Maryland during 1931 have cost the counties and the State $16,199.69 to date for services in fire control, according to a statement just released by the State Department of Forestry. Fire fighters in most counties have been promptly paid for their services, according to the statement, although in a few countics officials have been slow in arranging settlement. Under a law which has been in operation since 1912 the County Commissioners of Maryland's 23 countics are required to settle fire fighting bills in full when approved by the State Forester, after which the counties are reimbursed by the State for one-half of the account, in this manner dividing the expense equally between the State and the counties.

The State Forester observed that the tremendous expense of fighting the severe fires of the 1930 drought period was a decided strain on the counties and on the State, resulting in slow payments by the counties and slow reimbursement by the State. Greater promptness in payment during 1931 is already having its effect in a better spirit among the fire control forces, placing the organization for forest protection on a more efficient basis. According to Mr. Besley, the annual cost of forest fire control fluctuates greatly from year to year, making it extremely difficult for the counties and the State to set up budget items which are sufficient for severe years.

Total For Red Cross Subscription Reaches $365 in County

The sum of $40, turned in by 39 people this week in the Red Cross Roll Call, brings the subscription thus far to $365, according to Mrs. E. Z. Tower, county chairman. As yet Kitzmiller, Friendsville and a few other communities have not reported, but Mrs. Tower is asking that all names be reported by next week, if possible.

This week's membership includes: James Annan, Deer Park, and Velma C. Steyer, Kempton, from the list of school teachers and school employes.

Mrs. S. D. Whipkey continues from Oakland: Julia Rowan, Mrs. Myrtle Reese, Mrs. D. E. Bolden, Mrs. Earl Shartzer, Mrs. R. T. Thayer, Rose Ricc, Catherine Schnebly, Margaret Stoffie, May Lee, Betty Louise Speicher, age 3.

Miss Christina Winterberg reports from Grantsville: Mary Martha Miller, C. A. Bender, Mrs. Harley Spoerlein, Ruth Conley, Chas. U. Edwards, George Deifenbach, J. W. Hanft, H. C. Edwards, Noah Hickey, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Gortner, Christina Winterberg, Holmes and Wallace Studio, Keller Drug Store, Wm. Winterberg, George Bach, Mrs. F. C. Diehl, Mrs. H. P. Miller, Dr. T. O. Broadwater, Viola Broadwater, J. R. Gnagey, Milton Rodamer, J. J. Bender, Ruth C. Keller, A. C. Stanton, Mrs. Lydia Wiley, Mrs. J. F. Fahey.

PRISON FARM FUGITIVE GETS NINE MORE MONTHS

Has Three-Fourths of a Year Added To His Sentence

Lewis Fazenbaker, 27, who escaped from the State penal farm at Roxbury, Washington county, one day last week, and who was recaptured at Weverton, Md., was given a nine-months sentence in the House of Correction by Justice Richard Duffy, in the Hagerstown City Court, the term to begin at the expiration of his present term in the Maryland Penitentiary.

Fazenbaker was sent to the Penitentiary from Garrett county for four years after having been found guilty of a charge of larceny and receiving stolen goods and had been at the prison farm for a month when he effected his escape. He was captured nine hours after walking away from the farm.

NOVEMBER ATTENDANCE IS WON BY LAGEER STUDENTS

Strawberry Hill Leads 2-Teacher and Shallmar Graded Schools

Lageer led the one-teacher schools, Strawberry Hill led the two-teacher schools, and Shallmar led the graded schools for the month of November, according to an attendance bulletin published by John L. Fitzwater, attendance officer. Kitzmiller was first among the high schools.

The average daily attendance in the county was 4,538, with an average perecntage of 93.8.

One-teacher schools above 97 percent included Lageer, 99.5; Peerless, Caton, Bond, Mason, Rich Hill, Beachy, McHenry, Three Fork Run, Bowser, Shook Shop, Pleasant Valley, and Frankville.

Strawberry Hill, two-teacher, had a percentage of 97, with Swanton next with 96.8, and Bittinger third with 94.9. In the graded schools Shallmar had 98.8; Accident, 97.3; Crellin, 97.2; and Kitzmiller, 95.7.

Kitzmiller High had 95.1 to lead all high schools of the county, with Accident second with 94.6; Oakland third with 94.2.

In the State report for September, which was just recently issued by the department at Baltimore, Garrett county stood sixth among the twenty-three counties with a percentage of 96.2, In elementary schools, and 17th among the high schools with 95.6.

One-teacher schools were third, two-teacher schols ninth, and graded schools fourth. This record was considered excellent by the State department officials.

Boys' Band Renders Concert At Knights of Pythias Meeting

Entertainment at the regular weekly meeting of the Knights of Pythias lodge last Friday evening was furnished by the Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band, whose members gave a concert of eight numbers.

The program was rendered under the direction of Russell H. Brown, director. Robert Hoffman, drum major, announced the numbers. The following selections were given:

March, King Cotton, John Philip Sousa; overture, Panorama, Barnhouse; serenade, with baritone solo by James Treacy; march, On the Mall, by Goldman; waltz, Moonlight on the Nile, by King; descriptive, Uncle Tom's Cabin, by Lampe; with solos by Elvin Iman and Hugh Teets; march, Washington Post, Sousa.

Rev. Walter B. Brock, of Oakland, and O. G. Sanders, of Terra Alta, made short addresses. Arthur Lawton presided.

Hurt Returning From Oakland to His Home in Kingwood

Frank B. Shields, rural mail carrier out of Kingwood, W. Va., while returning to his home from Oakland on Saturday night, narrowly escaped serious injury when his Ford coupe ran into a slag pile and into the guard fence along the State road above Caddell. Mr. Shields was going down the mountain when, at the last turn in the road above Caddell bridge his car skidded off the road. Mr. Shields was cut about his head and his left arm was badly bruised.

Kills 577 Pound Porker.

Mr. J. Allen DeBerry, of the Deer Park community, was here Saturday and stated to a number of his friends that during the week he had butchered a 21-months' old hog that dressed 577 pounds, which is the largest hog to be reported so far this season.

THREE ARE CAPTURED IN FILLING STATION HOLD-UP

Attempt to Rob Fort Pendleton Service Station, Route 50, Near Gorman, Is Unsuccessful

ARE WANTED IN VIRGINIA

Ortel Hatfield, 22, Wesley Hatfield, 17, of Richwood, Va., and Harold Russell, 18, Fairmont, W. Va., were apprehended by officers on Saturday following an unsuccessful attempt to hold up Adam Pritts, 19, Fort Pendleton service station employe, fifteen miles south of Oakland, on route 50, about 7 o'clock Saturday morning.

Ordered to stick up his hands, Pritts aroused his father, George Pritts, in an adjoining room, by his loud talking and he fired a shotgun at the hold-up men, who fled into the woods nearby.

The two Hatfields were captured about 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon along the highway near Red House, by Earl Pritts and Holmes DuVall, of Kitzmiller, and after being turned over to county authorities tor questioning, confessed their part in the attempt. Russell was arrested late Saturday night at his home in Fairmont.

According to the story of Mr. Pritts and his son, the three drove up to the filling station about 7 o'clock in a Ford car, and requested some water for the radiator. Adam Pritts, the son, was the only one in sight, and after putting in the water, they asked for cigarettes. Young Pritts went inside and behind the counter, the three following him inside. Turning around to hand them the cigarettes, he found himself staring into the muzzle of what appeared to be a sewed-off shotgun. "Stick 'em up," one of them commanded.

Mr. Pritts, in the rear room, hearing the commotion, grabbed his 12-guage shotgun, pointed it through the doorway, and as his son dropped behind the counter saying "Let them have it, Dad," he fired. The shot went through the open doorway and the three fled. The car was left at the service station and clothing found in a suitcase which matched some that Ortel Hatfield was wearing, broke down the alleged defense story that the two had concocted prior to their capture.

The three will be prosecuted for their attempted robbery in this county, while they will come under the Federal law on the charge of transporting a stolen car from one State to another. They admitted stealing the car on the streets of Richmond, Va., and placing their father's license tags, which they had stolen from him, on it.

It is stated also that Virginia authorities have warranes for the arrest of the two Hatfields on two charges of highway robbery in the State of Virginia.

Ortel Hatfield was released from the Marine prison at Parris Island in September. He had been sentenced to 18 months for desertion but his sentence had been shortened to six months on account of his good behavior. He had three recommendations from officers there for his conduct.

This is the second attempted robbery on Route 50 within a week, the first one ending fatally when Clyde Winters, Bayard, W. Va., filling station employe, shot and killed Douglas Washburn, Athens, Pa., in self-defense, near Kitzmiller, this county, in an attempted hold-up.

Extension Directors to Meet Mt. Lake Committee Tomorrow

Nat T. Frame, Extension director of West Virginia, and Dr. T. B. Symons, Extension director of Maryland, will meet members of a committee formed for the creation of an Extension program at Mt. Lake Park, and other interested citizens of Mt. Lake, Oakland, and the entire county, at the Court House tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

The meeting is to discuss plans for making Mt. Lake Park a recreational center such as Jackson's Mill, W. Va., where an Extension program is carried out. While the meeting is not a public one, all who are vitally interested in the welfare of the Park, are invited to attend.

Music Recital at St. Peter's School

An entertainment will be given on Friday evening, December 18, at half past seven in St. Peter's school hall.

Piano selections will be played by the music pupils; "Brahm's Lullaby" and "Barcarolle" by the Chromonica Band; Christmas airs by the Harmonica Band and chorus singing by the school children.

SCOOP'S COLUMN

By Scoop Himself

Nothing would give me more pleasure right now than to give the proofreader of this column a good bawling out. Right when I gave the editor across the way a ilttle rub last week about something in his paper, doesn't the proofreader go and miss a couple of errors in the same write-up, which makes me feel foolish as well as looking that way.

A good bawling out should do him good, but I can't work myself up to the point of giving it to him.

You see, I read my own proof.

Buy At Home

(Taken from "It Is Alleged" column in the Spencer Times-Record, written by Clay Miller)

Mr. Riehard Miller, of the O. J. Morrison Department Store, and Miss Ernestine Johnson, of the law firm Harper and Baker, hie themselves away to Oakland, Md., and proceed to get married.

Coming as a pleasant surprise to most of their friends, it came as quite a blow to County Clerk Roy McCulty, who is in the business of selling marriage licenses himself.

"I've made my home here for a number of years," Mr. McCulty protested, "and for the past eight years I have made a specialty of marriage licenses for other people. Imagine my chagrin when I read that two of my best friends have gone out of town to do their buying!"

Mr. McCulty explained that his licenses were just as good as those sold in Maryland, if not better, and that he would have been glad to have sold one to the bride and groom on the down-payment plan, balance monthly, whereas it is understood they paid cash at Oakland.

"How would Ernestine feel if I went out of town to hire a lawyer?" asks Roy. "Or how would Richard feel if I went to Oakland to get my next pair of shoes?"

Perhaps, in explanation of the picture this week at the head of the column I should say that Col. Bell snapped this of me when I wasn't looking. In fact, I was deep in thought at the time wondering who sent me the green tie, the purple shirt size 16, and the oversize earmuffs last year for Christmas, so I could retaliate this Christmas with something just as appropriate.

This Happened This Summer

Constable Ramsey—No swimming in this here lake, Miss.

The Miss—Why did you wait till I got undressed to tell me that?

Cecil—Well, there's no law against undressing.

After a few more attempts to rob filling stations around here, and a few more shots at the would-be robbers, it ought to be pretty plain to the outlaws that they mean business around "these here parts."

Dear Santa:

I am a good boy and go to church and Sunday School every day(believe it or not). I ask nothing for myself but send my boy enough things that he can divide up with me on Christmas. I always break his wind-up toys before he gets a chance to use them, so send a few extra this year.

Love and kisses. Your devoted,
Archibaldson.

The Modern Version
Ye Christmas Story

In ye modern times it was the night before Christmas just like any other year; Not a creature was stirring because everybody had let the fire die down, leaving the chocolate frozen in the pan, and had gone out to a delicatessen. Powers and a lot of Eastern Shore and West Virginia negroes had been hung by the chimney with care, in hopes that some justice soon would get there.

The Legionaires were all dressed smug in their beds, while visions of another pig roast danced in their heads.

And the little mamma mayor in her kerchief, and the little papa mayor in his cap, had just settled their brains for a long winter's nap, when on the lawn there arose such a clatter that the mayor sprang up to see what was the matter. Away to the window he flew, faster than Mit Sincell could dash, rammed his fist thru the window and knocked out the sash.

When what to his wondering eyes should appear, but the ordinary back alley parade of cats from far and near. (thank heavens, said the mayor, I though it might be another Sunday school party). And he went back to bed to snooze for another week, and because this issue is full of ads, so will I.

Further Honors Won By Former Garrett County Youth

Oscar Kimmell, 15, champion builder of model airplanes at Wichita, Kansas, who won the Eagle trophy last Saturday at the contests held there, will also receive an honorary membership in the "Zoomers," a junior organization for aeronautics, and a bronze badge.

He is the first Wichita boy to become a member of the "Zoomers," a club which is said to be gaining strength in all parts of the country and which has as its objectives the support of and the promotion of interest in aviation.

The contests were for endurance planes and Kimmell came into permanent possession of The Eagle cup by reason of having won it three times. He also was winner of the tests for commercial models.

His commercial model on which he spent over 100 hours of work and which showed a new feature, a double rubber motor gear connected, flew 60 3-5 seconds, a record in any contest in the country.

Oscar Kimmell is the son of Mr. and Mrs. G. O. Kimmell, formerly of Hutton, this county.

BITTINGER

From every endeavor if we could leave out
Every fear, every wicked and wavering doubt
We would then hold the key to the secret of life
And a world full of peace, with no war-making strife.

Dr. N. R. Davis, of Grantsville, was called to Bittinger last Friday to attend Mrs. Andrew J. Oester, who is ill at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Joel Brenneman.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Buckle, Mrs. Lawrence Brenneman and Miss Fern Buckle were shopping in Cumberland last Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Stanton were made exceedingly happy one day last week when Madam Stork presented them with a baby daughter.

Mrs. Amy Bowser and son Lloyd, of near Jennings, were pleasant callers in this village last Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Chauncey E. Ellithorp is numbered among the ailing ones of this community at this writing.

Mr. and Mrs. Kermit Glotfelty experienced the joy of their first-born, a son, who made his advent in their bome a few days ago.

Constable J. L. Ross, of Jennings, passed through here last Sunday afternoon.

Messrs. Arthur Resh, Lloyd Baker and Hubert Stanton, of Casselman, were business visitors in Bittinger on last Saturday afternoon.

The following named pupils of the primary department of the village school were neither absent nor tardy during the months of Septemebr, October and November: Nona Brenneman, Dale Brenneman, and Audrey Buckle, grade 1; Gladys Resh, Hoye Stanton and Dorothy Buckle, grade 2; Richard Buckle, Kenneth Buckle, Helen Brenneman, Marvin Brenneman and Evelyn Fazenbaker, grade 3.

A special Christmas service will be held in the Bittinger Lutheran church on Christmas Eve, December 24, to which all are most cordially invited.

HEALTH OF PEOPLE MUST ALWAYS BE SAFEGUARDED

Providing Right Kind of Food During Depression Will Help

During the period of unemployment the health and nutrition of families without means must be safeguarded, stated Miss Margaret Burtis, home demonstration agent. By providing food which will help them to remain in good health we are preventing epidemics which always follow any period during which people are weakened by starvation. By providing food which will help children to continue growing properly we are paying for health now rather than for illness later.

At such a time there are certain foods which are of more value than others. These foods in the hands of the Relief Committees will help the families of Garrett county to maintain health. When supplies are being sent to these committees and there is a choice of what may be given, Miss Burtis stated, it will be worth while to emphasize the following, which were prepared in cooperation with Miss Eva Falkenstein and Miss Lucy Trickett, home economics teachers in Oakland High School.

Cereals—Whole wheat can be used by families as breakfast cereal. It need not be ground into flour. Buckwheat and corn meal will furnish less expensive cereal to families than those purchased in boxes.

Milk—This is the most important food for children. Even though they must go without other foods it should always be provided. If the family does not have a cow and there is no one donating fresh milk, unsweetened evaporated milk should be included. It is as healthful as fresh milk if the family is provided with tomatoes two or three times a week. It is also the least expensive milk availab'e.

Potatoes—This vegetable is more important than bread if we are thinking of the value we get from the same amounts of these two foods.

Tomatoes—"Tomatoes two or three times a week" is a necessary rule for health.

Cabbage—Cabbage is one of the cheapest and best foods we have. It looses about half its food value when cooked, so it should be given raw whenever possible, and families encouraged to eat it raw frequently. Sauer kraut is also good.

Other Vegetables—Carrots and onions are important vegetables which could be well used.

Canned spinach or other greems are very necessary and should be given as freely as possible.

The Relief Committee has been provided with lists of foods which will maintain health. If your donations will support these lists it will help them to best meet the present need.

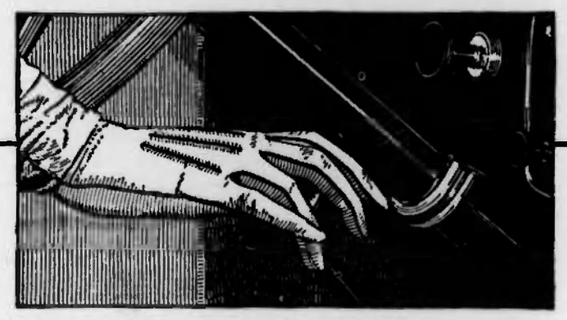
The first and only low-priced car with

Syncro-Mesh Shift and Free Wheeling



The new Chevrolet Six combines the advantages of two inventions . . . Syncro-Mesh and Free Wheeling . . . to assure quick, quiet, easy gear-shifting and positive control of the car under every driving condition

CHEVROLET One of the biggest driving thrills in modern motoring is now available at one of the very lowest prices in the automobile market. Silent Syncro-Mesh gear-shifting is combined with simplified Free Wheeling in the new and finer Chevrolet Six!

No other car offers this double-feature for so little money. Syncro-Mesh is recognized as the most advanced type of transmission ever developed by engineering science. Free Wheeling is that new, up-to-date sensation which adds so much to the zest of driving. The two make a matchless combination! They bring about an entirely new kind of driving ease and car control, far beyond anything you have ever enjoyed before. They give you quick, quiet, easy shifting and complete mastery of the car, under all conditions of road and traffic. They enable you to do things in driving that are impossible to do in a car without both these features.

PRICED AS LOW AS $475

All prices f. o. b. Flint, Michigan. Chevrolet Motor Company, Detroit, Michigan. Division of General Motors.

Low delivered prices. Easy G. M. A. C. Terms.

Then, along with these two big motoring thrills—Chevrolet offers you 60-horsepower "six" performance, higher speed, faster acceleration, greater smoothness, smarter Fisher bodies, matchless economy, and a first cost among the lowest in the motor car market. Certainly, it's the great American value for 1932!

MRS. JENNIE RAVENSCROFT

Mrs. Jennie Custer Ravenscroft, wife of former senator Dr. R. A. Ravenscroft, of Accident, died at her home Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock after a lingering illness of more than two years. She was born at Hoyes on June 14, 1865, the daughter of Emmanuel and Rebecca Friend Custer, and was aged 65 years, 5 months and 27 days. Dr. and Mrs. Ravenscroft were married on Christmas Day, 1889, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. Joseph DeWitt at the Yough Manor Club House, south of Friendsville.

Funeral services were held Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock from the home, Dr. Archibald Moore, Oakland, officiating. Interment was made in the Hoyes cemetery. She was a member of the M. E. church.

Surviving are her husband, one son Randall, and one daughter, Mrs. May Hyde, both of Washington, D. C.; also three brothers, D. S. Custer, of Friendsville; George Custer and Amster Custer, Grafton, W. Va.; three half-sisters, Mrs. Margaret Casteel and Mrs. W. S. Friend, Oakland; and Mrs. Wesley McCartney, Grafton; and two half-brothers, Arthur Custer, Hoyes, and Roy Custer, Baltimore.

WILLIAM E. BEVANS

William E. Bevans, son of Mrs. Marshall Beachy and the late Edward Bevans, died at his home at Grantsville, early Saturday morning, following an illness of six months of heart trouble and complications.

He was born in Grantsville and was aged 19 years, 9 months, 19 days. He was a grandson of the late and well-known Dr. H. L. Bevans, physician, and a nephew of Dr. N. I. Broadwater, of Oakland.

He is survived by his mother and stepfather, two sisters, Mrs. Frances Bevans Boucher, Washington, D. C.; Mrs. Mary Bevans, at home; three brothers, Charles and Lee, Washington, D. C., and Ellwood Bevans, Horton, Kansas; also a half-brother, James M. Beachy, at home.

He graduated from the Grantsville High school, class of 1930, and was popular among his schoolmates. Since his graduation he held a responsible position with the Peoples Drug Store in Washington, D. C., preparing to enter college there, when his health failed in July. He improved some and was brought to the home of his mother six weeks ago by his sister, Mrs. Boucher.

He was a member of St. John's Reformed church.

Funeral services were held at the home on Tuesday morning at 10:30 o'clock. Rev. M. A. Keifer, the pastor, officiating. Interment was in the family lot in the Grantsville cemetery.

HUBERT FRICKEY

Hubert Frickey, 26 years old, son of the late Willard Frickey, died on Sunday at 12:10 o'clock p. m., at Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, after an illness of only a few days of acute diabetes. He entered the hospital on December 9. He made his home at the residence of Lloyd Alexander in Accident, Mrs. Alexander being his sister. He is survived by several brothers and sisters. Funeral services were held in St. Paul's Lutheran church, Accident, on Wednesday, December 16, with interment in the local cemetery.

MRS. EMMA DAVIS

Mrs. Emma Davis, aged 52 years, daughter of Mr. John Yellowly, of Oakland, and widow of the late John T. Davis, died at Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, Monday morning where she had been a patient since December 8. Mrs. Davis was the only surviving child of Mr. Yellowly with whom she resided on Alder street. A sister and a brother were drowned a number of years ago when they broke through the ice on the old Rasche mill dam. A son, John Davis, of New York, survives. Funeral services were conducted yesterday afternoon in St. Paul's M. E. church, Rev. J. W. Dawson, pastor, officiating. Interment was made in Oakland cemetery.

JAMES ASHBY

James Ashby, 30 years old, formerly of near Oakland, died at Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, Monday morning where he had been a patient since December 8. Interment was made yesterday at Versailles, Pa. Mr. Ashby is survived by his wife.

Card of Thanks

We wish to thank all friends and relatives for the beautiful flowers and also the kindness and sympathy shown during the illness of our beloved mother, Mary E. Coddington Guard. THE FAMILY.

Christmas Star Canape

Cut bread in star shapes. Mix minced green peppers, hard cooked egg whites and pimento in a little French dressing. Place green pepper and pimento on alternate points of star and fill center with egg white.

Poinsettia Salad

Six canned beets, 1 cup carrots, chopped; 1 green pepper, chopped.

Slice canned beets and cut in the shape of poinsettia petals. Arrange these petals on lettuce to form a poinsettia flower, using chopped carrots and chopped green pepper for the center. Serve with French dressing. Cut pimentos, red Jello or jellied tomato juice may be used for the flower.

Christmas cookies

Note: Christmas cookies usually are best if kept several weeks before using. If they should be crisp, keep in cloth sack in warm, dry place till dry, then put in tight can. If necessary to soften other kinds—put sliced apple in tight can with them several days; when soft enough, remove apple and keep tightly covered untill used.

Christmas Fruit Cookies

Cream together 2 cups sugar, 1 1-3 cups butter, 3 eggs; add 1 cup seeded raisins, 2 cups currants or seedless raisins or other fruit. I cup English walnuts, 1 teaspoon each of cinnamon, cloves, nutmeg, soda and baking powder. Flour to handle for rolling and cutting out, or drop them. Bake In moderate oven. (Keep fine.)

Molasses Pepper Nuts

One pint corn syrup, 1 pint molasses, ½ lb. shortening, butter or fat, ½ lb. brown sugar, 2½ lbs. flour, 1 teaspoon soda, 2 teaspoons cinnamon, ½ teaspoon cloves, ¼ lb. citron, cut fine, ¼ lb. almonds, chopped fine, 1 lemon rind and juice.

Warm syrup, add shortening and lemon juice and the remaining ingredients in order given, soda mixed with flour. Almonds and citron may be omitted. Roll into little balls, size of a marble, brush with white of egg and bake until brown. Will keep indefinitely.

Sand Tarts

One-half cup butter, 1½ cups brown sugar, 2 eggs, 3½ cups flour, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, 2 teaspoons baking powder. (2 squares melted chocolate may be added.)

Cream butter and sugar, add beaten eggs, and sift in dry ingredients. Roll 1-8 inch thick, and sprinkle with a mixture of ¼ teaspoon cinnamon and ¼ cup granulated sugar. Cut out and bake quickly. This is a good recipe for fancy cutting.

BETHLEHEM

Miss Marie Tasker has gone to Baltimore to receive medical treatment at Johns Hopkins Hospital.

Miss Olin Wilson motored to Uniontown Saturday to visit a friend.

George Herman, Oakland, spent Friday and Saturday with his brother Web Herman.

Glen Tasker, Kitzmiller, is visiting at the home of Bell Tasker.

Lester White, who is attending the Catherman Business school, Cumberland, visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. White, on Saturday and Sunday.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

Regarding Changes in Banking Policy

Exhaustive analytical research conducted by The American Bankers Association, various clearing houses, and numerous banks, both large and small, has proved conclusively that there are a number of transactions now handled by banks that are a definite expense to the institution and should in the light of good business and practical banking either be eliminated or a nominal charge made for same.

In many localities these nominal charges have been introduced by the banks and have proved equitable to the customer, and have, in a measure, at least, recompensed the institutions for the services rendered.

In the belief that only such transactions as are mutually profitable properly come within the scope of sound banking, the undersigned banks will place in effect on and after February 1st, 1932, the following regulations and charges:

(1) A charge of 50c. on checking accounts each month active when balance is below $50.00 any time during the month.

(2) A fee of 25c. on all checks drawn against accounts not having sufficient funds to pay same.

(3) A fee of 25c. will be charged on all notes past due over three days, for each succeeding day past due.

(4) A minimum charge of 10c. on Cashier's Checks, Bank Drafts and Certified Checks.

(5) A charge of 10c. on all collections handled by the Bank.

(6) A charge of $1.00 on all check books imprinted with customer's card.

(7) A charge of 50c. on all orders executed for purchase or sale of securities.

(8) A 60-day notice required on savings withdrawals.

—OF—

Valuable Real Estate

IN GARRETT COUNTY, MARYLAND.

Under and by virtue of the power vested in the Treasurer of Garrett County, Maryland, by Section 52 of Chapted 566 of the Acts of the General Assembly of Maryland for the year 1890, title "Garrett County," sub-title "County Treasurer," and the several amendments thereto, the undersigned Late Treasurer of said County will, on at the hour of ten o'clock A. M., at the front door of the Court House, in the Town of Oakland, Garrett County, Maryland, offer and sell at public auction to the highest bidder, all of the following described pieces and parcels of land, situate, lying and being in Garrett County aforesaid, to-wit:

No. 1.—All that piece or parcel of ground situated in Election District No. 14, Garrett County, Maryland, said to contain about 7500 square feet, and being described as Lot No. 16 and part of Lot No. 17 in Pennington's Addition to the Town of Oakland. Being the same land which was conveyed to Louis Waingold by Alva R. Martin and wife by deed dated October 15, 1924, and recorded in Liber No. 89, folio 65, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland. Said land will be sold to satisfy and pay the State and County taxes due and in arrears thereon for the years 1929 and 1930, as assessed on the Assessment Books of Garrett County in the name of Louis Waingold.

No. 5.—All that piece or parcel of land situated in Election District No. 13, Garrett County, Maryland, which was conveyed to W. M. Harvey by W. S. Harvey and wife by deed dated June 23, 1922, and recorded in Liber No. 84, folio 413, Land Records of Garrett County, containing about 27 acres. Said land will be sold to satisfy and pay the State and County taxes due and in arrears on the same and other lands, for the years 1927, 1928, 1929 and 1930, as assessed on the Assessment Books of Garrett County in the name of W. M. Harvey.

No. 6.—A part of the tract of land called "STOCK FARM," situated in Election District No. 10, Garrett County, Maryland, containing 124 1-8 acres, more or less, and being the same property which was conveyed to Ethel C. Miller by William H. Speicher et al. by deed dated April 15, 1912, and recorded in Liber No. 62, folio 588, one of the Land Records of Garrett County. Said property will be sold to satisfy and pay the State and County taxes due and in arrears thereon for the years 1929 and 1930, as assessed on the Assessment Books of Garrett County in the name of Ethel C. Miller.

No. 9.—All those pieces or parcels of land situated in Election District No. 7, Garrett County, Maryland, which were conveyed to William G. Riley, Trustee, by Dallas H. Riley and wife by deed dated May 19, 1927, and recorded in Liber No. 95, folio 332, Land Records of said Garrett County; saving and excepting that portion thereof which was conveyed by William R. Offutt and J. C. Renringer, Trustees, to John W. Lower, by deed dated November 26, 1929, and recorded in Liber No. 100, folio 87; and also excepting that portion thereof which was conveyed by Offutt and Reninger, as Trustees aforesaid, to D. Milton Riley, by deed dated November 26, 1929, and recorded in Liber No. 100, folio 89, Land Records of Garrett County. The portion of said lands hereby intended to be sold contains 109½ acres, more or less, and will be sold to satisfy and pay the State and County taxes due and in arrears thereon for the years 1927, as assessed in the name of Dallas H. Riley, and for the years 1928, 1929, and 1930, as assessed in the name of William G. Rilcy, on the Assessment Books of Garrett County.

No. 10.—All that piece or parcel of land located in the village of Finzel, in Election District No. 9, Garrett County, Maryland, containing about one-fourth of an acre, and being a part of Military Lot No. 514, and also being the same lot of ground which was conveyed to Carl G. Mullin by Charles Charuhas and wife by deed dated November 14, 1928, and recorded in Liber No. 99, folio 67, one of the Land Records of Garrett County. Said lot will be sold to satisfy and pay the State and County taxes due and in arrear thereon for the years 1929 and 1930, as assessed on the Assessment Books of said Garrett county in the name of Carl G. Mullin.

No. 11.—All of the coal underlying the following pieces or parcels of land, situated in Election District No. 2, Garrett County, Maryland, towit: (1) MILITARY LOT NO. 2984, the coal under which was reserved in a deed from John P. Hubbard and wife to William H. Friend and James Frazee, dated July 16, 1891, and recorded in Liber No. 16, folio 781, Land Records of Garrett County. (2) MILITARY LOT NO. 2986, the coal under which was reserved in a deed from John P. Hubbard and wife to George H. Uphold, dated November 2, 1891, and recorded in Liber No. 19, folio 140, Garrett County Land Records. The coal hereby intended to be sold is said to contain one hundred acres, more or less, and it will be sold to satisfy and pay the State and County taxes due and in arrears thereon for the years 1928, 1929, and 1930, as assessed on the Assessment Books of Garrett County in the name of John P. Hubbard.

No. 13.—All those pieces or parcels of land situate, lying and being in Election District No. 8, Garrett County, the first consisting of about 62 acres, more or less, and being the same land which was conveyed to Benjamin W. Harvey by John O. Harvey and wife by deed dated March 16, 1905, and recorded in Liber No. 49, folio 203, Land Records of Garrett County; and the second being a part of the tract of land called "BRINLEY," containing 160 acres, more or less, and being the same land which was conveyed to the said Benjamin W. Harvey by William T. Carson et al., by deed dated August 18, 1910, and recorded in Liber No. 61, folio 185, Garrett County Land Records, excepting and reserving from this last described piece of land all the minerals thereunder. One or both of said tracts of land will be sold to satisfy and pay the State and County taxes due and in arrears thereon for the years 1928, 1929, and 1930, as assessed on the Assessment Books of Garrett County in the name of B. W. Harvey.

No. 15.—A portion of Military Lot No. 753, containing 45½ acres, more or less, situated in Election District No. 9, Garrett County, Maryland, and being the same land which was conveyed to Henrietta Hawn by John B. Wright et al., Executors, by deed dated September 8, 1900, and recorded in Liber No. 39, folio 427, Land Records of Garrett County. IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

THE SUPREME GIFT OF LOVE (CHRISTMAS LESSON)

LESSON TEXT—I John 4:7-11.
GOLDEN TEXT—Beloved, if God so loved us, we ought also to love one another.
PRIMARY TOPIC—God's Gift of Love.
JUNIOR TOPIC— The Greatest Love in the World.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Why Jesus Came to Earth.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Gift of the Saviour.

The committee's selection of this Scripture passage for a Christmas lesson is most fitting. The birth of Christ—the entrance of the Son of God upon the condition of humanity—was the supreme expression of God's love (John 3:16). The meaning of Christmas rightly apprehended will put love in the heart of a man for his fellows.

I. The Origin of Love (vv. 7, 8).

Love is of God for God in the essence of his being is love. God does not merely love, he is the fountainhead of all love. Love of country, love of humanity, filial and parental love—every particle of love everywhere, has been derived from God. His love is infinite, eternal and unchangeable. Since love is of God, every one who loves is born of God and knoweth God. The Christian by his life of love interprets God to the world.

II. God's Manifestation of Love (vv. 9, 10).

God's method of making known his love is through the incarnation, the sending of his only begotten Son into the world to be the propitiation for our sins (John 3:16). The coming of Jesus Christ into the world and his taking upon himself human nature makes eternal life possible for those who receive him. If one would know God's love, let him look at Jesus Christ. Those who gaze upon him with reverent contemplation cannot doubt God's love.

III. The Supreme Motive of Love (v. 11).

God's love is the grand incentive for bringing his children to love. Since the Heavenly Father loves, his children should show their resemblance to him. In the proportion that we apprehend God's love, in that measure we will love his children.

IV. Love, the Proof That God Dwells With Us (vv. 12-16).

1. No man hath seen God at any time (v. 12). But there is abundant proof of his being. The unmistakable evidence of his being is love in the heart of man. Love is not native to the human heart, for the heart is deceitful above all things and desperately wicked (Jer. 17:9). Out of the heart proceeds murder (Mt. 15:19). Love in the heart is proof that God dwells therein.

2. Love proves that God's Spirit is within us (v. 13). The fruit of the Spirit is love (Gal. 5:22).

3. Love testifies that the Father sent the Son to be the Saviour of the world (v. 14). The indwelling Spirit shows us Christ and makes us believe in him as God's Son, the Saviour.

4. Love makes fellowship with God possible (vv. 15, 16). Since God is love, he that dwelleth in love dwelleth in God and God in him. Those who deny the deity and saviourhood of Christ have no fellowship with God, and those who have fellowship with God will confess Jesus Christ as his divine Son.

V. Love's Relation to the Judgment (vv. 17, 18).

It casts out fear. A judgment day is coming, for God hath appointed a day in which he shall judge the world in righteousness by that Man whom he hath ordained (Acts 17:31). It will be a terrible thing for those unprepared to meet God at that time. But for those who are indwelt by the Living God there will be a joyful meeting. The way to get rid of the fear of meeting God in the judgment is to be living now in fellowship with him.

VI. God's Love the Ground of All Love (v. 19).

The reason we love is that our lives have come into touch with the great Fountainhead of love. The incoming of God's being and nature becomes the animating and controlling principle of our lives.

VII. The Child of God Possesses Dual Love (v. 20).

The proof that one loves the unseen God is that he loves the person who bears the likeness and image of God and has become a member of the same family through the redemption in Christ Jesus. Love to God and man is united in the heart of the Christian.

VIII. The Solemn Command From God (v. 21).

God commands that those who love him should love their brethren. Obedience to this command will do away with all war and strife.

Successful Living

The art of successful living consists not in making our own way, but in being true men and women, and then surrendering ourselves to whatever drift of act or purpose comes our way, absolutely assured that it is the pull of the Almighty.—Charles H. Parkhurst.

Spiritual Happiness

"It is indeed true that we never find the heights of spiritual happiness until we touch the fountain of sacrifice."

NEIGHBOR STATES ASSIST IN FOREST FIRE CONTROL

Pennsylvania Frequently Has Sent Fighting Crews Here

Maryland's four neighboring states have agreed to cooperate in the control of forest fires in Maryland, according to an announcement released from the State Forester's office today. Pennsylvania has been cooperating along the Maryland line for a number of years in fighting fires, frequently sending large crews of men into Maryland in responce to requests from Maryland officials. In turn, Maryland forest wardens and their helpers give frequent aid in controlling Pennsylvania fires, according to State Forester F. W. Besley.

Recent efforts on the part of the State Department of Forestry has resulted in new arrangements with Delaware, Virginia and West Virginia for cooperative fire control along the State boundary lines.

Mr. Besley announced that cooperation with the West Virginia Fish, Game and Forestry Commission has been particularly satisfactory this fall due to increased activity in West Virginia. The Snaggy Mountain forest fire tower, located on the Maryland-West Virginia State line in Garrett county, has continued to render valuable service in both states in discovering forest fires. This tower is operated by Maryland, but the expense is shared by West Virginia. J. W. K. Holliday, State Forester of West Virginia, was instrumental in placing the Pinnacle Rock forest fire tower in Mineral county, West Virginia, on an efficient basis this fall, and this tower aided materially in reporting fires across the Potomac river in Maryland, according to statements made by the Maryland Forestry Department. These reports enabled prompt control of the fires by Maryland forest wardens. This service, by the West Virginia tower, in reporting fires in Maryland, is returned through action of Maryland towers on Dan's Rock and Warrior Mountain, Allegany county, in reporting fires in West Virginia. According to State Forester Besley, prospects for increased efficiency on the West Virginia boundary are particularly encouraging.

It was also explained that cooperative effort along State boundary lines is particularly important because of danger of fires spreading over large areas before reaching the Maryland boundary. If cooperation can result in attacking the fires while still small, even though in an adjoining state, much expense can be eliminated.

In addition to the Union Thanksgiving offering in cash, the District Relief committee has received donations from B. F. Shaffer, Frank Baker, Warren Rathbun, Rev. S. A. Jessee, E. S. Sembower, E. E. Friend, Miss Pope, V. T. Steyer, A. C. White, Mrs. Scott Harvey, Mrs. Alma Bell, Mrs. G. C. Sweitzer, Mrs. C. W. Shipley, Mrs. J. W. Ream, Oakland Creamery Co., (milk each day), Mrs. E. L. Winchell, F. R. Utterback, John Hipsley, H. V. Leighton, G. M. Brown, A. L. Riley, J. W. Nordeck, C. E. Shillingburg, F. B. Shackleford, Mrs. Harry Baker, Mrs. Warren Rathbun, Mrs. E. R. O'Donnell, Mrs. Bert Smouse, and Miss Emma Hamill. In addition to the above, there are many persons who have aided persons direct, not reported to the committee. Eight families have been aided by the committee direct and approximately forty pieces of clothing and shoes distributed by the teacher of the school.

At a meeting of Oak Lodge No. 8, I. O. O. F., last Wednesday evening, the following officers were elected for the ensuing term: N. G., O. W. Bittinger; V. G., Hugh Echard; rec. secretary, D. M. Lower; financial sec'y, R. E. Bittinger; treasurer, H. C. Leighton; marshall, Jos. Turney; Rel. Grand Lodge, J. E. Callis.

It may be unseasonable to speak in this column about woods fires, but the danger is ever present and warnings cannot be too frequently given. In Maryland last year there were 2,313 fires, causing a damage of $661,011.30, costing $62,959.70. Of these fires 257 were in Garrett county, doing a damage of $24,953.67. Smoking caused 35 percent of the fires, brush burning 17, and 24 percent were of incendiary origin. With these figures in mind, it pays to be careful.

41 SCOUTS RE-REGISTERED FOR 1932 IN LOCAL TROOP

16 Scouts Earn 56 Merit Badges During the Year—Annual Report Sent To Headquarters

26 ADVANCE IN SCOUTING

Forty-one scouts of Oakland Troop, No. 1, were re-registered for the year 1932 at National Scout headquarters, according to George Hanst, scoutmaster, who has just forwarded the list along with the annual report of the troop's activities. The year 1932 marks the beginning of the eighth consecutive year for the troop.

Sixteen first and second class scouts passed 56 merit badges, 26 members of the troop advanced at least one rank, one member received the rank of Eagle scout, two received their Eagle palms and other achievements for 1931 are recorded in the annual report. This interest in class study, coupled with two weeks' camping trip and participation in many civic events has made the year 1931 an important one for the local troop.

Each year a re-registration is necessary, and for 1932 there were 25 first class scouts, nine second class scouts, and seven tenderfoot scouts listed as remaining active in the troop. Of the ten who were dropped from the rolls during the year, only five were dropped because of lack of interest. The other five moved from the community.

Four of the first class scouts have attained the rank of Eagle, two have their Eagle palms and one has reached the rank of Knight-Eagle.

Those who advanced at least one rank during the past year are Robert Altstetter, Irving Broadwater, George Browning, Carroll Casteel, Lawrence Dixon, Harley Dawson, Richard Gonder, Stuart Hamill, Schell Hoye, Ward Hinebaugh, Gerald Iman, Lewis Jones, to star; Kenneth Lawton, John McIntire, John Morgan, Eugene Nordeck, Howard Naylor, Horace O'Donnell, Edward Paugh, Joseph Rush, Harry Stemple, Percy Thayer, James Treacy, Laural Whipkey, Maurice Treacy and Bernard Gonder, Jr., scouts.

Merit Badges Passed.

Fifty-six merit badges were won by 16 first and second class scouts. Those passing one or more merit badges were George Kerins, George Stuck, James Treacy, Ward Hinebaugh, Richard Gonder, Robert Altstetter, Gerald Iman, Schell Hoyes, Lewis Jones, Carroll Casteel, John McIntire, Howard Naylor, Harley Dawson, Elvin Iman, Kenneth Lawton, Bernard Gonder.

Badges were won in cycling, leathercraft, cooking, pioneering, swimming, pathfinding, first aid, lifesaving, craftwork in cement, soil management, farm layout and building arrangement, handicraft, woodcarving, firemanship, reading, metal work, animal industry, public health, personal health, scholarship. Bob Altstetter passed the highest number, with 8, while Schell Hoye was second with 7.

Five over-night hikes with an average attendance of 14 and two day hikes with an attendance of 10, were taken during the year; the troop participated in civic activities, planted 1,500 trees for the Civic Club, held a public program during Anniversary Week, helped in community enterprises, collected toys for the needy at Christmas. An average of 38 boys spent two weeks in the Scout Camp on Deep Creek Lake.

A public program for the scouts, their parents and friends will be arranged for Scout Annversary Week in February.

Santa's Elf Surprises Republican With Ice Cream Treat

One of the elfs of St. Nicholas, in the person of Robert Brafford, agent for George D. Sprague, manager of the Imperial Ice Cream Company in Oakland, appeared as from nowhere on Monday afternoon, bearing gifts symbolic of Christmastide.

One quart of chocolate and on quart of Christmas special ice cream were the gifts presented with the compliments of the company along with best wishes for a Merry Christmas and a Prosperous New Year.

Without getting flowery, it can be said truthfully that both flavors were enjoyed by the members of The Republican staff, ex-Mayor Fraley, Rev. Shilke and son Charles, Ted Hinebaugh and Mr. Charles A. Fleegle, who happened to be in the office at the time, and that they can be recommended without restraint for a pleasing dessert for Christmas dinner.

Children to Get Rotary Treat Thursday Afternoon

A Christmas treat consisting of candy and oranges for all the children of the county under 12 years of age, will be given out on Thursday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock to those present, it has been announced by the Oakland Rotary Club committee having charge of this feature of the season's activities.

The treat for the boys and girls will be distributed at the community Christmas tree, corner Second and Liberty streets. The tree was provided by Neil C. Fraley, having been cut on his farm, hauled to town by the Oakland firemen and decorated and lighted by the employes of the West Maryland Power Company.

The tree is symmetrical in form, a beautiful specimen of the native pine and as a decorative piece of work at this season of the year it will be inedeed hard to find its equal.

CHICKENS AND TURKEYS STOLEN FROM FARMERS

Poultry Houses of C. T. Kelley and Oscar Ridder Raided

Charles T. Kelly, of the Mason school community, and Oscar Ridder, of the same section of Garrett county, have each contributed Chrismas dinners for a lot of people for which they have failed to be recompensed, much to their regret and the regret of all law-abiding people of the section in which they reside.

Thursday night Mr. Ridder returning to his home noticed a truck bearing a West Virginia license tag standing on the roadside near his residence and suspecting that chicken thieves were abroad he started an investigation at his lower chicken houses, and there found that nothing had been disturbed. On his way beck he passed the spot where the truck had first been noticed, but it was gone. The next morning, going to his hen house close by his home, he found that the thieves had been there instead of at the houses further away and he was forty or fifty chickens short of the number he possessed the preceding night.

Charles T. Kelly had a like experience the following morning when he discovered that thieves, possibly the same ones that had been at Mr. Ridder's, had stolen twenty turkeys from his farm with no clue whatever as to the identity of the guilty parties.

OAKLAND QUINT DEFEATS NEW WINDSOR COLLEGIANS

Stars From Blue Ridge College Lose 27-17 Friday Night

The Oakland Independent basketball team won its first game of the season at O. H. S. auditorium last Friday evening when it downed the New Windsor Collegians of Blue Ridge College 27-17.

The Oakland team took the lead early in the fray and was never headed, leading at half time 13 to 8. Late in the third quarter the college boys crept closer, but three field goals in rapid succession by Hanst, Nally and Pollock gave the locals a comfortable margin when the final whistle blew.

McComas with four field goals, led the Oakland scorers, while Speicher and Smith, of Blue Ridge, each had two field goals. The lineup and summary follow:

Oakland, 27		Blue Ridge, 17
Pollock	F	Charles
Stanton	F	Speicher
McComas	C	French
Nally	G	Smith
Hanst	G	Wills

Substitutions—Oakland, Glotfelty for Stanton; Graves for McComas. Blue Ridge college, Eaton for Charles. Field goals—Oakland, Pollock 2, Glotfelty 1, McComas 4, Nally 3, Hanst 2. Blue Ridge, Speicher 2, French 1, Smith 2. Foul goals—Oakland, Pollock 1-4, Stanton 1-2, Glotfelty 1-4, McComas 0-2, Graves 0-1. Blue Ridge, Eaton 0-1, French 4-6, Smith 2-5, Wills 3-4. Referee, Maroney.

In the preliminary game between two girls' teams of the High School, the Greens won over their opponents

Publish Early this Week.

In order that the advertisers of The Republican would derive a distinct benefit from their Christmas advertisements in this paper and that the public might see the bargains offered by them, the publication date has been moved up this week to Tuesday.

In this way, The Republican will be well distributed in the county on Wednesday, thus giving customers an opportunity to do some last minute buying at bargain prices. The next issue of the paper will appear Thursday, December 31.

HIT-AND-RUN DRIVER IS FINED $125 AND COSTS

Grantsville Magistrate Imposes Fine on Clyde Failinger

Arrested on charges of failure to stop after an accident and failure to report an accident, Clyde Failinger, of near Keyser's Ridge, in Garrett county, appeared before Magistrate Enos Folk at Grantsville, and was fined $100 on the first charge and $25 on the second charge. He paid the fines and costs in each case.

Failinger was arrested by Corporal J. W. Kreis, of the State Police, following an investigation into an accident on the night of October 24, when Edward Beachy, of near Grantsville, was found lying unconscious along the National Highway. Beachy was taken to a hospital in Cumberuand and is now recuperating from severe injuries, at his home a few miles west of Grantsville.

Corporal Kreis, seeking the hit-and-run driver, discovered that Failinger had stopped at a road-side lunch stand in that section a short time before Mr. Beachy was run down. The officer also learned that Failinger had purchased a new headlight for his car, following the accident. Failinger admitted the charge after being arrested, and was cited to appear before the magistrate for a hearing Friday. He appeared before the court on Wednesday, however, and pleaded guilty.

CHRISTMAS WEATHER IS UNCERTAIN; MAY BE COLD

Weatherman Risks Saying Winter Is Due About End of Week

The props of the Christmas scene —glittering snow, ice and freezing winds—have been mislaid and there's some doubt about finding them until just about the time St. Nick arrives.

With the warm sun shining on the bare earth and the temperature hanging around the summer mark, the weather bureau of Washington is rather at a loss to explain temperatures 10 to 20 degrees above normal for late December.

Oaklanders unbuttoned overcoats as they scurried through stores for their Christmas shopping and much of America is doing the same.

Ordinarily the northwest winds should bring cold and snow, but the weather forecaster at Washington says it is all very unusual. The whole fall season has been abnormally warm.

The bureau shies at predictions more than 48 hours in advance, but decided to risk it and forecast mild weather until the latter part of the week.

Just about Christmas real winter weather is due, though, according to the statement.

Small Boy Injured When Struck By Automobile

Howard Rodeheaver, 6 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rodeheaver, of near Dodge School house, was seriously injured last Thursday evening, when upon alighting from a school bus, and attempting to cross the highway, he was struck unavoidably by a car driven by Mr. Marshall Ashby.

The boy received a deep cut in the left side of his head and the rear wheel of the car is thought to have gone over his body. He was given medical attention, and was in a critical condition for a few days, but is improving at this time.

Car Overturns At Darby's Corner—Driver Missing

A Pontiac car, belonging to a man from Fairmont, W. Va., was wrecked at the Darby corner, State road, at the north edge of town Sunday night, when it skidded around the turn.

When people arrived on the scene, however, the driver and occupants were missing, and thus far have not returned to claim their car. It was taken in charge by Kerins Brothers garage. The machine is only slightly damaged.

Henry Speicher Has Car Stolen From In Front Of Home

Henry M. Speicher, of Accident, had his Oldsmobile car stolen from in front of his home along the State road at 6 o'clock Sunday evening, and to date has not been found.

It was not discovered missing for some little time, and an investigation by T. E. Currie, State Policeman, and county officials, along route 37 service stations, showed that the car was driven toward Oakland.

A grand assembly will take place at the close of the old year and the beginning of the new.

PARK EXTENSION PLANS DISCUSSED AT MEETING

If Given Adequate Local Support, Extension Divisions of Two States Will Cooperate

COMMITTEE IS APPOINTED

If a definite program for the Mountain Lake Park Extension Institute is outlined, if a budget for the operation of the Extension Institute is set up, and if the plan to make Mountain Lake Park a center for agricultural extension activities is given proper and adequate local support, then both Maryland and West Virginia Agricultural Extension Departments will pledge full cooperation to the project.

Such was the outcome of the semi-public meeting held last Friday afternoon in the court room at Oakland, when citizens of the county met with Dr. T. B. Simons, Maryland Extension director, and Nat T. Frame, West Virginia Extension director, to discuss the probability of an extension program at the Park.

After the situation had been explained by Delbert Davis, chairman of the meeting, and Rev. I. S. Middaugh had expressed his views, Dr. Frame, of West Virginia, stated his position in the matter as being extremely favorable from a West Virginia point of view.

"The counties of the tableland area in West Virginia are too far from Jackson's Mill to take any active part in the program there," Mr. Frame said, "and Mountain Lake Park would be a centralized point for them. If this program is carried out it will be possible to send Miss Sara B. Huff, extension worker in music, to the Park almost immediately."

Miss Huff's work in Garrett county in preparation for the Allegheny Tableland Music Festival at Somerset, Pa., this fall, is well known, and a successful musical program for the Park this summer would almost be assured with Miss Huff here as director, members of the committee believe.

In explaining his position, Dr. Symons, Maryland Extension director, said he favored anything which tended to benefit the rural people, as that was the purpose of his work. "If we can be sure that this proposed program at the Park will help the country people, if it will tend to develop and educate them, then I will certainly cooperate to the fullest. However, we must have proper and adequate local support of the proposition."

The culmination of the meeting was the decision to appoint a committee, the members of which would be chosen from the Maryland Extension service, the West Virginia Extension service, the Allegheny Tableland Association, the Mountain Lake Park Association, the director of the program, Rev. I. S. Middaugh, the mayor of Mountain Lake Park, the Oakland Rotary Club, the Pomona Grange and a few others. This committee would have in charge the raising of a budget, the arrangement of a definite program to be carried on in conjunction with the program usually carried on by the Mountain Lake Park Association, and would administer the funds of the Extension Institute.

A number of petitions which had been prepared by members of the Rotary Club, Oakland citizens and the members of Pomona Grange, were read at the meeting. Various sections of the county were represented in the discussion. More than fifty representative men and women were in attendance at the meeting.

She is survived by her husband, four sons, Floyd and Stanley, of Oakland; Howard, of Sunnyside; and Herbert, of Albright, W. Va.; two daughters, Mrs. Al Fulk, and Mrs. Ben. DeWitt, both of Sunnyside; also one sister, Mrs. Harry Helbig, of Oakland.

AN INTERESTING LETTER FROM HOME OF THE HIPPO

Experiences of Man Who Writes of Life in African Jungle

The following is a letter written to Mrs. S. G. Devore, of Akron, by her son, Elliott, who is in Africa in the interests of the Goodrich Rubber Company.

The writer is a nephew of Mrs. E. L. Winchell, of Mt. Lake Park.

The letter follows:

Jinja, Uganda, Africa.
October 8.

Dearest Mother:

Have just returned from a total of 3000 miles by car in northern Uganda. It is a real tropical country and I wish you could see it. I can look out the window and see the Hippo's in Lake Victoria.

We have no business whatsoever in this territory and all dealings are with the crooked Indians. It's a tough job to get things started here but give me time and full cooperation of a distributor and we will get Goodrich going. Depression is very bad and no money in this country. Only 800 white people in the whole territory. And it's a big country. You would enjoy the beautiful tropical scenery and the African natives—who by the way wear no clothes.

Now, I'll attempt to relate about the one hunting trip I had and the leopard skin that we secured, and I have sent it to London to be mounted, cured and forwarded on to you as I have previously advised you. It was a real thrill—now don't worry as I was safe and sound.

There were five of us and eight native guides. We all had high calibre rifles and the natives had spears. Our object was an elephant. Location 35 miles north of Masini in the jungle lands, forests and elephant grass, thick and eight to twelve feet high. We had tramped about one-half day and finally spotted a herd of elephants in a thick part of forest. The wind was blowing our way so Mr. Jumbo could not smell us. They cannot see far, only about 50 yards, but their scent is more delicate than a bloodhound. The elephant could not see us as we approached for the large trees and jungle but they heard us and started to run—all except one. One of our party got within 20 yards of him and fired three shots into his head. The lead bullets are 3½ inches long but Mr. Jumbo is a tough baby with hide 1½ inches thick. The three bullets made him mad, he raised his trunk and roared the loudest trumpeting earthquake of a noise I have ever heard. He spotted the man that fired, trumpeted again and charged right for him. What a noise, and as he ran with his head down, the trees began to topple over. I am brave at times but this happened to be the wrong time, so another man and myself ran to a huge tree fully six feet in diameter and we did not lose a second getting there. The man doing the shooting, fired rapidly eight more bullets into his head, then he ran for a large tree. By this time Jumbo was really mad, and how he did trumpet, until honestly the whole forest shook. I would have sold my soul for a nickel. Was I scared?—NO, JUST PARALYZED. Jumbo started ploughing up trees again and as leopards sleep in big trees, one happened to be in a tree that was knocked over. The leopard sprang at Jumbo and nearly knocked him over but Mr. Elephant, with his trunk, picked up the leopard and threw him at least 100 feet as fast as any bullet ever traveled. How that leopard missed the many trees that were between Jumbo and the one he finally landed at, I will never be able to tell. Anyway, the blow dazed the leopard and three of the native guides that were very close speared it to death as he was getting up. The skin from this leopard is the one that I have sent you. Jumbo by this time was still going strong but he was almost blind and the man fired five more bullets into his head just behind the ear, he ran head-on into a tree at least eight feet in diameter—bellowed a trumpet that again shook the forest, went down on his front knees and finally down on his side and died in about 30 minutes. (Sixteen shots in all.)

The natives secured the Ivory tusks by working the rest of that day and all the next nay. One weighed 89 pounds and the other 91 pounds. They are worth about $2,000. Not bad.

Why didn't I shoot? In the first place I didn't have a license to shooe elephants and one can only be secured in Nairobi, 1000 miles away, at a cost of $200.00 per elephant; in the second place I did not intend to shoot as I was just a "looker-on," and in the third place I was busy as a bee making myself scarce and neither the elephant or leopard came my way—thank the Lord.

Hollywood would pay a fortune to take a picture of what I saw in action in less than 15 minutes, and what I heard; also it would take a fortune to ever get me on another hunt like that. The four experienced hunters said it was the greatest and fastest thrill they had ever seen. That scene will live with me the rest of my life. Now don't worry as I have had my one and final hunt. Certainly would not have missed it though, but one is quite enough.

Leaving here tomorrow for Nairobi. Hope you like the leopard skin as it is beautiful and will make a fine rug for front room.

Write often. Love.

ELLIOTT.

Garrett County Girl Weds

Mrs. Robert W. Gibson

Miss Phyllis Virginia Morgart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Morgart, of Jennings, Md., and Harold R. Gibson, second son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Gibson, McKeesport, Pa., were married Saturday at noon at St. Paul's Episcopal church, Washington, D. C., by the rector, the Rev. Arlington A. McCallum. At the church were the immediate family and a number of friends. The bride, who was attended by her sister, Mrs. Frederick H. Butcher, Washington, as matron of honor, wore brown transparent velvet and lace and carried orchids. She was given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Mr. Butcher. Mrs. Butcher's gown was orange chiffon and velvet. She carried yellow roses. Daniel F. Smith, Palm Beach, Fla., was best man.

Mr. Gibson served in the World War with the One Hundred and Twelfth Infantry, Twenty-eighth Division, and was severely wounded in action. He is a member of the American Legion. He attended the University of Pittsburgh and belongs to the Lamba Chi Alpha fraternity. Following a wedding breakfast at the home of Mrs. Butcher, 4519 Cathedral avenue, Northwest, Washington, Mr. and Mrs. Gibson left for the South. They will spend Christmas at Jennings.

READ LABELS, IS ADVICE OF HEALTH DEPARTMENT

See That You Know What You Are Getting When You Buy

When you are laying in your supplies, particularly the flavorings for your cakes and puddings and pies, for the icings and sweets that melt in your mouth, for fruit drinks and ice creams and for all the other good things that are included in the season's menus, read the labels so that you know just what you are getting.

This adviee is given by Mr. A. L. Sullivan, food and drug commissioner of the State Department of Health, to housekeepers and to all others interested in appetizing cookery and the housewifery arts. "The Federal Food and Drug Act requires every article to be distinctly labeled," Mr. Sullivan continued, "and by carefully reading the label the housekeeper can tell whether she is getting the genuine flavor or an imitation product.

"A bit of this or that flavor or seasoning makes all the difference in the world between food that is flat and food that is appetizing and tempting. And the housekeeper who cooks with her brains—and that is what all good cooks do—knows that she has to use dependable ingredients for successful results. Modern processes have made it possible for genuine fruit juices and other genuine flavors to be put on the market at moderate eost. The Federal law requires the imitation product to be labeled as such. So, to be sure she is getting what she wants, the housewife must read the labels.

"Something else can be accomplished by eareful reading of the labels. Pure flavors in concentrated form are generally expensive. The housewife should not judge by the size of the bottle alone. Many imitations, put up in large size bottles and sold at a low priee are of a very low quality. The State Department of Health is demanding that all products marked 'imitation' or 'compounds', shall have a reasonable flavoring strength relatively comparable to that of the genuine articles."

There is a Santa Claus. The Republican staff and employes got two more quarts of fine ice eream from the Imperial Company on Monday afternoon. And with this warm weather the eream slid down the aesophagus without any difficulty whatsoever, and the palate shouted to the brain, via the nervous system, that it left a pleasing taste.

Here's How He Got It

The real story of how Stuart Hamill got his five or six hundred pound buck, more or less (as he would say it legally), is told by some of his companions on the hunt:

"Are all the rest of the boys out of the woods yet?" said Stuart.

"Yes," said his companion.

"All six of them?"

"Yes, all six."

"And they're all safe?"

"Yep, all safe."

"Then," said Stuart, his ehest swelling, "I've shot a deer."

CHRISTMAS CANDIES

Uncooked Fondant Creams

Mix one unbeaten egg white, 3 tablespoons cream or evaporated milk, 1 teaspoon lemon or vanilla. Stir until well blended, then sift in gradually about 3 eups confectioner's sugar, or enough to make stiff enough to handle. Turn out on a board sprinkled with some of the sifted sugar and knead until very smooth. Use as a stuffing for dates, figs, prunes or raisins; or make into small balls and press a nut meat on each side to make nut ereams. Knead ½ teaspoon peppermint extract into the fondant to make peppermint creams. Roll or flatten to ¼ inch thickness or shape with a cutter, or roll in sugar or cocoanut.

Toffee

Two cups light brown sugar, 4 teaspoons vinegar, ½ cup butter, ½ cup seedless raisins. Heat sugar, butter and vinegar over a moderate fire, stir until the sugar dissolves, then boil without stirring until the sirup forms a hard ball when tried in cold water. Pour carefully around forms and over the raisins which have been arranged in rows in greased pans. When eold, eut in squares.

Maple Fudge

One cup granulated sugar, 1 eup maple sugar, 1 tablespoon corn syrup, few grains salt, ½ eup milk, 2 tablespoons butter. Boil all ingredients to soft ball stage. Cool and beat as for chocolate fudge. Centers of maple fudge dipped in fondant make delicious bon bons.

General Suggestions

1. The size and kind of pan used in cooking candy are important. Enough room is allowed the mixture to boil briskly without overflowing. Any kind of pan can be used, but the candy will not stick so readily in a heavy metal pan as in a thin one. Aluminum pans are ideal for candy cookery.

2. A wooden spoon is best for stirring.

3. When pouring candy do not scrape the pan or allow the least bit to drip irregularly, or it may make streaks of sugar where it falls and then the whole mass will crystallize. If candy "goes to sugar" it may be melted over by adding several tablespoons of liquid and heating carefully, then when it comes to the boiling point test again with thermometer or cold water and remove from fire without delay when the proper stage is reached. Corn syrup will prevent almost any candy from sugaring. One or two tablespoons may be enough for each 2 eups of sugar, and can be added with the sugar in any recipe in which sugar is boiled.

4. Candy should not be cooked over too hot a fire, as it requires too much stirring to keep it from sticking. The sugar should be dissolved before boiling begins.

5. Crystals that form on the side of a pan should be washed away so they do not mix with the sirup as it is being poured out to cool. Use a small piece of wet cloth wrapped around a spoon, or cover the pan closely with a lid for a few minutes, but do not wait until the candy is almost ready to pour; they should be washed away as they form.

A New Year's Supper

COLD SLICED MEAT FRUIT SALAD
ASSORTED SANDWICHES
GINGERBREAD WAFFLES WHIPPED CREAM
CHOCOLATE OR COFFEE

Gingerbread Waffles

One cup molasses, 1-3 cup butter, 1½ teaspoons soda, ½ cup sour milk, 1 egg, 2 cups flour, 2 teaspoons ginger, ½ teaspoon salt. Heat molasses and butter to boiling point; remove from the heat and beat in soda. Add milk, well beaten egg and sifted dry ingredients. Cook on waffle iron and serve with whipped eream.

A JOB FOR EVERYBODY—

In the city of Grand Rapids, Michigan, everybody has a job, according to a story in the current issue of The American Magazine. The city is taking care of its unemployment and the charity problem by giving everyone a job in helping to beautify the town and its parks and paying for the labor with food and clothing.

Within the past several years many ugly spots within the city limits have been beautified, and according to the author of the article, who has talked with a number of the workers, they would rather work for their living than have it handed out to them in bread lines and other forms of charity.

In general, that is the idea of the Central Relief Committee for Garrett county. Finding work such as the beautification of Washington Spring Park for those needing food and clothing. It will at least keep them and their families going until something better turns up and preserve the self-respect and maintain the spirit of the individuals while they are in need.

A MERRY CHRISTMAS—

Christmas, that joyous period of the year when every face radiates the spirit of good-will, is with us again.

People are joyous at this holiday season because of good friends, the unselfish spirit of giving, and the knowledge of the attainment of another year of human endeavor, with its adversities, experiences and perhaps, accomplishments.

Certainly every human being has some reason for happiness at this festive season, if it is only gratitude for the kind word of a friend.

While the gifts may not be as expensive as in former years, the spirit of giving will be as sincere as it was in the days of the early Christian era.

The Republican extends a most sincere wish to its many friends for happiness, health and prosperity during this merry season and the coming new year.

THE WORLD DISARMAMENT CONFERENCE

On February 2, 1932, there will be held a conference for World Disarmament at Geneva, composed of the World Powers, in which our own country will participate.

"Successful conferences are not arranged over night by delegates sitting behind closed doors. These delegates are mere representatives of their fellow-citizens, and if these citizens take no intelligent interest in the subject matter of the conference ....their representatives cannot act with that assurance and confidence which alone can lead to a successful issue.—Pierre DeL. Boal, Department of State, Oct. 24, 1931.

We are constantly being informed by the press of the pressure being brought to bear upon the European governments by their peoples for a real disarmament program. We in this country must express ourselves at once in no uncertain terms so that our delegates sent to this conference act to that end with the full knowledge it is the will of our people.

BIG BUSINESS HAS A HEART

The Carnegie Steel Corporation, we are told, will keep 5000 men at work from now until January 1, in the Edgar Thomson mills, although the company has no orders for the steel which will be made.

The purpose is to provide Christmas pay rolls, Christmas cheer and if possible a life to business. The cost will be $560,000.

This is a fine example of "big business' change of heart since the last generation, of mind and heart working wisely together.

We feel that other large companies might very well follow suit, if financially able. We hope the Carnegie Company sells its steel, but whether it does or not, the money spent will mean returns in good will within and without the plant.—Pittsburgh Press.

IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

New lighting fixtures, made necessary by the introduction of electricity in Oakland, were received by the contractors and were being installed in both the Garrett Memorial and St. Paul's M. E. church. The new lighting system was used at the festivities attending Christmas and added much to the attractivenes of the churches where they were installed.

Charles Tower was painfully scalded by the spilling of some boiling water at his home.

The new board of County Commissioners organized by the election of Jacob Fresh as president of the body. Others members of the board were Edward Margroff, of Accident, and Truman W. Casteel, of near Oakland. Following the organization of the board the commissioners went to Swallow Falls for the purpose of inepcting a new bridge which had been erected there.

C. F. White, merchant at Hutton, was spending the week in Baltimore on business.

Thirteen couples of Oakland young people were entertained at The Rest by the hostess, Mrs. L. M. Hoff. Games and dancing featured. Supper was served at ten o'clock.

The first meeting of the recently elected judges of the Garrett County Orphans' Court was held with Chief Judge Charles Morgan and Associate Judges Henry Kamp and Henry Sanders on the bench.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Lenzie Friend accidentally shot and killed his younger brother Matthias, near Sang Run, with a gun that was supposed to be unloaded. Both were sons of Stephen W. Friend.

Clarence Hardesty, 22, Baltimore and Ohio fireman at Deer Park, was struck and instantly killed by a westbound train at the Deer Park Hotel station.

Garrett countians winning prizes at the Maryland State Fair in oats, apples, turnips, corn, wheat and buckwheat were Jesse Warnick, New Germany; Ridder Bros. and H. U. Miller, Oakland; F. E. Bishop, Friendsville; W. T. Stanton, Grantsville; M. H. Frankhouser and J. A. Shaffer, Oakland.

The Oakland High School literary society was formed with Miss Eleanor Hinebaugh, president; Fred. Peddicord, vice-president; Walter W. Dawson, secretary; Ruth Michael, assistant; Bernadetee Hart, treasurer; Robert White, chief usher.

An Interesting Fact

ROMAN CATHOLICS

This is the first of a series of articles on the Roman Catholic church in the early days of Maryland as a Colony. The next article on the subject will apear in a later issue.

Roman Catholics, from the time of the founding and settlement of the Colony of Maryland, have ever played an important part in Maryland.

While the exact number of the actual first settlers of the Colony cannot be definitely stated, it is probable that aside from those bound to service, who were mainly Protestants, the majority were Catholics.

In the early beginning all faiths dwelt together in harmony under the beneficent reign of Lord Baltimore. Protestants and Catholics alike must be credited with the desire "to live and let live," and worked with one accord for the upbuilding of the Colony.

This condition existed, outwardly at least (except for minor clashes), until the controversy between Lord Baltimore and the Jesuits arose. At this time the Jesuits, following the customary practice of the church in Roman Catholic countries, attempted to acquire land for the use of the church directly from the Indians instead of applying to the proprietary, who under the grant of the King claimed dominion over all the land within the boundaries contained in the charter as one of his cherished prerogatives.

Under a Papal bull, this land, if acquired, would have been exempt from the jurisdiction of civil authorities. This would have set up in Maryland what would have been tantamount to a separate and distinct principality, similar to the Vatican in Rome, which would have been contrary to a strict interpretation of Lord Baltimore's idea of religious tolcration in the Colony.

During this period of differences between the proprietary and the Jesuit missionaries, the latter were under the leadership of Rev. Philip Fisher, a Spaniard, born in Madrid, who held title to a large part of the property of the Catholic church under the name of Thomas Copley.

Under the "Conditions of Plantations" of 1636, Copley made a demand, and was granted, 28,500 acres of land for transporting to Maryland Mr. Andrew White and thirty others in 1633, and John Knowles and thirteen others in 1637. Of this acreage he retained 8,000 acres for the Society of Jesus and the use of the church. It is well to remember, in this connection, that Lord Baltimore at this time was a member of the Catholic church. It must likewise be remembered, as before stated, that he was fearful that the establishment of a church domain within his Colony, the soil of which had been granted him by the charter, would, to that extent, lessen his authority and control and take from his a certain proportion of his revenue, as the Jesuits claimed for church property freedom from taxation and for those who managed the property exemption from military and civil service.

Another source of conflict was the refusal of the church to permit Lord Baltimore to send into Maryland secular clergy whose services he required and demanded. But through all these misunderstandings (for it is now agreed that such they were) Lord Baltimore's loyalty to his adopted church cannot be questioned.

Miss Icie Friend, of Friendsville community, was in Oakland on business Tuesday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Agnelly, of Roanoke, Va., arrived in Oakland by motor Sunday where they visited Mrs. Agnelly's mother, Mrs. J. W. Hart, and other relatives until Monday evening, when they returned to Roanoke.

Stores in Oakland will remain open until ten o'clock instead of closing at the usual hour of six o'clock, until after Christmas in order that the Christmas shoppers may be accommodated. Shop early is th eadvice for the remaining few days of the season.

The Nightingales will sing Christmas carols along the streets of Oakland beginning at 5:30 o'clock Thursday evening, December 24. They will sing along Second, Oak, Third and Alder streets. Anyone interested in hearing this group of young girls is asked to put a lighted candle in the window.

At the semi-monthly session of the Garrett County Orphans' Court, held Tuesday morning letters of administration were issued to Edward J. Ryan, Cumberland attorney, on the estate of the late Luther McRobie of Garrett county, and an order was passing ratifying the sale of certain real estate made and reported by Miss Icie G. Friend, administrator of the estate of the late Mrs. M. Ella Guard.

The public schools of the county will close for the Christmas recess on Wednesday, December 23, at noon, and reopen on Monday, January 4. Teachers in Oakland High School who will spend the holidays at their respective homes include: Earl Willis, Chestertown; John M. Thayer, Grafton; Miss Catherine Schnebly, Manchester; Miss Margaret Hamilton, Lonaconing; Miss Margaret Stoffle, Westminster; Miss C. Edmee Smith, East Radford, Va.; Miss Margaret Kochenderfer, Elkins; Miss Martha Engle, Grantsville; Miss Mary Thomas, Grafton; F. D. Bittle, Calvin S. Warner, Foster O. Speicher, W. W. Jenkins, Ervin S. Smith, O. T. Graser, MissesEva Falkenstein, Lucie Trickett and Rose Rice at their homes in Oakland.

County Superintendent Asks School Teachers To Save

Supplementing a request of the Governor of Maryland on Friday for heads of State Departments to save on their present budget allowance, F. E. Rathbun, superintendent of schools, has sent a communication to the teachers of the county to do likewise in the expenditure of public school funds.

"We are entering upon a still more severe program of saving and economies," the letter states, and "advise that no expenditures be made by any school people without first receiving written authority from the Board of Education."

Teachers To Assist In Finding Needy Cases Among Poor

A letter to the public school teachers of the county in regard to the relief program in the county, was mailed this week following a meeting of part of the Central committee at the office of Miss Katharine T. Kirwan, on Saturday.

In the letter the teachers are asked to report all cases of need, and also persons having anything that they will give for the relief of the needy. The list of the Garrett county district chairmen is included in the letter so that reports may be made to the one nearest the individual teacher.

Mrs. Bernard I. Gonder will be hostess at the meeting of her bridge club at her home on Alder street this evening.

MARRIED

Sanders — Wotring—Miss Bernice Alfreda Sanders, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Sanders, Crellin, and Roger Frush Wotring, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Wotring, of near Oakland, were married in the Lutheran parsonage, Oakland, on Monday evening, at 7:00 o'clock, Rev. C. A. Shiike performing the ceremony. The bride and groom were accompanied by Miss Eva Ashby, Crellin, and Mr. Willis Naill, of Cumberland. Mrs. Wotring is a senior in Oakland High School and is known for her musical abilities. The groom is in the employ of the Celanese Corporation, Cumberland.

Fish Still Biting

Last Saturday Ed Haselbarth, Frank Statler and Frank Petry planned another fishing trip to Stanton's Dam, near Grantsville, Md., and took with them Edward Haselbarth, Jr., a nephew of the other Edward, to give him some lessons in expert sucker fishing. They came home with a nice lot of suckers, even though the water was too high. The three old-timers, however, were not much pleased, because the young fellow they took with them to be instructed in expert angling proved himself more expert than they were. At any rate he caught about all of the fish they brought home with them, except a few small sunfish, which the would-be instructors caught.—Meyersdale Republican.

Mrs. Howard R. Campbell and children returned to Washington, D. C., recently and Mr. and Mrs. Rennick Thayer returned to Keyser, West Va., after having visited their parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Thayer. Mrs. Thayer has been ill for some time past, but is now improved.

Wild Turkeys Are On Increase

Wild turkeys, once threatened with extinction in Maryland, are increasing in numbers, E. Lee LeCompte, State Game warden, has reported.

About ten years ago game officials feared the wild turkey was going to join the passenger pigeon in museums. A propagation program, coupled with stringent conservation laws, however, has served to preserve the fowl, Mr. LeCompte added.

Stocking of woodlands in Western Maryland began about five years ago. During the 1929 season about 540 wild turkeys were bagged by hunters, the game warden said. The bag last winter was cut to about 575. This was caused chiefly by the fact that forest fires destroyed large numbers of nesting turkeys, he asserted.

IMPORTANT NOTICE
Regarding Changes in Banking Policy

Exhaustive analytical research conducted by The American Bankers Association, various clearing houses, and numerous banks, both large and small, has proved conclusively that there are a number of transactions now handled by banks that are a definite expense to the institution and should in the light of good business and practical banking either be eliminated or a nominal charge made for same.

In many localities these nominal charges have been introduced by the banks and have proved equitable to the customer, and have, in a measure, at least, recompensed the institutions for the services rendered.

In the belief that only such transactions as are mutually profitable properly come within the scope of sound banking, the undersigned banks will place in effect on and after February 1st, 1932, the following regulations and charges:

(1) A charge of 50c. on checking accounts each month active when balance is below $50.00 any time during the month.

(2) A fee of 25c. on all checks drawn against accounts not having sufficient funds to pay same.

(3) A fee of 25c. will be charged on all notes past due over three days, for each succeeding day past due.

(4) A minimum charge of 10c. on Cashier's Checks, Bank Drafts and Certified Checks.

(5) A charge of 10c. on all collections handled by the Bank.

(6) A charge of $1.00 on all check books imprinted with customer's card.

(7) A charge of 50c. on all orders executed for purchase or sale of securities.

(8) A 60-day notice required on savings withdrawals.

GENERAL WASHINGTON SHEATHS HIS SWORD

On December 23, one hundred and forty-eight years ago, George Washington handed back to the Continental Congress his commission as Commander-in-Chief of the Revolutionary Army and returned to Mount Vernon, a simple American citizen. But the mere statement of that fact conveys little of the drama that lay behind the act. Only a few months before he became George Washington, private citizen, he might have become military dictator of America, and at the lifting of a finger. He put aside the proposal in indignation, but had George Washington been other than the man he was, the history of the United States might read very differently from what it does.

While the surrender of Cornwallis at Yorktown in 1781 had virtually ended the Revolution in victory for America, desultory fighting still went on, and Washington wished to keep the army up to strength. It was nevertheless a preiod of inactivity, and the officers and soldiers had plenty of time to brood over their grievances at the hands of Congress. Their pay was long in arears. Numbers of the officers had sacrificed their personal fortunes to the cause of their country. And now they faced the prospect of being turned back into private life, penniless and ignored by a country that appeared to be ungrateful.

This bitter sentiment reached a climax while the army was stationed at Newburg. It finally took shape in an open hint to Washington that he place himself at the head of this movement in the army to take over the government, and thus make himself dictator of America. So impoverished was the country, and so feeble had become the State and National governments that nothing could have stood in the way of this move, had Washington yielded. Instead he indignantly rebuked his officers for this threatened stain on their patriotism, promised once more to stir Congress to take up the matter of payment, and in this he finally succeeded.

Late in January, 1783, came news that the preliminary peace treaty had been signed in Paris. On April 17, Washington was informed that an agreement for the suspension of hostilities had been signed. In due time thereafter came the disbanding of the army, the triumphal entry of Washington and Governor Clinton into New York City, on the heels of the departing British, and the famous farewell that the Commander-in-Chief bade his faithful officers at Fraunce's Tavern. Immediately afterward, Washington went to Philadelphia to present an account of his personal expenses during the eight years of the war.

This business being concluded, Gen. Washington left Philadelphia for Annapolis, where Congress was sitting. There he arrived on December 20 and asked the president of Congress as to the manner in which he should resign his commission. The 23d was named as the day for his ceremony. At 12 o'clock the Maryland State House, where Congress was in session, was crowded for the occasion. The galleries and a large part of the floor of the Hall of Congress was filled with ladies, functionaries of the State and National governments, military men and citizens.

Washington entered, conducted by the secretary of Congress, and took his appoined seat. After a brief pause, General Mifflin, president of Congress, announced that "the United States in Congress assembled" were prepared to receive his communication. In the course of his brief address, Washington said: "The great events on which my resignation depended having at length taken place, I now have the honor of offering my sincere congratulations to Congress, and of presenting myself before them, to surrender into their hands the trust committed to me, and to claim the indulgence of retiring from the service of my country." A few words of praise for his officers and the army, a solemn appeal for the blessing of God on his country, and he had finished.

A newspaper of the time, the Maryland Gazette, in describing the scene, said, "Few tragedies have ever drawn so many tears from so many eyes as the moving manner in which his Excellency took his final leave of Congress."

On the next morning, Washington set forth from Annapolis and reached Mount Vernon that same evening—Christmas Eve—to spend there perhaps the happiest Christmas of his life. Thus eagerly did the victor of the War for our Independence forget military glory and return to the ranks of fellow-citizens.

Christmas Seals Bring Health To Miracle House Children

More Than 1600 Maryland Children Have Been Restored To Health

One seldom associates miracles with present day life and yet the Miracle House at Claiborne, Maryland, was so named because of the seemingly miraculous results accomplished in the rebuilding of the bodies of undernourished and underweight children who have been in contact with tuberculosis. The work at the Miracle Houso has been msde possible by the annual sale of tuberculosis Christmas Seals. It is maintained by the Maryland Tuberculosis Association and is one of the largest institutions of its kind in the United States. Starting in 1919 with but 19 beds, it has grown rapidly and it now has accommodations for 110 children and 30 adults.

Nestling in a grove of pines close to the shores of the Chesapeake Bay, the House of Miracles is ideally situated for the work it sets out to do. Pure nourishing food, plenty of rest and training in health habits, combine with the natural properties of fresh air, salt water breezes and sunshine in the rehabilitation of undernourished little bodies, who in later life might succumb to tuberculosis, into strong healthy bodies and bright alert minds, which are able to withstand the ravages of this disease.

The Miracle House, where more than 1600 Maryland children have received preventorium care, stands as a memorial to the work of the little Christmas Seal. Buy them liberally.

1927 MARRIAGE RECORD IS SURPASSED BY NINE

Total for 1931 Thus Far Is Thirteen Hundred Nine

With fifty-five marriage licenses issued during the past three weeks, bringing the year's total to 1,309, the all-time record of 1,300, made in 1927, was surpassed at the office of the Garrett County Circuit Court clerk's office this week, with prospects of an even greater number at the end of December.

"Depression seems to have no effect on the desire to obtain marriage licenses," A. G. Ross, deputy clerk, said Monday morning.

Thirteen of the licenses issued during the three weeks were marked "don't publish," while four applicants were refused the papers. Fifty-five permits have been granted during the month of December.

It is announced that a number of high power radio stations have been erected in England at enormous expense for the purpose of carrying on international broadcasts. If Europe, which claims to be financiall embarrassed and is constantly demanding that the United States pay the full cost of the World War on that account, would spend more money on legitimate domestic development and less on propaganda to induce other nations to sacrifice their own interests in behalf of the nations doing the broadcasting, there would doubtless be a better prospect of peace and prosperity in the world.

Lesson for December 27

REVIEW: THE SPREAD OF CHRISTIANITY IN EUROPE

GOLDEN TEXT—And the seventh angel sounded; and there were great voices in heaven, saying, the kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of his Christ; and he shall reign for ever and ever.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Giving the Gospel to Europe.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Giving the Gospel to Europe.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Christianity in the Roman World.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Outreach of Christianity.

In connection with the quarter's lessons, the Golden Text may be misleading for it refers to a time in the future when Christ's kingdom shall be established by his personal coming and in mighty power, displacing all earthly kingdoms with the Kingdom of Heaven. It does not refer to a world converted through the gradual dissemination of the gospel.

The lessons for the quarter center chiefly in Paul. A good method of review will be to study Paul the man.

A method also effectively used in senior and adult classes is to summarize the facts and state the leading teaching of the lesson. Assignment in this case should be made a week in advance. For this method the following suggestions are offered:

Lesson for October 4.

Being hemmed in on all sides, a vision was given Paul of a man of Macedonia pleading for help. Paul moved forward in response to this vision. Our visions should be translated into action.

Lesson for October 11.

The casting out of a spirit of divination from a young woman resulted in bringing Paul and Silas before the magistrates on a false charge. Without opportunity for self-defense, they were mercilessly beaten and remanded to jail, from which they were miraculously delivered. The jailer was converted. God will make fruitful the ministry of those who are faithful.

Lesson for October 18.

In Thessalonica and Berea Paul preached a suffering and risen Christ to the Jew first. The success of his ministry so aroused certain Jews that a riot ensued. Without fear Paul continued to preach Christ, and a vigorous church was established.

Lesson for October 25.

Alone, Paul came to the rich, cultured, and licentious city of Corinth. Here God gave him an encouraging vision, assuring him of divine protection.

Lesson for November 1.

In pressing the obligation of temperance, Paul shows that the believer is linked to Jesus Christ by faith. Being born from above, the man is free from the power of the flesh. God's way of destroying the works of the Devil is through the sonship of believers.

Lesson for November 8.

Preaching Christ and working miracles in Ephesus brought Paul face to face with an opposing mob. Despite opposition a glorious awakening resulted and a strong church was established.

Lesson for November 15.

At Jerusalem, Paul, in deference to the wishes of the elders, consented to take a vow in order to conciliate certain prejudiced brethren. This enraged the unbelieving Jews, who attempted to kill him. Being rescued by the Roman guard, Paul defended himself and was encouraged by the appearance of the Lord.

Lesson for November 22.

Not being able to get justice, Paul appealed to Caesar. On the way to Rome a great storm was encountered. Storms as well as soft breezes await God's faithful ministers.

Lesson for November 29.

Philemon is a private letter to a fellow Christian on the occasion of the return of a runaway slave who had become a Christian under Paul's ministry. It is one of the most tactful and tender letters ever written and the first anti-slavery petition ever penned.

Lesson for December 6.

Nearing the close of his ministry, Paul calmly faced death. He looked back over a successful career and forward with joyful anticipation to an eternity with God.

Lesson for December 13.

The Book of Revelation is God's last message to man. It is the unveiling of Jesus Christ in his personal appearing in glory to judge the world and establish his kingdom.

Lesson for December 20.

Love is God's supreme gift. It was personified in the incarnation of Christ. Those whose lives have touched the Lord Jesus Christ will love.

An Oasis in the Desert

As we journey through the desert of this life there looms continually before us as a mirage an oasis where we may rest free from care and temptation; but as we proceed that blissful prospect recedes.

Our Heritage

Christ has left us with three things: a truth that brings freedom, a peace that brings contentment and defies the world, and a love that redeems the world.—Elbert Russell.

WHILE THEY STARVE

R. W. to Editor of The Pittsburgh Press

Christian citizenship is a wonderful thing; it crowds ball parks, race tracks, stadiums, theatres—with joyous throngs whiie little children starve.

It squanders enough on joy-riding to feed hundreds of hungry kids; it makes whoopee in night clubs; spends millions for new churches; pipe organs; stained glass windows; fills the pew with silk-topped men and silk clothed women, who listen graciously to over-paid "preachers" who carefully confine their discourses to events of 1,900 years ago; it prays carelessly "Thy Kingdom come;" donates to charity like Rockefeller handing out dimes; starts another week of golf, bridge, clubs, parties and usual business of "oppressing the hireling." It takes glorious trips abroad; "vacations" at classy pleasure resorts in luxurious pleasure; and considers itself a model of Christian civilization; while men, women and little children starve.

Verily—Christian citizenship is a wonderful thing; but let us quote: "Whoso offendeth one of these my little ones, it were better that a millstone be tied about his neck and that he be cast into the midst of the sea;" "Thou shalt not oppress the hireling in his wages;" "Thou shalt not kill;" Do unto others as you would have others do unto you;" "Woe unto ye, Pharisees, hypocrites;" "Vengeance is mine; I will repay, saith the Lord;" "Thou art thy brother's keeper;" and there are many more that many clergymen do not dare quote from the pulpit.

Yeah—Christian citizenship is a wonderful thing; but where do we go from here—if we cause or permit men, women, and little children to freeze and starve?

Mr. and Mrs. Noah Slabach, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Sisk, S. W. Slabach and Miss Lena Slabach spent Monday evening at Bayard with Miss Grace Filer and Mr. Stewart Wamsley and family.

Feed The Birds ! ! !

It is essential that an active winter feeding program for the birds be carried on by the general public in each county and city of Maryland, beginning not later than January 1 and continuing until spring arrives.

The Game Division of the Conservation Department of Maryland, thru the cooperation of the public of the counties, has each season for the past five years carried on an extensive feeding station program.

One of the best methods of feeding shelters is to build a trussel bench, set at each side on end corn cut at the ground from which the fodder has not been removed, forming an Indian teepee, leaving the bottom open at all times so that the birds may escape vermin if attacked.

Another good method is to cut a long pole, either nail from tree to tree or place each end on a forked stick and pile brush at one side, always leaving the opening to the south. Grain of any kind may be used; what is known as chick grain is very beneficial to the majority of birds as it contains seeds of various kinds.

For song and insectivorous birds, a iittle sheif on the window or erected in a tree, on which suet can be placed daily, will serve as a dinner table for these very essential species.

As far as possible, feeding stations should be in locations which are protected from winds and snow. A small pile of aand should be supplied to furnish grit.

Feeding, when once started, should be continued thru the winter, as the birds when accustomed to regular feeding, are less likely to shift for themselves.

This appeal is made so that the public is assured of more brood stock for the year 1932.

We are happy to take this opportunity to wish you
A Very Merry Christmas and
A Happy New Year.

—ADDED TALKING ATTRACTIONS NIGHTLY—

For the Winter Days Ahead

THERE they stand—row upon row—shelf upon shelf. Peaches, pears, plums, currant jelly and strawberry jam. Each jar or tumbler with its paraffin seal and neatly written label.

This storing of fruit against the winter meant long hours in a hot kitchen—but delicious oozing strawberry jam with hot biscuits in January made it all worth while.

Your power company can't store electricity on shelves for future use—it must be made the instant it is wanted. To keep your electric service reliable engineers must make careful studies of future requirements in order that the generating stations will be able to supply the demand when it comes.

MONONGAHELA SYSTEM

The Discarded Christmas Tree.

Is It a Symbol of Disillusioned Hope? Or Can the Season's Cheer Abide as an Unfailing Source of Help in Meeting Workaday Problems.

By ROY L. SMITH, in the December Rotarian.

It lay there in the dirty snow and slush of the alley, a pathetic and bedraggled little Christmas casualty.

Gone were the gay little ornaments that had made it seem like an importation from fairyland. Only a few strands of tangled tinsel clung dejectedly to its twigs.

Gone also were the twinkling lights it had worn so airly a few short days ago. Instead of the glad cries of children dancing about it in exuberant joy was the clatter of the rag-picker's cart and the rumble of the big truck that lumbered down the alley.

It was a discarded Christmas tree—the most dismal and woebegone sight in all the world.

But more pathetic than the little tree were the hearts of those who had carelessly tossed it out into the alley.

For one glorious day they sang and laughed and exulted in the sheer joy of living. A new spirit came into the house and into their hearts—something gladdening, cleansing, heartening. Ticker-tape and bridge scores were completely forgotten. The making of a living was submerged, for one short day, in the merry-making. All hearts became child hearts again, with no room in them for aught else than kindliness and goodwill.

But next morning Mother noticed that the needles were dropping from the little tree and her sense of orderliness was outraged. She could not be cleaning up after an outworn bit of sentiment. Into the alley it must go. Christmas was over!

And next morning Father was at the office again immersed in the daily grind. Instead of a shouting child upon his back, he bore the burdens of great responsibilities upon his shoulders. His voice of yesterday, so soft and tender in the singing of old familiar Christmas carols, could scarcely be recognized in the brusque, snappy tone of the "boss" as he laid plans for the annual invoice.

Yes, Christmas was over!

It had been tossed out into the alley along with the little Christmas tree and a joyous, affectionate, happy family settled back to the normal life of hurry and worry. The cheerful outlook of the day before was displaced by a grim doggedness.

Occasionally someone rises to protest the terrible waste of Christmas trees—cut by the millions for the entertainment of the homes for but a day. The waste may be serious—opinions seem to differ. But certain it is that a mighty protest is due against the tragic waste of Christmas.

What a transformation Christmas works in our lives for one brief holiday! Families are returned, mothers are made glad, little children come into their own, feuds are forgotten, poverty is ignored, soldiers in the trenches exchange goodwill greetings with their enemies across no-man's-land, competitors wish one another well, and harassed men and women surrender everywhere to the universal infection of good cheer.

For one day we really live! The whole world is populated by a race that has become care-free, laughing, singing, gladsome children again, who trust each other and put love where suspicion and malice have been.

The thing most needed in banks, general manager's offices, and director's rooms, as well as upon the streets, in shipping-rooms, and in factories, is the triumphant spirit that Christmas brings—the spirit of faith, goodwill, and mutual trust.

Christmas is a spirit! To have that spirit any time makes Christmas any time. To lose that spirit is to lose Christmas, and all its blessed accompaniment of peace and confidence and goodwill. Anything that increases the spirit of Christmas in the world lengthens life.

Did anyone ever try taking the Christmas tree down to the office with them the day after Christmas?

MT. LAKE PARK

It is always a pleasure to record in this column the fact that some one has started a new enterprise or has achieved something worthwhile. For some months we have been interested in watching the development of Britten Martin's poultry experiment. However, it now seems to be past the experimental stage. We have just learned that he has a flock of barred rocks, of a particular strain, that is passing through what is known as the B. W. D. Aglutination test. According to the 1931 list of Certified Poultry Breeders of Maryland there were only twelve entire flocks in the State that were certified as having passed through this test by the Department of Bacteriology of the University of Maryland. This test involves a rigid examination of each bird for both breed standard and productive qualities, as well as the inspection of yards, premises and management practices.

Mrs. William T. Burch will deliver an address on "World Peace" at the U. B. church next Sunday evening at 7:30. The public is cordially invited to attend.

This is a subject in relation to which all of us should be deeply concerned. A World War (which many writers believe we are rapidly approaching) would unquestionably mean the end of the present civilization. Mrs. Burch has read widely and thought deeply on this subject and has decidedly constructive views. Her address should be heard by many.

Mrs. E. L. Winchell, who has occupied her delightful summer home, "Journey's End," since early in the spring, left the Park Tuesday for Woodsfield, Ohio, where she will be with relatives during the winter.

Miss Virginia Weeks and Miss Helen Leighton, students at Bowling Green, Ky., are home for the holidays.

Miss Edith Ream, Charlotte Hall Academy instructor, and Mr. Elmus Ream, of Orange, N. J., will arrive home on Thursday.

Mutt Ready, of Chestertown, will be here tomorrow to spend the holidays with his parents.

SOMMERS C. MOSSER

Sommers C. Mosser, aged 75, died at his late residence at Mountain Lake Park on the evening of December 19, after an illness of several months. Mr. Mosser was born near Kempton, January 27, 1857, and spent his entire life in Garrett county. He was a consistent Christian gentleman, a member of Red House Lutheran church, courteous and of a cheerful disposition.

He is survived by his widow and the following children: Berkeley Mosser, of Ohio; Mrs. W. W. Howels, Akron; Mrs. Charles Bet, Bayard; Mrs. Arthur Yutzy, Petersburg, W. Va.; Howard Mosser, Davis; two sisters, Mary Mosser and Priscilla McClary, and three brothers, Eli, James and Wallace.

Funeral services were conducted at Red House Lutheran church on Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The pallbearers were Bud Winters, Wm. Edgar, J. L. Echard, J. E. Chance, C. V. Harvey and H. V. Leighton. The flower girls were Carmenitta Best, Madeline Mosser, Helen Mosser, Virginia Mosser, Hilda Winters, Hilda Roth, Oletta Bennett and Grace Wolf. Rev. Waybright, pastor of Red House church, had charge of the services at the church and interment, which was made in Red House churchyard.

Many Maryland 4-H Club Girls Win in Contests in Chicago

A Howard county girl, Ruth Day of Ellicott City, was one of one hundred winners in the $50,000 agricultural scholarship contests of the International Harvester Company, results of which were announced in connection with the meeting of the National 4-H Club Congress held at the International Live Stock Exposition in Chicago. She was presented with $500 which may be used to defray expenses for a college education.

Dorothy C. Hinder, of Baltimore county, won first place and $25 in a contest for the most complete costume exhibited by a 4-H Club girl, defeating entries from 30 other states. The total cost of the costume was $16.38, including hat, shoes, hose, under garments and other accessories.

Other winners from this State were Miriam Holsinger, Caroline county, second in Window Curtains; Laura Cole, Caroline county, sixth in Children's Garments; Elinore Grier, Harford county, seventh in Cotton Dresses; Hazel Myers, Carroll county, first in Five Jars of Food for Emergency Meal; Elinore Grier, Harford county, fifth in Five Jars of Vegetables rich in Vitamines, and Ruth Grier, Harford county, sixth in Fruits for Winter Salads and Desserts.

In addition $170 in prizes were awarded the Maryland Club girls in a contest sponsored by the Hazel Atlas Glass Company of Wheeling, West Va.

Little Bob's Tree Was Lighted on Christmas...

"There'll be a happy kid at the Smiths tomorrow," said the lineman as he sat down to his late supper.

"They just moved into the old Barker place late tonight and the service was off. A limb had fallen from the big oak and broken the line, and nobody'd noticed it. It looked like young Bob wouldn't have a Christmas tree lighted tomorrow.

"Well, they called us—wanted to know if we could fix the line. I was ready to quit for the day but I didn't mind. You know, I just thought of our own Bill and Ed and it made the work dead easy. I finally got the line spliced and we lighted the tree before I left. Let's trim our own tree now. It's nearly bedtime."

Little Bob's tree sparkled that Christmas morning. Childhood faith in Santa was unshaken because your power company serviceman made it his business to see that the Smiths had electricity that Christmas Eve. Among your neighbors are these men and such tasks find them willing and ready to serve you.

BOYS' BAND GIVES 5TH ANNUAL CONCERT SUNDAY

Is Presented Before Largest Crowd Since Band's First Public Appearance in 1927

MAYOR MAKES SHORT TALK

Before one of the largest crowds ever to pack the Maryland Theatre, the Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band of Oakland presented its fifth annual concert on Sunday evening at 8:45 o'clock including solo numbers, quartet numbers and other specialties by individual members, and a variety of new selections played by the ensemble.

This was the first concert under the direction of Russell Brown, who assumed charge of the organization when Mr. R. R. Gilbert removed from Oakland, and he was praised for his efforts in bringing the organization to its present standing by Mayor Grover C. Stemple, who made a few remarks during a short intermission. The individual members of the band also came in for their share of praise by Mayor Stemple.

Mr. Gilbert, former director of the band, was present, and took his place on the stage with the other members, and also directed one of the marches, while Julius B. Littman, assistant director, also had charge of one number as director. Robert T. Hoffman, drum major, announced the numbers on the program.

The program consisted of four marches, an overture, a descriptive selection, "Songs from the Old Folks," a cornet solo by Elvin Iman and a saxophone solo by Howard Rathbun.

Both solo numbers were given encores. Others having special parts in the program included solos by John McIntire, James Treacy, Jack Treacy, Hugh Teets; quartet by Irving Broadwater, Jack Treacy, Kenneth Lawton and James Treacy, and an obligato to the Washington Post march by Chas. Tusing, Donald Stemple, Harley Dawson, trombones, and James Treacy, baritone.

The concert was entirely free to the public, the use of the Maryland Theatre being donated through the courtesy of Bernard I. Gonder, manager. Flowers for decorations were furnished by The H. Weber & Sons Co.

Members of the band and guest members formerly belonging to the organization but now away from home, who played in the concert, ineluded the following:

Cornets—Irving Broadwater, Elvin Iman, Hugh Teets, Jack Treacy, Logan Weber, Joseph Sollars, John McIntire, Laural Whipkey, Richard Davis, William Glotfelty, Lorraine Weeks, Lloyd Liller.

Clarinets—S. H. Jackson, George Kerins, Bond Weber, Lambers Ramsey, Howard Naylor, Austin McRobie, Roland R. Gilbert.

Piccolos—Maurice Treacy and William Boardman.

Horns—Kenneth Lawton, Jack Weber, Paul Fazzalari.

Trombones—Charles Tusing, Donald Stemple, Harley Dawson.

Baritones—James Treacy, Robert Lawton, Lewis Lawton.

Basses—Arthur Lawton, Frank Lyon, Harry Cogley, Joseph Welch.

Saxophones—Regis Kerins, Lewis Jones, Stuart Hamill, Fred. Peddicord, Carroll Casteel, George Stuck, Leonard Murphy, Julius Littman, Walter Dawson, Howard Rathbun.

Percussions—James Nordeck, Thos. Compton, Humbird Offutt, Gerald Iman, Harry Stemple, Robert Lohr.

The band was organized in March of 1927 and gave its first public concert within the same year.

Held on Chicken Stealing Charge

Cecil Rosenberger and Raymond Ream are being held under $500 bond each for the action of the March Grand Jury on the charge of stealing chickens from Thomas Wagner, near Avilton. They were arrested last week and given a hearing before W. A. Gonder, justice of the peace, on Saturday.

Thefts Reported

Several thefts from automobiles were reported as having occurred on Christmas Eve on the streets of Oakland.

Clothing, toys and food, placed in automobiles by last-minute Christmas shoppers, would be found missing when people were ready to depart for their homes. No clues as to the identity of the thief or thieves have been found.

HEALTH DOCTOR GUARDING AGAINST SCARLET FEVER

One New Case Develops in Family Already Quarantined

Only one new case of scarlet fever has developed within the past week, according to Dr. George E. Clarke, county health officer, who last week reported four cases of the disease at Mountain Lake Park. This case developed in a family already quarantined, so that there is no immediate danger of the spread of the disease from this source.

"Scarlet fever," the doctor said yesterday, "is a disease of childhood and is transmitted from one child to another by direct contact. A child having scarlet fever is a dangerous menace when allowed to mingle with other children. He should be quarantined for a period of at least 21 days in order to protect other children of the community. In addition to that, all the children in that particular household should be quarantined an additional seven days in order to be sure that they have not contracted the disease.

"The cases in Mountain Lake Park have resulted from the fact that one case of scarlet fever was not reported, was not quarantined, but was allowed to mingle with other children after being kept at home only a few days.

"If the people of Garrett county will cooperate with the county health officer and keep their children in during the quarantine period, they will have no fear of any serious epidemic. Children in Mountain Lake Park school are examined at frequent intervals and any who show signs of scarlet fever are excluded from school and watched to determine the outcome.

"The first symptoms of scarlet fever are sore throat and fever, followed in 24 hours by a rash on the chest. I advise all parents to watch their children carefully and at the first sign of sore throat, call your family physician," he concluded.

LOCAL QUINT DEFEATED BY DAVIS TEAM 31 TO 17

Oakland Team Swamped in Second Half by Strong Offense

Oakland independent basketball quint was defeated Tuesday night by the Independent team of Davis, West Va., 31 to 17, at Davis. The Oakland team held their opponents to a 12-9 lead at the end of the first half, but an offense, centering around Kramer, six foot four inch pivot man of the Davis aggregation left the locals far behind in the final frame.

Graves, with three field goals and one foul, led the Oakland scoring, while Kramer, with four field goals and three fouls, was high point man for Davis. He was followed closely by Clark who had four field goals to his credit. A return game will be played in Oakland in the near future.

The lineup and summary:

Oakland-17		Davis-31
Graves	F	Harmon
Glotfelty	F	Ruckel
McComas	C	Kramer
Nally	G	Golightly
Hanst	G	Golish

Substitutions—Davis, Idem for Harmon, Clark for Ruckel, Tewell for Clark, Chaplin for Golightly, M. Golightly for Golish.

Field goals—Oakland, Graves 3, Glotfelty 1, Nally 1, Hanst 2. Davis—Harmon 1, Ruckel 3, Kramer 4, Golightly 1, Golish 1, Clark 4.

Foul goals—Oakland, Graves 1-1, Glotfelty 0-1, Nally 1-2, Hanst 1-6. Davis, Kramer 3-6, Golightly 0-2, Golish 0-2, Clark 0-4, M. Golightly 0-2.

Man Soliciting Funds Pretending to Represent Garrett County Welfare Association

Reports have been received in Oakland from various parts of the county that a man representing himself as a collector for the Garrett County Welfare Association, has been soliciting funds for the relief of forty-nine destitute in this county.

This solicitor ha snot been authorized by any member of the Garrett County Relief Committee to solicit for it, but belongs to an organization in Meyersdale, Pa. This Pennsylvania organization claims that it is aiding numerous families in Garrett county. So far it has not reported the names of any of these families to members of the Garrett County Relief Committee.

The Central Committee of Garrett county urges that all residents of the county support its own local organization in carrying on the relief work of the county rather than aiding some organization outside of the State.

HOME HYGIENE CLASSES WILL START IN JANUARY

Will Be Conducted Under Direction of County Health Unit

Starting the first Monday in January, members of the Garrett County Health Unit have scheduled Home Hygiene classes for the various communities over the county. These classes will continue from January to June, and will meet every two weeks.

The Home Hygiene classes are a result of the work of the Amerian Red Cross. Local contributions to the Red Cross have made these classes possible in Garrett county. The course which is given in the afternoon from 2:00 to 4:00 on the scheduled days will include such topics as: "How to Keep Well;" "Planning a Healthful Home;" "How to Handle, Bathe, Dress, and Feed Babies and Small Children;" "Care of the Sick in the Home;" and "The Promotion and Protection of Community Health."

Mrs. Harold Dawson is chairman of this work for the Red Cross.

No fees are charged in connection with these classes, but the members are asked and urged to purchase the Red Cross Text Book at the nominal sum of eighty-nine cents. This merely covers the cost of printing and binding the book. These books are the property of the members of the classes and will be found helpful in every day care of the home.

The following is the list of January meetings:

Rosedale, January 4-18; Vindex, January 5-19; Loch Lynn, January 6-20; Sunnyside, January 7-21; Crellin, January 8-22; Oakland, January 11-25; Friendsville, January 12-26; Grantsville, January 13-27; Deer Park, January 14-28; Kitzmiller, January 15-29.

To Hold New Year's Eve Dance

The annual bazar under the auspices of St. Peter's Catholic church will continue this evening with a New Year's Eve dance in Naylor's hall, on Third street. The Legion drum and bugle corps will attend in uniform and selections will be rendered during intermission. A grand assembly will take place at the close of the old year and the beginning of the new.

Stolen Automobile Recovered

The Oldsmobile car belonging to Mr. Henry M. Speicher, of Accident, which was stolen from in front of his home in that town on Sunday evening, December 20, was found several days later at Wierton, West Va., abandoned. There was no clue as to the identity of the thief or thieves, and when found the car was minus its 1932 license plates.

Mr. Speicher went to Wierton last Wednesday and drove the car home.

Rev. Middaugh Chosen Executive Secretary of Tableland

Rev. I. S. Middaugh of Mt. Lake Park has been appointed as executive secretary of the Allegheny Tableland association, it has been announced.

The directors and officials of the Tableland association will meet in Pittsburgh on January 9, at the University club, with Dr. Reitell, chairman of the Greater Pennsylvania Council, and lay before him the opportunities and resources of the tableland area as a project to be developed by the council.

The Pennsylvania council was set up by the Legislature and Governor Pinchot of that state.

Fined For Driving Without License

Harry O. VanSickle, Lawrence Uphold and Sidney Ryland, of Friendsville, were arrested at different times last Wednesday and Thursday by Corporal Thomas E. Currie of the State police, on charges of operating automobiles without the proper licenses. At hearings before J. W. Holman, justice of the peace at Friendsville, each were fined $10 and costs after pleading guilty to the charges preferred.

VanSickle was also fined $5 and costs for the use of improper tags.

E. R. Jones To Address Rotary

E. Ray Jones will be the speaker at the weekly meeting of the Oakland Rotary club tomorrow evening at the William-James hotel. His subject will be on "The New Year."

Approximately 750 boys and girls were given oranges and candy at the Rotary treat under the community Christmas tree on last Thursday afternoon.

MT. LAKE PARK INSTITUTE TO ORGANIZE AT MEETING

Board of Directors Representing Various Groups To Have Opening Session On Monday

PROGRAM IS OUTLINED

The first meeting of the Mountain Lake Park Institute will be held on Monday, January 4, at 2 o'clock in the office of the county agent, court house, Oakland. This will be an organization meeting, and rules and regulations for the institute will be drawn up. A tentative program to be carried out at Mt. Lake Park this summer will also be presented for approval. A farmers jubilee is listed among the events, and practically all of last year's religious programs will be retained.

This program has been presented to Nat T. Frame, director of Extension division of West Virginia university, and after being approved by him and the Institute board of directors, it will be sent to Dr. T. B. Symons, director of the Maryland Extension work.

Members of the board of directors will include Rev. I. S. Middaugh, program director; Miss Sara B. Huff, West Virginia Extension service; J. H. Carter, Maryland Extension service; O. T. Graser, Maryland department vocational agriculture; H. A. Loraditch, Garrett county schools; F. R. Utterback, acting mayor of Mt. Lake Park; Frank E. Baker, Mt. Lake Park Association; George D. Browning, Oakland, representing the citizens of the county; Rev. W. B. Brock, Mt. Top Ministerial Association; J. B. Watson, Confluence, Allegheny Tableland association; and a member of the Oakland Rotary club, to be elected.

"If the budget from the county has been subscribed by that time as required by Dr. Symons," Rev. Middaugh said, "then the approved program will be made definite and work will begin. Miss Huff was in Mt. Lake Park last Saturday preparing a tentative community music program, and it is hoped that her headquarters will be at Mt. Lake after February 1." Miss Huff is said to be considering a pre-season festival at Deep Creek Lake.

Summer residents of the Park have been responding to a letter sent out recently asking that a budget be raised for carrying out a full program there from early spring to late fall, and people of Garrett count are also being asked to contribute small amounts towards this work.

The committee serving as the Board of Directors of the Park, the members of which will have charge of arranging the program and administering the budget, was named following the meeting at the Court House on Friday, December 18, in which both extension departments of Maryland and West Virginia pledged full cooperation, if the proposition was given adequate support.

Cars Collide at Corner of Second and Oak Streets

No one was injured, but both cars were damaged to some extent when Coy Bell, of Wildwood, Pa., driving a Dodge coupe, collided with the Ford coupe, being driven by Mrs. Samuel Cole, county health nurse, at the corner of Second and Oak streets Monday at noon.

Bell was going west on Oak street and had just crossed the bridge spanning the Baltimore and Ohio railway tracks. Mrs. Cole was turning east into Oak street from Second street when the collision occurred. Damage to the extent of about $35 was done to Mrs. Cole's car, both fenders, the running board and door on the left side being smashed, while the frame and axle of the Dodge car were bent and one fender was smashed.

Union Watch-Night Service Is Planned for This Evening

A union Watch-Night service has been planned by the churches of Oakland and will be held on Thursday evening, beginning at 11 o'clock and ending with the stroke of 12, in St. Mark's Lutheran churh.

The combined choirs will have charge of the music. Seven girls will present the pageant of light. Rev. D. C. Trimble, rector of St. Matthew's Episcopal church, will be the speaker. Rev. W. B. Brock will preside, assisted by Rev. J. W. Dawson and Rev. C. A. Shilke.

FIRE-DAMAGED WAINGOLD GARAGE BOUGHT BY TOWN

Sold for State and County Taxes In Arrear by Treasurer Lee

At a sale of property conducted by former County Treasurer Albert L. Lee for State and county taxes due and in arrear, the Waingold Garage property, which was almost completely destroyed by fire of undetermined origin several weeks ago, was purchased by the Mayor and Town Council for a sum approximating $700, which covered the tax bill for three years held by Mr. Lee. In addition to the State and County taxes, the owner of the property owed the town a like amount in back taxes.

What disposition the municipal authorities will make of the property has not been announced.

The lots purchased have a frontage of about 130 feet on Liberty street and abut on an alley in the rear.

While the building was about two-thirds destroyed by the fire, the Liberty street front with some of the side walls are still standing and can be repaired at few hundred dollars' expense and made tenable for certain purposes.

STATE FORESTER URGES WOODLAND IMPROVEMENT

State Woodland Production Could be Speeded up 300 Percent

Increased effort is to be made by the State Department of Forestry during the winter months in interesting private woodland owners of Maryland in improving their woodlands. For a number of years the personnel of the State Forestry Department has assisted woodland owners by careful examination of forested areas, and the preparation of accurate management reports, enabling owners to handle their timber along improved lines. Acording to the State Forester, there are many tracts of woodland in Maryland that can be greatly improved by thinning out some of the tree growth and utilizing inferior trees which are now retarding the growth of the forest. Mr. Besley explained that Maryland is cutting her timber one-tenth faster than it grows and is importing lumber and forest products from other states in twice the quantity produced by home woodlands. "Thus, it is possible and necessary that the production of Maryland woodlands be speeded up nearly 300 per cent. Maryland forests are now producing 64,271,480 cubic feet of wood annually, but through proper management could be made to produce 156,887,540 cubic feet. This would mean an increased annual income to Maryland woodland owners of 35 million dollars."

Lutheran Sunday School Elects Its Officers

St. Mark's Lutheran Sunday school elected the following officers for 1932 last Sabbath morning: Bert M. Welch, superintendent; Prof. Ervin Smith, assistant superintendent; Donald R. Sincell, primary superintendent; Miss Elizabeth Leary, assistant; Mrs. Karl Kahl, secretary-treasurer; Jas. Nordeck, assistant; Mrs. H. A. Loraditch, organist; Miss Margaret Stoffle, assistant; Miss Grace Falkenstein, pianist; Miss May Lee, assistant; Mrs. J. M. Falkenstein, superintendent home department; Mrs. Stanley Stahl, superintendent cradle roll; Sehell Hoye, librarian.

Bystander Discloses Real Christmas Spirit

A story from a bystander who watched the following incident reveals that the Christmas spirit is far from dead.

On Christmas Eve a man spent his last five dollars for some food and toys for his family. He placed them in his car near Helbig's mill and left them. When he returned they had been stolen, and he reported the theft to Officer T. E. Currie, of the State police.

After perhaps five or ten minutes of upbraiding the gentleman for leaving his car unlocked with all these packages inside, (which the bystander overheard) Officer Currie, when he learned that the man had no more money with which to buy toys for his children, handed over some bills from his own pocket, with a "Merry Christmas to you." This fact was admitted reluctantly by Officer Currie when cornered in The Republican office on Tuesday, and he added, "I spent a happier Christmas because of it, too."

MISSING ARMY FLIER MAY HAVE CRASHED IN COUNTY

Motorist On Route 50 Reports Having Seen Wreckage, But Investigators Find Nothing

WAS LAST SEEN DEC. 24

A motorist driving along route 50 on Tuesday and reporting that he had seen what he believed to be the wreckage of an airplane along the highway between Keyser and Red House, created the possibility that Lieutenant E. H. Bobbitt, missing army pilot, had crashed in Garrett county.

The report reached Boiling Field, Washington, and authorities immediately asked authorities of Keyser, W. Va., and Garrett county, Md., to investigate. The motorist could not give a definite location.

The officer stationed in Keyser searched along the road in West Virginia territory, while Corporal T. E. Currie, of the State police, stationed at Oakland, searched along the highway from Red House to the state line, but were unable to locate anything that would lead to the verification of the reported wreck. Officer Currie stated that he believed the report to be erroneous.

The neighboring country in Garrett, Mineral, Grant and Pocohontas counties is only sparsely settled at many points and the possibility of finding a wrecked plane is meagre. With snow in some sections, any wreckage might not be seen for several months, especially from the air. Officials believe it quite possible that the plane may have crashed somewhere near here as it refueled at Uniontown, Pa., and has not been located since.

Corporal McClumb, West Virginia State police officer, stated that he had reports from Mt. Storm, Grant county, from two residents there that on Friday evening they had seen a plane flying about 150 feet from the ground, and the pilot was apparently looking for a place to land, and the motor semed to be missing fire.

Corporal McClumb also stated that earlier in the afternoon of Friday a plane stopped at Gormania to refuel. The plane answered the description of the lost ship.

The army flier left Selfridge Field, Mich., December 24 to fly to his home in Hot Springs, Va., and a wide search for the plane was instituted when he failed to appear. Aerial searching parties have been sent out from Boiling Field, and many others have searched on foot the forests around Elkins, W. Va., Marlinton, W. Va., and Hot Springs, Va., but after six days the mountains still concealed his fate.

B. O. Winkler, of New Albany, Indiana, was the man reporting that he had seen the wreckage of an airplane near the State boundary. Discovery of a wrecked plane along Keyser's Ridge, this county, by fliers from Boiling Field, led to the belief that a clue to Bobbitt's fate had been found, but later it was learned the wreckage was that of a civilian ship that fell two years ago.

Little hope is held for the discovery alive of the young officer. His parents posted a reward of $500 for the finding of his body. Army pilots and foot searchers will continue to look for the wrecked plane and its pilot.

Real Winter Fails To Arrive

Except for Sunday morning following Christmas when the thermometer dropped to 10 degrees above zero, and Christmas morning, when the ground was covered with a light snow, the winter weather which the weather man said was due to arrive failed to materialize, and Garrett county continues to remain in mild fall classification.

Only the calender, with its usual mathematical precision, realized it was late December, nature getting its dates mixed and behaving like spring in many places on the North American continent.

Although no check-up of figures has been made as yet, it was announced at the Government weather station at Weber that December of 1931 would probably be one of the warmest December months on record.

While baseball was being played in Minnesota, lawns are being mowed in Chicago, and pansies were being picked from flower gardens in Oakland during the past week.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Member of Faculty, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)
(©, 1931, Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for January 3

THE SON OF GOD BECOMES MAN

LESSON TEXT—John 1:1-18.
GOLDEN TEXT—Jesus saith unto him, Have I been so long time with you, and yet hast thou not known me, Philip? He that hath seen me hath seen the Father; and how sayest thou then, Shew us the Father?
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Comes to Live on Earth.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Comes to Live on Earth.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Seeing God in Jesus.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Fact and Meaning of the Incarnation.

The lessons for this quarter are taken from the Gospel of John, giving an opportunity for the presentation of this great message from God. In order intelligently to present the lessons of the quarter, the teacher must get hold of John's central purpose and bend every lesson thereto. Happily the writer has plainly declared his purpose—John 20:30, 31. It is twofold:

1. To prove that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God.

2. To show that eternal life is to be obtained through faith in him.

With this twofold objective, John proceeds lawyer-like to lay down his propositions and to introduce his witnesses one by one in their establishment. The section for today's lesson is commonly called "The Prologue."

I. The Pre-existent Word (vv. 1-4).

The eternal Son is called the Word of God because he is the expression of God to man. He is the one who utters to men the Father's will. God has in these days spoken to us by his Son (Heb. 1:1, 2). Observe:

1. The son is a person separate and distinct from the Father (v. 1). There is at the same time an inseparable union existing between them.

2. The Son is eternal (v. 2). He was with God in the beginning. He did not begin to exist when the heavens and the earth were created, neither did he become the Son at his baptism, for he was before all things (Col. 1:17).

3. The Son is divine (v. 1). "The Word was God." He is a being equal with God and one in essence with him.

4. The Word of God is the omnipotent Creator (v. 3). By him were all things made, the world and all things therein. This refutes the gross error which postulates the eternity of matter.

5. The Word is the source of all life (v. 4).

6. The Word of God is the light of men (v. 4). Man's power to reason has come from Jesus Christ. The very faculties which the skeptic uses in his attempt to destroy Christ's work in the world have been derived from Christ. The conscience has its source in him.

II. The World's Attitude Toward the Word of God (vv. 5-13).

1. Men are insensible to the presence of the true light (vv. 5-10). So dense is the ignorance of mankind that the presence of the very Lord of Glory is unrecognized. Being thus unrecognized, God, in his grace, sent John the Baptist as a witness that all men might believe (vv. 6, 7). Man's ignorance can only be accounted for by the malicious blinding of his mind by the Devil (II Cor. 4:4).

2. The desperate wickedness of man's heart (v. 11). The Word was rejected by the chosen nation. They would not receive the one whom God had anointed to be their King. With the self-revealing light, the earnest testimony of John the Baptist, and the glorious privilege of becoming the sons of God, the rejection of Christ most certainly reveals the awful perversity of the human heart in its natural state. "To be carnally minded is death" (Rom. 8:6).

3. Some received Christ and thus became sons of God (vv. 12, 13). In this section we are shown how men become children of God. It is not by blood relation with the covenant people, "of blood" (grace is not inherited); not by the efforts of our natural hearts, "the will of the flesh"; nor by the acts and deeds of others—"the will of man; but of God."

III. The Eternal Word Became Incarnate, "Made Flesh" (vv. 14-18).

In these words we are taught that the eternal Word became the Incarnate Son. The eternal Son of God became man, born of a woman. The eternal Son did not become a Jew, but "flesh." He designated himself "the Son of Man." He became really human. The eternal personality did not cease or become modified in any way when he entered upon human relation. The human and divine natures were united in one person. This incarnate Son of God tabernacled among us.

WORDS OF WISDOM

Ignorance is "drinkness," education is "light."

God's "minorities" will overwhelm the devil's "majorities."

Sin is "international," "interdenominational," and "nonsectarian."

"When every other way of escape from temptation seems closed, try the gate of praise."

The New Leaf

By CHARLES F. WADSWORTH

KENTON MARSAYE sat in a big red leather chair in his club looking over the evening paper.

As he finished and folded it up to replace on the table, his eye caught the cartoon on the front page. It was of a little figure representing the New Year turning a leaf of a big book. At the top of the page was "January 1," and the rest of the page was blank except for a question mark in the center.

Marsaye loked at it momentarily and tossed the paper aside.

"A new leaf!", he said to himself contemptuously. "Hooey!"

Walking to the window, he looked down upon the street. He seemed restless. To friends who spoke to him and wished him a happy New Year he returned an unenthusiastic reply—almost casual.

Seating himself, again he took up the paper and noted the cartoon. The paper lay neross his knee as he sank into a thoughtful mood.

"People make a big fuss about turning over a new leaf at New Year's," was his comment to himself. "But why should I turn over a new leaf? I am not a swindler nor a cheat, nor

"That You, Sally?"

ple seem to respect me, and I try to do others as I should like to be done by."

When he got to the last part of his soliloquy he seemed more thoughtful.

A whole volume of things popped into his mind.

There was LaLand, his bookkeeper, whom he had criticized caustically the morning he was late last week. LaLand had taken the censure without a word, but Mnranye had learned later that LaLand's wife had been ill and it had been necessary for him to be at home for a while. But LaLand had not been given a chance to explain. Ought to have done so, I suppose.

Then there was Mrs. Melling, who cleaned his office. He had bawled her ont for a seeming neglect. She had meekly taken the abuse. Now Marsaye knew that she had had neuritis in her arm and it had been painful to her to do as well as she had. Funny how things are sometimes, and a fellow not know anything about it!

The time Miss Haseltine, with tears in her eyes, had asked to go home, after he had npbraided her for mistakes necessitating the re-writing of several letters, he had thought a streak of carelessness which he could not tolerate. He had not known then that the girl had had a serious quarrel with her yonng man which affected her almost to the point of incompetence. But he knew now.

NEW YEAR LULLABY

MERRILY the bells are ringing,
Sleep, my baby, sweetly sleep;
Let the message they are bringing,
While my vigil here I keep.
Low and sweet the song I'm singing,
In the flickering candle light
While the New Year bells are ringing,
Sleep, my baby, sleep tonight.

Cheerily the bells are ringing,
Sleep, my baby, smiling sleep;
Joyous bells, their notes are flinging,
Over plain and woodland deep.
Prayers and praise are upward winging,
Stars are shining clear and bright,
While the New Year bells are ringing,
Sleep, my baby, sleep tonight.

By George! And I have not apologized to any of them! I wonder what they think of me?

But Sally, now—the break with her was her own fault. Why, she was stubborn, that's what she was! But was she, though? Sally may have her side of the story, too. I wonder what it is? We were getting on so famously, and I was just about ready to ask her all about it. Got the ring and everything. Why, I believe I have it right here in my pocket! Yes, sir, there it is! And it is a beauty, too!

I wonder what Sally would think if she knew I was here with no one within a thousand miles, spending New Year's eve all by myself—thinking I am the perfect gentleman, and knowing I am not by my own testimony?

A smile crept over his face and his eyes sparkled.

In the telephone booth he called Sally's nnmber.

"That you, Sally? . . . I have decided to turn over a new leaf. . . . I thought that new leaf stuff was a lot of blah, but I have been sitting here at the club thinking it over. . . . Well, I have found myself guilty of impetuosity—of taking snap judgment without knowing the facts—without enough consideration for others. . . . And I want to apologize to you, Sally. I was wrong and I am sure you were right. . . . Do you really mean it? . . . I'll be right out!"

The receiver crashed on the hook. Another glance to see that the ring was safe, and the elevator opened for an elated lover with a new resolve.

ALL RIGHT WITH HIM

He—Did you swear off anything for the New Year?

She—Yes. I'm going to stop petting promiscuously.

He—Don't know the fellow. But as long as you don't cut it out with me, it's O. K.

PRAYERS FOR THE NEW YEAR

FOR NIGHT

SET my heart free from bitterness, O God,
Now it is night—
Free from those unlaid ghosts of hurt and pain
That haunt the light;
Forgive my faults and let me fall asleep,
Now day is through,
And in unbroken peace abide this night
Close unto You.

FOR MORNING

Let me not look behind night's pause of peace,
Now it is day;
With courage and with joy let me go forth
Anew, I pray;
Resolved that I will strive, as my strength is,
To do my part,
Each hour with kindness, and sincerity,
And a high heart!

Old Time New Years

IT SEEMS strange to remember that before the Civil war there was no real conversation among casual acquaintances. Men and young women of promise spent the several hours playing silly games. Dress rehearsing was hailed with delight as the time for making new resolutions, accidentally, but chiefly hopefully, for making matches.

There was little formation of opinion as the home and theater crowds [illegible] were suppering. Stories [illegible] the point and increased the desire to furnish means whereby the girls could visit their escorts in quest of suitable [illegible] for the great event.

taxen clubbed and hired what were then known as hacks and there were private tandems which lent a dashing effect. The happy day having arrived, what bliss there was in discussing the beaux and belles and the Chapel "fixings"! The party dresses of that day were of Swiss muslin with a double skirt, and also of a material called tarlatan, of varying degrees of quality, often displaying long trains trimmed with satin ribbon and braids. Whether the material was white or some of the reds, pinks or blues, they were lovely creations.

The men were busy making a living and the day's pleasure often emptied their pocketbooks, but it was considered well worth while. Now and then a pair of shoulder straps loomed among the callers and filled to the climax a day long to be remembered. These recurring gayeties naturally gave the country village something to talk about and there was a demand for better raiment for men and women.

Information concerning it was well met by Peterson's and Godey's magazines with colored plates and fine suggestions, which had never before been [illegible] might rely.—Indianapolis News.

Sacred to Janus

A legendary Roman king, Numa, it is said, established the first of January as the beginning of the year and made the day sacred to Janus, a mythological deity who was represented with two faces, one that of an old man peering into the past, the other that of a youth facing gleamingly the future.

CHRISTMAS WEEK A BUSY ONE FOR MARRIAGE CLERK

Forty-Five Permits Are Issued, Bringing Total to 1354

Christmas wasn't an especially popular day when it came to applying for marriage licenses at the office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court, but Thursday, the 24th, and Saturday, the 26th, were busy ones for the Clerk and his deputies.

A total of 45 licenses were issued during the week ending Monday at noon, the busiest days divided as follows: The 21st, 10; 24th, 15; Christmas Day, 2; 26th, 11. This number brings the total for the month of December thus far to 100, and the total for the year to date to 1,354, 54 more than for the entire year of 1930.

Ten licenses issued were marked "don't publish," while one applicant was refused a permit.

SCOOP'S COLUMN

RESOLVED—

By Scoop Himself

Realizing that all resolutions of weak-minded people only are made to be broken, I hereby resolve to carry out the following (showing that I have will power, whether you have it or not):

To write this column every week.

To wash at least once a week, whether I need it or not.

To go to bed at nights.

To get up in the mornings.

All other resolutions will be kept secret, so you won't to be able to convict me of breach of promise on anything but circumstantial evidence.

My crop of Christmas cards was not much of a success, paying dividends of only about 50 per cent. I sent out over one hundred and only got 59 in return, which is a poor return on your investment, if you ask me. But why ask me? However, I got several presents I wasn't expecting, which more than made up the difference.

Some of the cards were so sentimental I spent Christmas Eve weeping on the shoulders of my brother-in-law, Archibaldson.

"My Christmas ship is sailing right up the Youghiogheny today, and loaded to the deck with heaps and heaps of good wishes," says one of them. It must have wrecked about 88 bridge, for it hasn't reahed port yet.

And here's another one: "When the firelight flickers on Christmas Eve and you glance into the coals, remember I'm thinking of the socks you've bung up—all full of holes."

"May your home be filled with Christmas cheer and remain throughout the coming year." If "Christmas cheer" had been in quotation marks I would have thought that the card was from one bootlegger rival to another, meaning of course that he hoped he wouldn't have any sale for his stuff.

Another beautiful sentiment—"May sweet content with you abound until you're six feet underground."

"Here's a happy little greeting sent you just to say, hope all you've ever wanted will be yours this Christmas day." Well, his hope didn't do so much good, at least it hasn't been fulfilled yet.

Besides 49 with Merry Christmas, 36 with Happy New Year, 15 with prosperity, 51 with health and happiness, 2 with wealth, 6 with contentment, 19 with joy and 28 with cheer.

People were sitting on Ikey's bench in front of the store on last Wednesday evening, December 23, and the next day a fly started buzzing around my head while I was at my labors before the typewriter. Being out of practice, it took me three swats to get him.

Had 'Em Then, Too

From Forty Years Ago Paper—"Much annoyance has heretofore been caused to ladies attending the Catholic Fair in Offutt's Hall, by youngsters of a low degree standing at the head of the stairway. Ladies, in order to enter the hall, have been obliged to run the gauntlet."

If the names of the youngsters had been published then what a surprise might have been in store for us. Why, the mayor of the town might have been in that bunch.

And yet, the youth of today is going to the dogs! Sez you.

DENTAL PROFESSION FACTS AND FALLACIES

Endeavor To Improve Mouth Health Conditions a Task

Speaking of the tasks confronting the dental profession in its endeavors to improve mouth health conditions, Dr. Richard C. Leonard, Chief of the Division of Oral Hygiene of the Maryland State Department of Health, said: "One of the tasks facing the dental profession is to overcome the superstitions and wrong ideas that people have about their teeth. As in other superstition, there is no scientific foundation for these beliefs.

"For instance, one will repeatedly hear the statement, 'the birth of every child costs a mother a tooth.' Years ago the lack of proper diet and dental care did play havoc with the expectant mother's teeth. But if a proper pre-natal diet is followed and especial care—both at home and by the family dentist—is taken, there is no need of any dental trouble and certainly no occasion for the loss of a tooth.

"Another fallacy is that it is dangerous to have an expectant mother's teeth treated or filled. To do so is wrongly supposed to risk some dental disored in the child. This belief has caused many women to suffer from toothache for weeks and months. This is unnecessary. Teeth can be treated and filled, except in rare cases, up until a month or few weeks prior to the child's birth, not merely without endangering the child but, to the contrary, safeguarding the mother's health.

"Perhaps the worst fallacy concerning the teeth is the widespread belief that care of (filling) the first or baby teeth is unnecessary and unimportant. This belief is absolutely wrong. First, because baby teeth are body organs with particular tasks to perform. Their neglect hinders the performance of these tasks. Second, neglect can result in their becoming a source of body infection through abscesses at their roots. (Yes, contrary to the belief of many, baby teeth do have roots.) Finally, the neglect of the first baby teeth may necessitate their extraction and later result in 'crooked' permanent teeth.

"Baby teeth are expected to serve their purpose until a child is ten or eleven years of age. To fulfill this expectation they must be examined regularly, cleaned regularly and treated and filled as occasion demands. Take care of the baby teeth.

"Still another mistake made by many parents is in regard to the so-called six year molars. These four teeth, which erupt between five and seven years of age, in line with, but back of the baby teeth, are permanent teeth. They erupt usually before any of the baby teeth are normally shed. They are permanent, not baby teeth.

"These teeth are of particular importance not only as grinders of food but as regulators of the position of the other permanent teeth. Many parents can scarcely believe so young a child has other than baby teeth, especially, as is so often said 'when no baby teeth have come out.' But make no mistake. They are permanent teeth and if lost through neglect will never be replaced by succeeding teeth."

HOYES

Christmas week passed quickly, the majority of the absent ones going to their homes for Christmas Day.

Miss Sudie Friend, Mt. Lake Park, is visiting her sister, Mrs. J. A. DeWitt, and Miss Elizabeth DeWitt, student at Romney, W. Va., who is home with her parents.

Webb DeWitt, who is assistant railway mail clerk, returned to his home here on Christmas night after having spent ten days in Washington, D. C., and Grafton, W. Va.

Milton DeWitt and family spent Christmas Day with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Coddington at Weber.

Guy Harvey and family were visiting Mrs. Harvey's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Callis, last Sunday.

Mrs. Hallie Custer, Mrs. Horace R. DeWitt and Mrs. Belva Keller are among those ill at this time. Mrs. Keller is still in a serious condition.

D. Earle Smith, Loulsville, Ky., arrived home Sunday and spent Christmas week with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Brenneman and little son were visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Webb DeWitt Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Burl Ayers, Washington, D. C., and Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Smith, Oakland, all spent several days of the Christmas week with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Smith, at this place.

Dr. Collins and Dr. DeHess, Uniontown, Pa., and Mr. and Mrs. Paul DeWitt, of Oakland, were guests on Christmas Day of Mr. and Mrs. D. O. DeWitt.

Mrs. Boyd Paugh and little daughter, Deer Park, spent several days last week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Asa Friend.

SCOOP'S COLUMN

RESOLVED

By Scoop HImself

Realizing that all resolutions of weak-minded people only are made to be broken, I hereby resolve to carry out the following (showing that I have will power, whether you have it or not):

To write this column every week.

To wash at least once a week, whether I need it or not.

To go to bed at nights.

To get up in the mornings.

All other resolutions will be kept secret, so you won't to be able to convict me of breach of promise on anything but circumstantial evidence.

My crop of Christmas cards was not much of a success, paying dividends of only about 50 per cent. I sent out over one hundred and only got 59 in return, which is a poor return on your investment, if you ask me. But why ask me? However, I got several presents I wasn't expecting, which more than made up the difference.

Some of the cards were so sentimental I spent Christmas Eve weeping on the shoulders of my brother-in-law, Archibaldson.

"My Christmas ship is sailing right up the Youghiogheny today, and loaded to the deck with heaps and heaps of good wishes," says one of them. It must have wrecked about 88 bridge, for it hasn't reahed port yet.

And here's another one: "When the firelight flickers on Christmas Eve and you glance into the coals, remember I'm thinking of the socks you've hung up—all full of holes."

"May your home be filled with Christmas cheer and remain throughout the coming year." If "Christmas cheer" had been in quotation marks I would have thought that the card was from one bootlegger rival to another, meaning of course that he hoped he wouldn't have any sale for his stuff.

Another beautiful sentiment—"May sweet content wlth you abound until you're six feet underground."

"Here's a happy little greeting sent you just to say, hope all you've ever wanted will be yours this Christmas day." Well, his hope didn't do so much good, at least it hasn't been fulfilled yet.

Besides 49 with Merry Christmas, 36 with Happy New Year, 15 with prosperity, 51 with health and happiness, 2 with wealth, 6 with contentment, 19 with joy and 28 with cheer.

People were sitting on Ikey's bench in front of the store on last Wednesday evening, December 23, and the next day a fly started buzzing around my head while I was at my labors before the typewriter. Being out of practice, it took me three swats to get him.

The Amalgamated Society members declare that that ice cream treat last week must have been very potent to make us get the paper out on Tuesday.

The fastest five minutes I ever spent was when I talked to South Dakota on Sunday night. And the most expensive five minutes, for that matter—but it was worth it.

Doc Henry looked all over Ikey Sincell's store for a package of his last Thursday night and found it under his arm when he was almost home.

I don't like those things you drink for what ails you that fizz in your face. And I half suspect that Bet Dawson put something extra in it because he said it was the only time he could get even for the things I say about him in this column.

Archibaldson got a suit of underthings, uppers size 34, lowers size 40, with a card, "To the lad wlth the small shoulders and underslung chest."

Bus Iman and Howard Rathbun have already been receiving a lot of fan mail since their performances the other night at the band concert. All the band and members deserve some.

Since we have the "realtor," the "mortician," the "beautician," the "bootician," thc "psychologist," the "archaelogist," thc "pedicure," it might not be a surprise to see Pin White's truck coming down the street some day with the sign "Pin White and Soup Davis, Truckologists."

Had 'Em Then, Too

From Forty Years Ago Paper—"Much annoyance has heretofore been caused to ladies attending the Catholic Fair in Offutt's Hall, by youngsters of a low degree standing at the head of the stairway. Ladies, in order to enter the hall, have been obliged to run the gauntlet."

If the names of the youngsters had been published then what a surprise might have been in store for us. Why, the mayor of the town might have been in that bunch.

And yet, the youth of today is going to the dogs! Sez you.

DENTAL PROFESSION FACTS AND FALLACIES

Endeavor To Improve Mouth Health Conditions a Task

Speaking of the tasks confronting the dental profession in its endeavors to improve mouth health conditions, Dr. Richard C. Leonard, Chief of the Division of Oral Hygiene of the Maryland State Department of Health, said: "One of the tasks facing the dental profession is to overcome the superstitions and wrong ideas that people have about their teeth. As in other superstition, there is no scientific foundation for these beliefs.

"For instance, one will repeatedly hear the statement, 'the birth of every child costs a mother a tooth.' Years ago the lack of proper diet and dental care did play havoc with the expectant mother's teeth. But if a proper pre-natal diet is followed and especial care—both at home and by the family dentist—is taken, there is no need of any dental trouble and certainly no occasion for the loss of a tooth.

"Another fallacy is that it is dangerous to have an expectant mother's teeth treated or filled. To do so is wrongly supposed to risk some dental disored in the child. This belief has caused many women to suffer from toothache for weeks and months. This is unnecessary. Teeth can be treated and filled, except in rare cascs, up until a month or few weeks prior to the child's birth, not merely without endangering the child but, to the contrary, safeguarding the mother's health.

"Perhaps the worst fallacy concerning the teeth is the widespread belief that care of (filling) the first or baby teeth is unnecessary and unimportant. This belief is absolutely wrong. First, because baby teeth are body organs with particular tasks to perform. Their neglect hinders the performance of these tasks. Second, neglect can result in their becoming a source of body infection through abscesses at their roots. (Yes, contrary to the belief of many, baby teeth do have roots.) Finally, the neglect of the first baby teeth may necessitate their extraction and later result in 'crooked' permanent teeth.

"Baby teeth are expected to serve their purpose until a child is ten or eleven years of age. To fulfill this expectation they must be examined regularly, cleaned regularly and treated and filled as occasion demands. Take care of the baby teeth.

"Still another mistake made by many parents is in regard to the so-called six year molars. These four teeth, which erupt between five and seven years of age, in line with, but back of the baby teeth, are permanent teeth. They erupt usually before any of the baby teeth are normally shed. They are permanent, not baby teeth.

"These teeth are of particular importance not only as grinders of food but as regulators of the position of the other permanent teeth. Many parents can scarcely believe so young a child has other than baby teeth especially, as is so often said 'when no baby teeth have come out.' But make no mistake. They are permanent teeth and if lost through neglect will never be replaced by succeeding teeth."

SOME REAL MUSIC—

Those who attended the fifth annual concert of the Gilbert-Brown Boys' band need no words to tell them of its success. They were there and heard the program.

To those lovers of good music, however, who were so unfortunate as to be unable to crowd into the Maryland theatre, it might be well to let them know what they missed.

The entire program was the best presented during the band's organization. Difficult selections were chosen by Russell Brown, director, for the boys to play, and the approval of the audience shown by their applause, showed how well the boys mastered them. The solo work of individual members, the quartet number, and the obligato parts were excellent.

In short, the 50 members of the organization played a high class program under capable direction, and put out some real music.

An Interesting Fact

ROMAN CATHOLICS IN MARYLAND

This is the second of a series of articles on the Roman Catholic church in the early days of Maryland as a Colony. The next article on the subject will appear in a later issue.

Notwithstanding the danger of being forced into conflict with the civil authorities in England in addition to the active opposition of the strong jesuit Order of his own church, Lord Baltimore continued vigorously to protest against that Order acquiring or holding land directly from the Indians. Indeed, so thoroughly was he imbued with the idea that he was contending for principles which he believed was for the good of the Colony, as well as in the protection of his own rights as proprietary, that perhaps he gave too much credence to rumors, some true and some false, concerning the ultimate plans of the Jesuits.

It was charged, among other things, that the aim of the Order was to create dissatisfaction and split the Colonists into factions to the detriment of Lord Baltimore. The latter, as a defensive move, attempted to prevent the immigration of Jesuits into the Province. This disagreement between the proprietary, on the one hand, and the Church on the other, continued for a period of more than thirty years.

It must be conceded that the contention of the Jesuits, in regard to the direct purchase of land from the Indians, was more or less tenable, for it must be remembered that the proprietary himself or through an official agent, purchased lands from the same source.

There is a certain degree of mystery surrounding this whole affair, even in the light of the great mass of historical references now at hand. Had it not been for the intermeddling of ill-advised partisans on both sides it would appear, even to the casual observer, that the disagreement between the Order and the proprietary should have been sooner settled.

We find in Andrews' Maryland History that as early as 1643, a high authority of the Order wrote to its chief representative in Ameria forbidding the Order to accept and landed property without the consent of Lord Baltimore. In addition, the general of the Order in England expressed his very high ideals, in a letter to Father Knott as follows: "I should be sorry if differences about temporal things placed a hindrance in the way of the conversion of souls." But on account of the very evident hostility on the part of Father Edward Knott, these sentiments were suppressed.

Referring to the period when the Puritans were in control of the Colony, we find that in 152 Roman Catholics were declared ineligible for office or the franchise. Thus, without just cause, (viewing it from the present day angle), and certainly contrary to the spirit, if not the letter of the act concerning religion, the Roman Catholics of the Province were disfranchised. This, of course, was an act of intoleration, committed by a sect which had entered and settled in Maryland at the invitation of its proprietary.

In 1654 a new "Act Concerning Religion was passed, which nullified toleration under the act of 1649, the spirit of which act had obtained in the Province since its founding.

Among other provisions (notwithstanding its general references to "liberty") this last act provided that no one who professed and exercised "the Popish religion, commonly known by the name of the Roman Catholic religion, can be protected in this Province," and denied liberty "to Popery or prelacy" whereby the Anglicans were likewise denied toleration.

Oakland Relief Committee Makes Report; Contributions Received

The Relief Committee for Oakland districts has been very busy distributing clothing and food to the various needy families in the past two weeks, according to A. D. Naylor, chairman. Whenever possible work was secured for those who were aided. The majority seemed to want to work for their donations.

A number of visits were made to homes for the purpose of making an investigation into the needs of applicants in order to better conditions both in making their own way and in bettering their home surroundings. Every effort is being made to aid those who are in need.

People knowing of families or children in need of help should hand the names to any member of the committee, Mr. Naylor stated.

The committee wishes to thank the churches, individuals and the community as a whole for their loyal support and generous donations. Any other donations to be made to this district committee may be left at the store of A. D. Naylor & Co. or at the building on the corner of Wilson and Liberty streets, which will be open on Tuesday and Thursday mornings.

The following have made contributions of clothing, food and money since the last report:

Samuel D. Beachy, Mrs. Elsie Deems, Mrs. Jesse Ashby, Mrs. Arthur Naylor, A. J. Martin, Mrs. C. A. Tower, Bert Welch, Mrs. Cecil Smith, Miss Katherine Kirwan, Mrs. B. H. Sincell's Sunday school class of St. Mark's Lutheran church; S. W. Slabach, Mrs. H. A. Loraditch's Sunday school class of St. Mark's church; the Gortner Sewing Circle, Beginners' Sunday school class of St. Mark's church; Mrs. A. H. Beckman, Ray Arnold, T. W. Casteel, Mrs. Alma Hansen, Miss Rebecca Thayer, I. M. Nine, Mrs. A. T. Shaw, Prof. Bittle, Prof. E. S. Smith, Mrs. A. L. Lee, H. A. Loraditch, J. M. Falkenstein, A. G. Cullers, J. A. DeBerry, Presbyterian Sunday school, S. J. Lichty, Girl Scouts of Oakland, Jonas Knox.

Contributions have also been received from some who have requested that their names be not published.

Four Youths Sent Back to Dayton (O.) Juvenile Court.

Four youths have been sent to the Juvenile Court, Dayton, Ohio, as a result of their arrest a few weeks ago in Garrett county on a charge of transporting a stolen automobile from one state to another.

The youths were arrested on Thursday, December 3, on the road between Grantsville and Oakland and were arraigned in Cumberland before U. S. Commissioner Thomas J. Anderson. Corporal Thomas E. Currie of the State Police, stationed at Oakland, arrested the four boys and took them to Cumberland where they entered a plea of guilty.

The youths identified themselves as Paul V. Seiple, 16; Stanley Blaine Stidam, 16; Albert D. Dillavon, 17, and Herbert L. Southerly, 19. The automobile belonged to Southerly's stepfather.

The boys said they were on their way east to obtain employment.

Oakland Workers Sew For Cause of Needy

Members of the Oakland Civic Club and others interested in the relief work of the county, are meeting in the Grand Jury room of the Court House in Oakland several afternoons and evenings each week for the purpose of sewing and making over old garments, piecing quilts from scraps of old clothing, for distribution by the various district relief committees.

All old clothing is thoroughly cleaned before it is put to use as the inside of a quilt, or made over into a similar garment of a smaller size.

Miss Katharine T. Kirwan, a member of the Children's Aid Society of Baltimore, is head of the relief work here, and at a recent meeting of the Central Committee it was decided that no food or clothing would be given away without requiring a payment of some kind in return. The payment from those needing relief was not necessarily to be in money, but in a certain amount of work done, in order to meet their obligation.

Miss Eleanor Townshend and Miss Frances Snyder, of Washington, D. C., spent Christmas here with Miss Townshend's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Townshend, returning to the Capital Sunday.

Former Senator and Mrs. A. D. Naylor, accompanied by Mr. Arthur Naylor, will leave Oakland Tuesday morning by motor for Sebring, Florida, where Mr. and Mrs. Naylor will reside during the winter months.

Mr. William L. Thomas, of Grafton, motored to Oakland last Wednesday morning and was accompanied home the same afternoon by his daughter, Miss Mary Thomas, of the high school faculty, who is spending the vacation days in that town with her parents.

On Monday, January 4, 1932, the Board of County Commissioners of Garrett county will meet in semi-monthly session for the purpose, among other important public matters, of appointing road supervisors to have charge of the public county highways for 1932 and the selection of constables to serve for one year from the date of their qualifying as such. This meeting of the Commissioners is one in which every public-spirited citizen should be interested.

Charles D. Bosley, proprietor of the Manhattan Hoel, is regretting the loss by theft of a twenty-five pound turkey and several chickens stolen from his poultry house in the rear of the hotel one night last week. Entrance to the pen was effected when the lock was broken. While Mr. Bosley has no positive evidence as to the identity of the person guilty of the theft he is pretty well convinced in his own mind that one of two men in the community did the thieving.

Turkeys last week sold in Oakland at prices ranging from 35 cents to 40 cents per pound for full-dressed young hens. The prices obtained here were somewhat higher than in other nearby markets, but the quality of the home-grown birds more than made up for the difference in price. Mountain grown poultry, lambs and in fact most all other products are superior in taste and every other quality than products grown in lower levels. Hence buy at home, trade at home.

Explanation Regarding Changes In Banking Policy

Question: Will my account be charged each month it is below $50.00?

Answer: No account will be charged any month regardless of the amount of balance unless there are checks drawn against it.

Question: Will my savings account be charged?

Answer: No savings accounts will be charged at any time. The charge will be made only on checking accounts against which checks are drawn, as above stated.

Question: Will an account as Treasurer of a Sunday School be charged?

Answer: No accounts of religious, fraternal or civic organizations will be charged.

Question: If I have an account of $10.00, to which I add deposits at intervals, will it be charged each month until it reaches a balance of $50.00?

Answer: No charges will be made against such an account unless there are withdrawals before the account reaches a total of $50.00.

Question: If I deposit an amount less than $50.00, and draw a check against same for the amount of the balance, will the account be charged?

Answer: Yes. The charge will be made for the service and the check will then be returned on account of insufficient funds.

Question: When will the charge be made for a check drawn against insufficient funds?

Answer: The day the check is presented and the account is found to be insufficient the charge will be made, unless the check is presented by an individual at the window and returned immediately to him, in which case no clerical work is necessary, and in which case no charge is made.

Question: If I present my renewal note but do not have the discount for several days, will I be charged 25c. per day on same?

Answer: Yes; the charge will be made unless the full amount of the discount is paid so the note can be run through the course of business on or before three days after same is due.

Question: What type of collections will a charge be made for handling?

Answer: Any collection that necessitates entry in the collection department and the usual notices sent, will require a charge of 10c. each.

Americans have recovered their confidence in the United States. They will not be greatly startled when some other European nations admit inability to pay debts, nor alarmed at further French "rumors" about the dollar.

BITTINGER

Mrs. Chauncey R. Broadwater

Clara Ellen, wife of Chauncey R. Broadwater, aged 39 years, 5 months and one day, died suddenly at her home in Bittinger on Wednesday evening, December 23, at 6:30 o'clock. The deceased was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Stark, of this district, and she is survived by her husband and six children ranging in age from an infant to the eldest son, who is fourteen. Besides the immediate family there also survives her father and five brothers, Messrs. Noah, Leonard, Charles, Harvey and Earl Stark, and three sisters, Mrs. John Beitzell, of Bittinger; Mrs. Henry Bittinger, of Akron, O., and Miss Huldah Stark, of Cumberland. Funeral services were conducted in the Bittinger Lutheran church last Saturday afternoon, with Rev. Ed. Walls, of Springs, Pa.; Rev. Scrogum, of Accident, and Rev. C. A. Shilke, of Oakland, in charge, and interment followed immediately after the service in the village cemetery. The sympathy of the entire community goes out to the bereaved husband and his family of splendid children, to whom this has been a very sad Christmas time, but the clouds will pass and the Great Guardian and Keeper of all will make the light to shine on their pathway.

If you would win, lift up your chin,
And feel your muscles tighten;
Then sail right in and grin and grin
And never let up fightin'.

Prof. Aiken, principal of the Accident high school, was a pleasant caller in this village on Monday evening of last week.

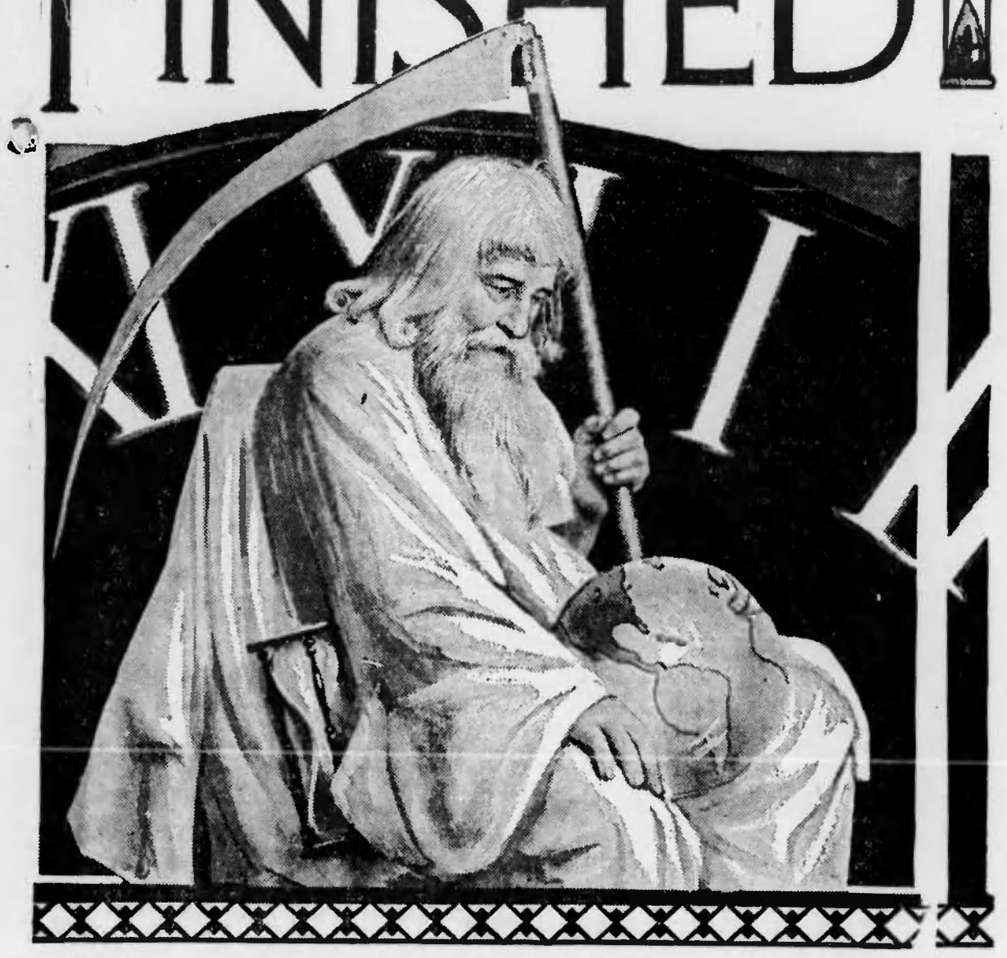
FINISHED



Year's End and Its Beginning

WHOEVER it was that invented the year as a division of time should share in the blessings invoked by Sancho Panza upon the man who invented sleep. With the latter comes surcease from the cares and worries of the day and a renewal of spirits for the struggles of the morrow. The year's end is also not only a sleep and a forgetting of things fled beyond redemption, but with its passing hours come the many-hued hopes that keep ever fresh and buoyant the human soul and make radiant again the paths that lead humanity into the unknown future.

The old year falls from our hands like the stem of a rose whose leaves, one by one, month by month, have silently dropped away into the void of time, some laden with the fragrance of pleasant memories, some with the pallid tints and withered aspects of misfortunes and griefs inescapable and irreparable and some with dust of dreams shattered beyond recall. But, at the birth of another New Year, Time brings to the hands of each of us a fresh bud from its eternal tree, the secrets of whose close-folded leafage no eye can penetrate, no conjecture of wisdom fathom. Yet within its depths we can scent the sweet and inspiring aromas of the hopes that spring eternal in the human breast, of hidden joys that hold fresh promises of full blossoming, of good deeds to be done for us and by us, of the blessings of peace, good will and prosperity again made possible for us, and of the gardens of opportunity whose gates are swinging wide open for us.

Always in the cycle of human affairs the Spring of Hope follows the Winter of Discontent. And New Year's day is the symbol of human renovation—spiritual as well as utilitarian—and of the clearing process of the soul's past accumulations, making ready for the building of its "more stately mansions." It may be Fate that guides the hand of Time in placing in our grasp the new bud of promise, but each of us may do much to further its proper blossoming, to keep fresh its fragrance, to shape into full fruition the enjoyment of the unfolding, month by month, and day by day, of the flower of the year whose unopened months lie before us.—Kansas City Star.

BORED

"Dear, your fortune tells that the New Year will bring you lots of happiness."

"Oh, then you won't be around any more."

Calling on New Year's Morning

THE young matron was looking back over some old magazines shortly before the holidays, when she ran across a picture showing an old-fashioned New Year's day reception. A great steaming bowl of hot fruit punch stood on one table and on another a pot of hot coffee. New Year's callers stood about, with glasses and cups held high, exchanging good wishes and toasts for the New Year.

"What a pretty, friendly custom that was!" she exclaimed to her suburban husband. "And what a pity that it has died out! Watching the old year out is a jolly ceremony, but how nice to welcome the New Year in on the afternoon of the day itself, with all one's neighbors dropping in to share it with one."

"Well, let's revive the custom," suggested her lord idly, through his pipe. "Let's send out a general alarm that we'll hold open house all afternoon. I'd like that."

"All right," agreed the young matron enthusiastically. "I'll have a big bowl of that wonderful orange ice punch on tap and Mary can make some of her amusing little Swedish decorated cookies to go with it. You know she makes snappy little wafers on which she puts lighted candles, evergreen trees and crimson winter berries, all done in colored icing. You can have a table of cigars and cigarettes in one corner of the sun room, for the men who want to smoke.

"We'll invite the entire neighborhood, all by telephone, of course, and just have a regular old-fashioned New Year's 'at home.' We can start the custom this year and then perhaps keep it up every year, and possibly some of the others will follow suit. I think it is too bad to lose sight of those charming old-time traditions. We have revived the custom of having our children dress up as 'waits' and sing Christmas carols through the snowy streets on Christmas eve, and we all go out and cut down our own Christmas trees now. Why not add the pleasant old fashion of calling on New Year's day?"

Future Is Ours

Amid all the welter of talk about the New Year, one great fact remains. What is past is past, beyond our alteration; but the future is always just ahead, and it is ours.—Collier's Weekly.

Swearing Off and Taking On

PEOPLE who do not wish to better themselves are few.

It is not hard for the average person to see all about him the privileges, opportunities and facilities for advancement which would place him in a position he does not but would like to occupy.

Too often these advantages are allowed to go unemployed and why?

In many cases there seems to be a sort of equilibrium between desire and lack of motive power, which some slight thing or incident might incline forward.

A salesman had talked for hours with a customer whom he did not wish to leave without the order. There was an impasse. Finally, opening his grip in the hope of finding a folder, card, picture or other thing which would upset the situation in his direction, he spied a couple of apples which he had brought from home. He rolled one across the desk to the customer and retained the other for himself. The customer took a bite, munched it for a moment, then said, "Well, we'll just let 'er come that way." The deal was closed, the order signed. So small a thing as an apple had disturbed the equilibrium and tipped an important deal into the salesman's lap.

The custom of adopting New Year resolutions is the apple which tips many a man's course toward an improved program of living. It may be the "swearing off" of habits which he no longer feels are creditable to him, or it may be the taking on of others which he believes will develop his mental, moral, spiritual and physical capacities, and gain for him greater respect, if not admiration, among those whose regard he would like to keep.

A comparatively small part of our population avails itself of the superb facilities of the public library in associating with the best minds of all ages and gleaning the treasures of history, biography, philosophy, poetry, religion and the sciences to be found there; the opportunities for physical improvement afforded by municipal golf courts, baseball grounds; frequent lectures, concerts and occasional operatic performances; the priceless capability of constructive thinking.

If you are standing at equilibrium, New Year's day is a good time to bite into the apple.

The Man Who Almost Kidnapped Arnold

JOHN CHAMPE AND HIS ATTEMPT TO BRING THE TRAITOR BACK ALIVE

By LEONORA W. WOOD,
In the Baltimore Sunday Sun

Five miles south of Romney, West Va., on a farm owned by one of the prominent citizens of Hampshire county, there is a spot known as "Haunted Gate." Close by the gate there remain a few ruins of the site of a stone house, built during the Revolutionary War, and for many years shrouded in deepest mystery. It was doubtless the mysterious appearance of John Champe, who built and occupied the house for thirty years, that gave rise to many supernatural stories, woven around the immediate locale of the house.

During the first years of Champe's abode, in what was then a remote section of Virginia frontier, there were but few who knew the reason for his seclusion; it was not until after his death that it became generally known that Washington had sent him here to keep him from falling into the hands of the British who probably would have executed him for a spy. At last, however, nearly everyone knew that this silent, self-effacing man who had struggled so valiantly against the ravages of poverty, was in reality a hero, who had sacrificed all that he had on the altar of patriotism.

John Champe, of Loudoun county, Virginia, enlisted in the Continental Army in 1776; and though only 20 years of age, his commander, Major Henry Lee, regarded him as a worthy member of the legion of Virginia cavalrymen over which he had command. Within a short time he had advanced to the rank of sergeant-major, with promise of a commission.

At this time there was much unrest among the American forces. Washington was greatly disturbed because of the treason of Benedict Arnold, together with persistent rumors that other officers of high rank contemplated desertion. Then, too, he was anxious to save the life of Major John Andre, the young British soldier who had been detailed by Clinton to go to Stony Point and arrange with Arnold for the surrender of the American stronghold at West Point. If Arnold could be brought back into the American lines and executed, other desertions might be forestalled, public sentiment might be made to prove stronger than military law, and the unfortunate Andre kept from hanging. Therefore Washington determined that all the power and ingenuity at his command would be used to formulate a plan for the capture of Arnold.

Major Henry Lee, Washington's staunch friend and a man in whom he had implicit confidence, was called into conference. Together they formulated a plan for Arnold's capture, but to execute their plans a most unusual man must be found: a man of unquestionable patriotism, one who possessed keen intelligence, dauntless courage, desperate determination, and who might be depended upon to keep his head under all circumstances. This man, when found, must be persuaded to feign a desertion to the British, and having made his way into the enemy's lines bide his time to kidnap Arnold, and escape with him into the American lines.

After careful consideration Major Lee named John Champe as the man in his command best suited for this hazardous task.

Champe was sent for, and listened eagerly to the plot as outlined by Washington. He was greatly moved by the confidence placed in him by his superior officers, and declared that he was ready, if need be, to give his life for his country, but could not do this thing that might bring shame and disgrace on his own name and be used as further proof of American disloyalty.

At last, however, the arguments of Washington and Lee prevailed, and he was persuaded that such a task, undertaken at the request of those at the head of the American forces, was a patriotic duty and would not bring dishonor to his name.

Carefully written instructions were given him. He was to read and reread them until every detail was clear, then destroy them. Two letters were given him to be delivered to men in New York, who would furnish all necessary funds and assistance that Champe might require for carrying through the project. But one restriction was placed upon him: under no consideration was he to kill Arnold. He must bring him back alive.

By 11 o'clock that night Champe had made all necessary preparation. Equipped with his cloak, valise, orderly book and three guineas, he secretly mounted his horse and started for New York.

Lee was stricken with fear when a half hour later Captain Carnes, the officer of the day, aroused him from a pretended sleep with the exciting news that one of the patrols had come upon a cavalryman, who answered his challenge by putting spurs to his horse and riding like mad. Lee made light of the idea that any of his men would desert, and sugested that Captain Carnes ease his mind on that point. When the captain could not be put off longer the major ordered Lieutenant Middleton, whom he knew to be an ardent admirer of Champe, to head a pursuing party. Middleton, he knew, could be depended upon to give Champe every benefit of doubt should he come up with him.

At sunrise Champe was in sight of the Hudson River, with his pursuers close behind. Lieutenant Middleton divided his party, sending some of the men by a short cut that would bring them to the bridge across the river ahead of Champe. Fortunately Champe also knew of this short cut and took no chance of being intercepted. When he reached the water's edge he signaled a British ship which happened to be in sight, left his horse tied his valise and orderly book on his back, and his pursuers came up just in time to see him swimming frantically toward a rowboat which was being sent out to meet him.

Champe had no trouble in convincing the captain of the boat of the sincerity of his desertion. The captain took him at once to New York and introduced him to Sir Henry Clinton, the British commander. Clinton soon decided that Champe was no ordinary deserter, but any suspicions he might have had as to the reason for his desertion were dispelled by the clever manner in which the young man asked and answered questions.

Washington had seen to it that Champe had all necessary papers on his person to show that he was an officer. The British policy to give deserting officers the same rank in the British Army that they had in the American force would bring Champe into close touch with Benedict Arnold and would make it easier for him to carry through the abduction plot.

Arnold, who had found great favor in the sight of Sir Henry Clinton, had his quarters at No. 3 Broadway, adjoining those of the British commander. His command, known as "The American Legion," was made up of Tories and deserters, and it was to "The American Legion" that Champe was sent. Arnold received him courteously, and while the troop was being prepared for a Southern expedition Champe found ways to dispatch a letter to Lee, giving him full particulars regarding his whereabouts; he also communicated with the men whom Washington had asked to aid him in the conspiracy.

The entire situation seemed favorable to Champe: A garden in the rear of Arnold's house extended to the river, a dark alley adjoining the garden led to the street. Arnold's habit of strolling in the garden late at night fitted well into the scheme. On the night set for the kidnapping one of Champe's accomplices was to have a boat ready for immediate use; the other was to wait in the alley until a certain signal was given; then he and Champe were to seize and gag the traitor, carry him to the river, where they would take off at once for Hoboken.

The time was appointed for action. The minutest details had been attended to. Even a panel in the palings in the fence between the garden and the alley had been removed and set back into place in such a way that they need not make any noise, or take but a moment of time in escaping to the alley. Lee was advised when to meet them at Hoboken. On the night appointed the major, with a small body of cavalry, left the camp at Tippan, with three extra horses. They made their way to a secluded woods, near Hoboken, where they waited for Champe and his prisoner. All night they waited, and when dawn had come and the party had failed to arrive they returned to camp. Washington shared their disappointment and waited anxiously for some message from Champe. Not many days thereafter Lee received a letter which conveyed the disheartening information that on the day appointed for the kidnapping Arnold had changed his quarters, that he might better superintend the embarking of his troops for the expedition into Virginia. Instead of carrying Arnold a prisoner across the Hudson that night Champe had been compelled to take passage on a British transport, and was now on the shores of his beloved Virginia, preparing for a marauding expedition against Richmond. He declared that it was almost more than he could endure to have to take part in the villainous work of this servant of the devil—that he would gladly kill him but for Washington's orders, rather than have him desecrate the soil of Virginia.

All hope of carrying out Washington's plans was gone, and Champe bent all his energies to find some way of escape. The opportunity came when Arnold joined Cornwallis at Petersburg. Major Lee was then in the South, and Champe joined him near the Congaree River, in South Carolina. Fearing for Champe's safety should he fall into the hands of the British, Lee took him at once to General Green, whose headquarters were not far distant. General Green provided him with a horse and provisions and sent him directly to Washington.

Washington received him kindly, telling him that he was under great obligations to him for the service he had so faithfully tried to render his country; but was firm in his refusal to allow Champe to return to his post in Major Lee's division. The British he knew would surely execute him as a spy if captured.

In the name of the United States the American commander promised Champe that he should be well rewarded; and when he was sent into seclusion it was with the understanding that he should be given a grant of lands, and provided with the means to take up the duties of life in a manner suited to one of his station. These promises Washington seemed to have forgotten, until fifteen years later, when the United States and France were about to go to war, and President Adams had appointed General Washington commander-in-chief of the American forces. He then tried to find Champe, thinking to make him a captain of infantry, but the messenger sent to search for Champe returned with the report that he had moved to Kentucky, and died. Years later, however, it was found that this report was false. Champe had remained on the farm where he had first gone, had married Phoebe Parnard, and had two sons.

The later years of Champe's life are more or less shrouded in uncertainty. In the year 1789 he moved to Ohio, but remained only a short time. He returned to the South Branch, moved farther and farther up the valley, finally setteling on the North Fork just below the mouth of Seneca. There are no records showing that he owned any lands, and in 1804, at the age of 48, he died in poverty.

About twenty-five years ago it was found that several grandsons and one granddaughter of Champe lived in Pendleton county, West Virginia. But at the present time Andrew J. Champe, of Seneca; Grover C. Champe, of the Smoke Hole; Mrs. William W. Shirk and Mrs. Henry J. Judy, of the Smoke Hole, are the only descendants known to be living in that section.

John Champe's grave, which was near the mouth of Seneca, was left unmarked and has long since been lost. But near the mouth of this gorge, which contains some of the most marvelous natural scenery to be found in America, there stands a mass of gigantic rocks—close rivals of the far-famed Senecas—which bear his name. "Champe Rocks" is the only monument he ever had; but one singularly fitting to bear the name of this Virginian, who was literally almost buried alive because of the service he attempted to render his country.

HOLLY INDUSTRY BRINGS MARYLAND OVER $100,000

The Christmas business of harvesting and marketing holly trailing pine and evergreen trees has this year reached a new high level, according to State Forester F. W. Besley, who has been studying this seasonal industry. A large number of persons who are unemployed have profited through the opportunity to market evergreen products of the forest. According to the official, the Christmas tree industry has reached large proportions in the New England States, many of the spruce and fir trees now used in the large cities being shipped from that region. The beautiful holly tree with its deep green ornamental foliage and bright red berries is not found in great quantities north of Maryland. Largely for this reason, Maryland holly is receiving great popularity for sale on northern markets. This Maryland industry has this year resulted in an income well over $100,000, helping greatly to carry unemployed citizens through the serious winter period.

In commenting on the industry, the State Forester indicated that there is greater activity in the industry than usual, in spite of smaller returns and greater sale difficulties resulting from decreased local demand. The industry has great possibilities of development by the introduction of more efficient harvesting and marketing methods. It was pointed out that the danger of vandalism is annually increasing due to the high value of the crop and the difficulty for the property owner to protect remote weeded areas containing the holly.

MASONIC LODGE OFFICERS CHOSEN TUESDAY NIGHT

Oakland Organization Will Have As Master Delbert M. Davis

Delbert M. Davis was chosen Worshipful Master of Oakland Lodge, No. 192, Ancient, Free and Accepted Masons at the communication of that organization held last Tuesday night.

Other officers elected for the year 1932 were: Senior warden, Herbert C. Leighton; junior warden, George H. Hanst; secretary, Harland L. Jones; treasurer, William W. Grant.

A number of other officers are appointive and will be selected by the officers elected Tuesday evening.

DIED.

MRS. SARAH RALSTON

Mrs. Sarah Ralston, aged 81 years, widow of the late George E. Ralston, Frostburg, died from a heart attack while seated in a chair in her bedroom Saturday at noon. She arose from bed to sit in the chair in apparent good health. She tottered in the presence of her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Margaret Ralston, who caught her and in a few moments she was dead.

Mrs. Ralston was a native of Bittinger, Garret county, her name prior to her marriage being Cunningham. Her husband died 28 years ago. She was a member of the Lutheran church.

Surviving her are her sons and daughters, Martin Luther, William and Charles Ralston, all of Frostburg; Mrs. Eliza Hendershot, Morgantown; Mrs. Thomas Swann, Bloomington; Mrs. Gene Blote, Eufula, Ala, and Mrs. Jeff Thompson, Indiana, Pa. One sister, Mrs. Mollie C. Mitchell, of Oakland and 19 grandchildren and one great grandchild also survive.

Funeral services were held from the Bittinger Lutheran church on Monday morning. Due to the illness of the pastor of the Bittinger church, Rev. Walter V. Simon, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church, Frostburg, officiated. Burial was in the church cemetery beside the grave of her husband.

RAYMOND E. SHILLINGBURG

Raymond Ellery Shillingburg, aged 16 years, 5 months and five days, died on December 22, 1931. Death was due to lobar pneumonia, which he contracted while attending high school at Bayard, W. Va. The deceased was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Emory Shillingburg, of Steyer, Md., and was born June 29, 1915. He is survived by his parents, two brothers, Lloyd and Lee, two sisters, Hazel and Mary, all at home. He was a senior in the high school, being president of his class, and was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church.

Funeral services were conducted on Wednesday, December 23, from the home of the deceased, and interment was made in the White Church cemetery.

MELVIN RAY FRIEND

Melvin Ray Friend, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Friend, was born July 9, 1931, and departed this life on December 28, aged 5 months and 19 days.

His parents survive and also one brother and one sister. Funeral services were held from the U. B. church at Swanton on Tuesday, December 29, at 3 p. m., Rev. C. W. Fraker officiating. Interment was made in the George cemetery.

MRS. MOSES WENSELL

Funeral services for Mrs. Moses Wensell, 86 years old, who died Tuesday afternoon following a paralytic stroke early Sunday morning, at her home one mile south of Oakland, were held this afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. C. A. Shilke officiating. Interment was made in the Lower cemetery, about three miles sonth of Oakland.

The deceased was born in Garrett county February 20, 1845, and spent her entire life in this section. She was apparently in good health until she was stricken on Sunday.

She is survived by three daughters and four sons, Mrs. Ida Simmons, of Mt. Lake Park; Mrs. Earl Durst and Mrs. Daniel E. Orendorf, of Oakland; Walter Wensell, Massillon, O.; O. S. Wensell, Akron, O.; Floyd Wensell, Oakland; and Edward Wensell, Keyser, W. Va.

JACK M'GUFFIN

Jack McGuffin, colored, about 55 years old, died early this morning at his home at Loch Lynn. Funeral arrangements have not yet been made. McGuffin had made his home there for many years.

MRS. O. E. HAGER

Funeral services were held at Uniontown, Pa., at 10:30 o'clock Monday morning for Mrs. Joeie Hager, wife of O. E. Hager, who died at her home Christmas Day. Mrs. Hager was the youngest sister of Mrs. H. V. Leighton, of Mountain Lake Park and was well known by the residents of that town. Other surviving sisters are Mrs. Dora Jenkins, of Terra Alta; Mrs. William Miller, of Brandonville, W. Va.; Mrs. Norma Cuppett, Cumberland; Mrs. Flo Collins, Kansas City, Mo.; Miss Blanche Cale, of Mt. Lake Park, and two brothers, Charles Cale and Roy Cale, of Uniontown. Interment was made at Farmington, near Gorley's Lake, on Route 40.

NANCY CATHERINE WELLING

Mrs. Nancy Catherine Welling died at her home on Oak street, Oakland, at 5:10 o'clock Christmas morning, December 25, 1931, aged 80 years, 2 months and 14 days. She was partially paralyzed seven years ago and death was due to complications which resulted.

Mrs. Welling was the widow of the late David Welling, Sr., who died nine years ago. She was the mother of ten sons and two daughters, of whom 8 sons and the daughters survive: Wiley Welling, Mt. Lake Park; Charles Welling, Max Welling, Joseph Welling, Mrs. Newton Kemphfer and Miss Theresa Welling, all of Oakland; George Welling, Morgantown; Carter Welling, Keyser, W. Va.; Walker Welling and David Welling, of Washington, D. C.; also 25 grandchildren and 14 great-grandchildren survive.

Rev. W. B. Brock, of the Presbyterian church, held a prayer service at the home on Saturday evening and Rev. Fr. William J. McVeigh conducted the funeral services, also at the home, on Sunday afternoon at two o'clock.

The pallbearers were A. G. Ross, Joseph Wolfe, Grover Stemple, Lawrence M. Fraley, S. D. Whipkey and Milburn Mann. Flowerbearers were six of the grandchildren, Wiley Welling, Jr., Norma Welling, Frank Welling, Mrs. Catherine Taft, Mrs. Jeanette Wolfe and Mrs. Ruth Whittington.

The deceased was born in Rockingham, Va., on October 10, 1851, and had spent the last 50 years in Oakland.

MRS. PERRY M. STEMPLE

Mrs. P. M. Stemple, widow of the late Perry M. Stemple, aged 75 years, died at 8:30 o'clock Sunday night at her residence in Morgantown, W. Va., from complications which had caused a long illness and which became critical about two weeks before her death.

Mrs. Stemple was a native of Deer Park, and was a daughter of Jacob and Elizabeth Thrasher, both deceased. For the past twenty-five years she had resided in Morgantown, going to that city with her family from this county. Mr. Stemple, who had been a successful saw mill operator in Garrett county prior to his retirement from active life, died about ten years ago.

Surviving are three children, Miss Martha M. Stemple and Arthur H. Stemple, both of Morgantown, and Albert M. Stemple, of Pittsburgh, and two brothers, Frank H. Thrasher, now of Atlanta, Ga., and Benjamin T. Thrasher of Deer Park. Interment was made in East Oak Grove cemetery at Morgantown, W. Va.

MRS. EMMA YELLOWLY DAVIS

None knew her but to love her, none named her but with hope renewed and replenished at the mere hearing of her name. This penman has known her from infancy, and knows truly whereof she speaks. Emma was the friend of the aged, the sick, the infirm, and the comforter of the afflicted. Her left hand never knew of the many, many deeds of sweet charity and helpful acts of benevolence performed by her right. The invalids of our town will miss her—her aged father will miss her—her healing presence and hopeful little talks so full of patient resignation.

She suffered mutely, silently, from the inroads of an affliction that slowly drained away her vital force. For a long while back she has been a paleflower walking our streets on her patient way, where into the deep waters of the rivers of sorrow her tears o'erflowed to mingle with her comforting words of sympathy and lend her helping hand to lift over the desolate parts, the weeping, afflicted souls of the bereaved.

She was a lay sister of charity; a wonder lay sister of mercy. Once, upon her daily morning rounds she looked in on one of her invalids to say only a "good morning" as she passed along the way, and found the "poorly off" one with broom in hand reaching over head to an exasperating cobweb. The subject of this tribute flung off hat and coat, rolled up her sleeves, took hold of the broom, commanded the invalid to lie upon the couch. When Emma, the merciful, had annihilated cobweb and other films, she left a spick and span room to cheer her sick friend all through the lonely, livelong day.

How many, many sweet deeds of charity like this she has performed only her God and herself knows. Some of her friends have often told her that "There's only one Emma Davis," which means her like is a priceless pearl hard to find. The aged, the helpless and the suffering were her adopted children.

She was kind to ever child, more particularly to the little ones of the "down and out." The tender memories of childhood live while life lasts—so a child can never die. This was a part of her belief.

This one more hand is trying to weave a fragrant waxen white lily into the garland which entwines her memory—the memory of her generous heart. Cold calculating selfishness was unknown to her soul. Policy, to her was a dead language, whose heart was at once brave, noble, merciful, fearless and true. In the midst of her plans for the greatest good, for the happiness of those dearest to her, God sent an angel to touch the delicate spring in her prison of elay and liberate her from her pain-wracked earthly habitation.

Good-night, Emma; but not farewell, for some of us will see you soon and some of us may have to wait a long, long while.

A still white face. Ah, that is all
Now left to think upon at last,
No speech, no smile, no answering sign,
No recognition of the past;
No pressure of the folded hands,
No open ear to list the knell,
Which comes when grieving souls must say:
"Dear, still white face, farewell, farewell;
Dear pulseless heart, dear sightless eye,
Dear, loved and loving one, goodby."

"'Tis mine to look, and list, and pray
That still white face once more to see
When I, in turn, alone must go
Forever out, my guide to be.
When I shall trace the solemn path
That all in time must surely tread,
When mine shall be a still, white face
Numbered with thine among the dead—
Then still, white face, come out and wait
My passing through life's closing gate."

MT. LAKE PARK

The holiday spirit was somewhat raised by the light snow that fell Christmas morning. The lighted windows of many homes showed the reflection of trimmed and lighted trees, while the outside decorations of the Enlow and Willison homes were rare things of beauty. To have the natural foliage on the lawns decorated with varied colored lights is a grand idea, as they bring joy and pleasure to many.

There has been a source of interference on the radios in this community which has been very annoying, particularly so Tuesday evening about 7:00 o'clock. It sounded as though some one had installed a buzzer and was operating it with annoying persistency during the Lowell Thomas and Amon 'n' Andy hour. This might not, of course, be the cause. We understand, however, that the matter has been referred to the Radio Commission at Washington.

Either certain tables were filled to overflowing or chicken houses have some new boarders, for a number of fowls have been missed since December begun. The strange part of the thiefts are that only a pair of the fattest of the poultry were missed each night the stealing occurred. Instead of shot, one man has loaded his old gun with salt and red pepper, well mixed. There is a hot reception in store for the guilty party if eaught in the act and the gunner's aim is good.

A capacity house greeted Mrs. William T. Burch last Sunday evening when she delivered an address in the U. B. church, Loch Lynn, on the subject of World Peace. The speaker dealt at length on the fact that by the exercise of spiritual force, with which we have been endowed, the Disarmament Conference to be held at Geneva soon, would end with the success which all right-thinking Americans wish for.

Mr. W. E. Lochery, who spent the holidays here with his father and sister, has returned to Fairmont, where he is employed.

Miss Helen Burch has returned from a short visit to New York.

Mr. Frank Murphy and father, of Fairmont, spent the holidays here with Mrs. Murphy.

Mr. James Knight, of Fairmont, was a business visitor at the Park last week.

Miss Beatrice Clary is spending the holidays here with her mother, Mrs. Alma Bell.

Floyd White is visiting friends in Grafton, W. Va.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Comerford spent Christmas Day in Terra Alta where they were the guests of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Cale.

Roy Calhoun has returned from an extended trip to the east.

Mr. James C. Frame, Fairmont, was a holidays guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Frame.

The Woodmen of the World held a social and entertainment in their lodge rooms Tuesday evening at which approximately 75 members with their ladies were present. A feature of the evening was a mock trial. Mr. Chas. Ream, a member from Crellin, delivered a very happy address.

Wednesday evening, the Ladies' Aid Society of the U. B. church gave an entertainment and social in the Aid Hall. The mock trial given the evening preceding was repeated.

Messrs. C. P. Martin and J. E. Callis have begun lumber operations on the Murphy property at the foot of the Little Mountain.

United Brethren quarterly conference will be in session at Crellin on January 7.

Word has been received at the Park of the death of Mrs. O. E. Hager, at her home in Uniontown, which occurred on Christmas Day. Mrs. Hager was a sister of Mrs. H. V. Leighton and is very kindly remembered by many residents of this community.

Mrs. Herbert Leighton and children are in Fairmont, the guests of Mrs. Leighton's parents.

It is gratifying to his many friends to learn that Rev. I. S. Middaugh has been selected secretary of the Allegheny Tableland Association.

McHENRY

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bowman and Iva and Helen Glotfelty were visiting Mr. and Mrs. Howard Glotfelty on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Bernard went to Washington, D. C., to spend the Christmas holidays with friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bowman spent Christmas with Mr. and Mrs. James Glotfelty and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Glotfelty were guests on Christmas Day of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Harvey.

Edward Glotfelty and Mrs. Edna Glotfelty and two daughters visited friends at Addison on Christmas.

Mr. and Mrs. George Moats and Miss Lena Helfrick, of Hagerstown, visited friends here recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Jonas Glotfelty, of Oakland, visited George Glotfelty and family on Christmas.

Miss Effie Glotfelty, Cresaptown, visited her parents here during the past week.

Quite a revival meeting is being held here by Rev. and Mrs. Kype. All are welcome to attend.

Card of Thanks

We desire in this manner to thank those who rendered any assistance during the illness and after the death of our mother, Mrs. Nancy Welling. We also wish to thank those who gave floral tributes and donated the use of their automobiles for the funeral.
